INDIA'S LEADER NEHRU DIES OF STROKE

"LIFE IS OUT, THE LIGHT IS OUT"—With these words the Indian Parliament and the world was informed of the death of Jawaharlal Nehru in New Delhi, India's capital, Wednesday. Nehru was 74. He was prime minister of India since it became independent in 1947 and was one of the world's favorite leading statesmen. (AP Wirephoto)

India's Defense Minister, Visiting Here, Denies Being Possible Nehru Successor

By ROGER LENTZ
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Visiting Indian Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan, who had been mentioned as a possible successor to the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, told local reporters Tuesday, "If I have been mentioned as his successor, I have been wrongly mentioned. I assure you." Chavan made the statement just hours before being told of Nehru's death.

The defense minister toured the Air Force Academy and North American Air Defense Command headquarters here Tuesday as part of his visit to the United States to seek F-104G supersonic fighter planes for the Indian Air Force.

Chavan said today that Prime Minister Nehru's death was "Shocking news for me and a terrible, shocking thing for India."

"But," added Chavan, "I am sure that the traditions he has laid down will guide us to find his successor and get out of this crisis." The defense minister had planned to go to Pope Air Force Base in North Carolina today but instead took off early this morning for New York. He will return to India immediately.

Chavan told a press conference at NORAD headquarters Tuesday that he could "not doubt that there will be a new Chinese attack on India." He said India is currently preparing for border skirmishes as well as a major offensive by the Chinese Reds.

Chavan spoke with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara in Washington last Friday about possible U. S. military aid for his country.

India is seeking to modernize its defense forces because of Communist China's 1962 attack on India and the estimated 175,000 Chinese troops now massed on the Indian border.

Asked whether he thought India's building of MIG fighters under a deal with the Soviet Union constituted a conflict of loyalty, Chavan said "There is no conflict. We are friendly with both the United States and Russia in the interests of peace. Our friendship with Russia has nothing to do with ideology." Chavan drew laughs when he added, "We were friendly with China also."

Chavan said there is no possibility of India's using arms purchased here against Pakistan in the long-standing dispute between India and that U. S. ally. He emphasized that the "mission of the Indian Air Force is exclusively defense."

The Tuesday afternoon press conference ended with Chavan expressing hope that a U. S.-Indian arms agreement would soon be reached.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, the aristocratic statesman who led India in the paths of neutralism and socialism since it became independent in 1947, died today after suffering his second stroke in less than five months. He was 74.

Home Minister G. L. Nanda, a senior Cabinet member who has a reputation for getting things done, was sworn in as acting prime minister 10 hours after Nehru's death.

Nanda was sworn in by President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, An elderly philosopher renowned in world academic circles, Radhakrishnan was charged under the constitution to take over the government on the death of the prime minister. But Nanda was quickly chosen to handle the administrative details.

Nehru's death was attributed to a heart attack and shock.

Officials announced Nehru's body would lie in state in his residence and the doors would be open all night to let people file by him.

Thursday morning the body will be "taken out in procession," as Indians say, through the streets of the capital to the burning ground.

Nehru will be cremated at a spot near that where Gandhi was cremated in 1948. A memorial for Gandhi was completed there last year.

The prime minister is no more. Steel Minister C. Subramaniam told the sobbing Parliament. "Life is out. The light is out."

Nehru was stricken at 6:25 a.m. as he arose at his usual hour. He died at 2 p.m. — 4:30 a.m. EDT, seven hours and 35 minutes later. A stroke on Jan. 7 had partially paralyzed his left side but he was recovered somewhat and in recent weeks had resumed the reins of the Parliament.

His only child, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, was with him when he died. A large team of doctors was in attendance. The U. S. Embassy offered its medical staff and equipment but an embassy spokesman said the Indian government did not request assistance.

Nehru's two sisters, Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit and Mrs. Krishna Hutheesingh, left Bombay by special plane for New Delhi.

Mrs. Pandit is governor of Maharashtra State.

In London, Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home said he would go to India this afternoon for the funeral. Buckingham Palace said Queen Elizabeth II would be represented by Earl Mountbatten, who was India's last viceroy and first governor general and a close friend of Nehru's.

Home Secretary R. Viswanadha said Nehru's physicians at-

U.S., Soviet Union Sign Historic Consular Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson announced today an historic consular treaty with the Soviet Union and termed the event a significant step in building understanding between the American and Soviet peoples.

The treaty announced simultaneously in Washington and Moscow will provide for the opening of consular offices in the two countries. It is the first treaty ever negotiated between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Johnson, citing the advantages which he expects this country to receive as a result of the agreement, said that when the treaty takes effect "Americans detained in the Soviet Union for any reasons will be assured of access without delay to American consular officials."

George Reedy, White House press secretary, was asked whether this would apply to any Americans who might be arrested on espionage charges.

The statement says it does for any reasons. Reedy replied.

Johnson said the agreement, which must be ratified by the Senate before it can take effect, will be signed in Moscow on June 1.

Foy Kohler, U.S. ambassador in Moscow, will sign for the United States. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is expected to sign for Russia.

In announcing the completion of lengthy negotiations on the agreement, Johnson hailed the treaty as "a significant step in our continuing efforts to increase contacts and understanding between the American people and the peoples of the Soviet Union."

In the same vein, Johnson concluded his statement with these words:

"It is my hope that this treaty—the first bilateral treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union—will be a step forward in developing understanding between our two countries which is so important in the continuing struggle for peace."

Johnson in effect approved consular services to be made possible in both countries as a result of the treaty, said Americans visiting the Soviet Union either as tourists or for business reasons will have available to them a greater degree of consular protection than ever before.

Johnson listed these other potential benefits:

"American businessmen and shipping companies will be able to call on U.S. consular services to assist in representing their interests. And the mechanics for dealing with a whole range of legal problems from complicated questions of inheritance to simple notary services will be considerably eased."

The United States and the Soviet Union have entered into a number of treaties which also involved other signatory countries.

Pearson Wants New Canadian Flag, Anthem

OTTAWA, Canada (AP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson formally placed before the House of Commons today proposals to change Canada's flag and national anthem. He has staked the life of his Liberal government on approval of the changes.

Pearson proposed a flag composed of three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue band on each end.

He also proposed that "O Canada" be the national anthem and that the present anthem, "God Save the Queen" be recognized as the royal anthem in Canada.

Pearson's motions to the House specifically would authorize the government to take the necessary steps to establish the flag and the anthems.

American Child Being Exploited, PTA Editor Says

By G. K. HODENFIELD

CHICAGO (AP) — The American child is being exploited by magazine and book publishers and the producers of movies and television programs, says Mrs. Herman Grant, editor of the PTA Magazine.

"These people could do so very much for our children," she said in an interview today. "The tragic truth is that they really do so little."

Mrs. Grant spoke out on the final day of the 68th annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"The movies have practically exhausted every aberration and deviation known to mankind," she said. "The only hopeful thing is that Hollywood may succeed in making depravity a dismal bore.

"Unfortunately, at the same time, they may make a bore out of many of the good and useful and elevating things in life."

Mrs. Grant said, "Television, in spite of its frequent promises to produce entertaining and instructive children's programs, remains a wasteland—and one mined with dangers to children.

Mrs. Grant noted that many magazines have begun recently to feature discussions of schools and education. But, she said, if "these people were really serious about doing a service to children, they would refrain from their sensational and often misleading titles and editorial come-ons, their gimmicks and devices that make it evident

Variable Wing Plane Is Being Built by U.S.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Components for the TFX Air Force-Navy tactical fighter plane are taking shape in contractor plants across the nation.

The Air Force version should be flying within a year and the Navy version within two years, Brig. Gen. J. L. Zoeckler told the Aviation and Space Writers' Association conference Tuesday night.

Zoeckler, deputy for the TFX at Aeronautical Systems Division, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, said three-fifths of the 21,000 hours of wind tunnel tests have been logged.

The TFX — Tactical Fighter Experimental—will be the first tactical fighter designed for two services. Zoeckler said it would be called the F111.

With a variable sweep wing that will extend or retract during different phases of flight, it will be capable of flying 2½ times the speed of sound.

Denver Water Rationing May Be in Prospect

DENVER (UPI)—Robert Millar, Denver Water Board manager, warned Tuesday water rationing may be necessary in the Mile High City next year if the two-year drought continues.

Millar made his gloomy forecast at a meeting of the board. He said water restrictions would not be necessary this year, however.

Water use during May, Millar said, had broken all records because of high temperatures, drying winds and lack of rain.

A report to the board showed that storage in all the reservoirs and lakes in the city's South Platte system was down to 188,456 acre-feet. The facilities have a maximum storage capacity of 211,982 acre-feet.

Review of Drugs Placed on Sale Being Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government announced today it will insist on a broad-scale review of drugs placed on the market from 1938 to mid-1962 to make sure they are safe and effective for human use.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), overruling objections from the drug industry, issued sweeping new regulations to enforce the tougher 1962 drug control law.

Before this law was passed, new drugs were cleared on the basis of safety alone. Now they must be shown to be effective for their intended purpose by sound medical evidence.

Two More Men Die in Desert Strike Exercise

NEEDLES, Calif. (UPI)—Exercise Desert Strike took the lives of two more soldiers Tuesday—the ninth and tenth men to die in the mock war since maneuvers started 10 days ago.

A total of 30 have died in accidents either directly or indirectly connected with the exercise since preparations for the giant operation started in February. Most of the deaths happened in traffic accidents.

The latest victims were Pfc. Jerry C. Lodwick, 24, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Pfc. Douglas C. Harper, Tallahassee, Fla., both with the 1st Cavalry of the 2nd Armored Division stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Both were in sleeping bags near Parker, Ariz., when a tank ran over them.

Massive U.S. Economic Aid Seen for Brazil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and international banking agencies were reported ready today to consider massive economic aid to Brazil once the South American giant completes plans for putting its financial house in order.

The first step will be Brazil's attempts to reschedule its staggering debt load of $2.8 billion—not counting interest—falling due this year and next.

Experts here say it would be hard to imagine a country in worse financial shape than Brazil—or one with brighter prospects.

U.S. officials say the new regime of President Humberto Castello Branco has impressed them with its outline of plans to face the country's acute problems.

78-Acre New Broadmoor Heights Subdivision Will Be Developed

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Russell T. Tutt, chairman of the El Pomar Investment Co., this morning announced the resubdivision of Broadmoor Heights at the base of Cheyenne Mountain.

Ninety lots priced from $8,000 to $14,950 were placed on the market.

Tutt said minimum building requirements would probably require at least a $35,000 house when building on a lot.

This would place a minimum price tag of $3.15 million on the development, excluding the price of lots.

"These lots are designed to appeal to persons who don't want lawns," Tutt said, terming them "mountain lots."

In describing the area, Tutt mentioned it would include graveled county roads, underground water, gas, electricity and telephone service to leave views unobstructed, individual sewage treatment units and water supplied by the Broadmoor Hotel Water and Power Co.

Tutt said the utility has spent $1 million in the past 2½ years to improve its facilities.

Broadmoor Heights is within Cheyenne Mountain School District 12 boundaries.

Requirements for building on the lots include: protective covenants, one dwelling per family per lot, no livestock including horses and R residence zoning. Dwellings must not contain less than 1,700 square feet.

A brochure said that "Certain local protective restrictions, conditions, covenants and reservations have been established

Two More Men Die in Desert Strike Exercise

NEEDLES, Calif. (UPI)—Exercise Desert Strike took the lives of two more soldiers Tuesday—the ninth and tenth men to die in the mock war since maneuvers started 10 days ago.

A total of 30 have died in accidents either directly or indirectly connected with the exercise since preparations for the giant operation started in February. Most of the deaths happened in traffic accidents.

The latest victims were Pfc. Jerry C. Lodwick, 24, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Pfc. Douglas C. Harper, Tallahassee, Fla., both with the 1st Cavalry of the 2nd Armored Division stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Both were in sleeping bags near Parker, Ariz., when a tank ran over them.

More than 100,000 men continued maneuvers to test U.S. military readiness, turning a huge desert area into a battleground for the fictional nations of Nezona and Calonia and their fight for control of the Colorado River.

78-Acre New Broadmoor Heights Subdivision Will Be Developed

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Russell T. Tutt, chairman of the El Pomar Investment Co., this morning announced the resubdivision of Broadmoor Heights at the base of Cheyenne Mountain.

Ninety lots priced from $8,000 to $14,950 were placed on the market.

Tutt said minimum building requirements would probably require at least a $35,000 house when building on a lot.

This would place a minimum price tag of $3.15 million on the development, excluding the price of lots.

"These lots are designed to appeal to persons who don't want lawns," Tutt said, terming them "mountain lots."

In describing the area, Tutt mentioned it would include graveled county roads, underground water, gas, electricity and telephone service to leave views unobstructed, individual sewage treatment units and water supplied by the Broadmoor Hotel Water and Power Co.

Tutt said the utility has spent $1 million in the past 2½ years to improve its facilities.

Broadmoor Heights is within Cheyenne Mountain School District 12 boundaries.

Requirements for building on the lots include: protective covenants, one dwelling per family per lot, no livestock including horses and R residence zoning. Dwellings must not contain less than 1,700 square feet.

A brochure said that "Certain local protective restrictions, conditions, covenants and reservations have been established

BROADMOOR DEVELOPMENT—The El Pomar Investment Co. today announced the resubdivision of this 78-acre tract at the base of Cheyenne Mountain, outlined in the triangle. The land was subdivided in 1930 but was sparsely developed.

Nikita Reported Slipping Among African States

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — Not even Nikita Khrushchev's staged tour of Egypt can obscure the fact that Russian influence in Africa, as in Asia, is waning.

Moscow might succeed for a time in bribing Egypt's President Nasser or Algeria's Ben Bella with lavish economic help. Soviet aid to the Aswan Dam alone stands at $400 million. But according to reports in the United Nations, ordinary Africans and Asians are schooled by Red China's propaganda increasingly consider the Russians as little better than white imperialists.

It is in the sphere of personal relations that the Chinese seem to have scored most heavily against the Russians.

"Soviet technicians in Asia and Africa tend to remain oblivious of the ordinary people around them," a neutralist Asian diplomat said. "The gloomy Russians have not yet forgotten Stalin's regime when it was dangerous for Soviet citizens to be friendly with foreigners.

"But the 'friendly Chinese' — diplomats and technicians — quickly identify themselves with the Asian and African man-in-the-street, the diplomat said.

It is indeed one of history's ironies that a major propaganda weapon long used by Moscow to browbeat the West has now been turned by the Red Chinese against the Red Russians themselves.

Mao Tse-tung's basic premise, of course, is the argument that the Russians are not true Marxists because they belong to the same color group as the Americans, British and other white imperialist nations. They exploit to the full the recent riots of African students in Russia, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia.

Peking is also distributing maps of Asia and Africa which mark with red torch symbols all areas where "just wars of liberation" are currently being fought against white colonialists. All of Russia's "independent" Asian republics are so dotted.

In vain did Moscow complain recently against Peking's efforts to exclude Russia from the Asian-African conference scheduled to be held next year in Bandung, Indonesia.

The Soviet Union accounts for 40 per cent of Asia's territory, Moscow's "Izvestia" said in a clustering editorial. "The Asian part of the Soviet Union is almost twice as big as the territory of all of China."

The Chinese who, like the Russians, consider themselves Marxist-Leninist dialecticians, were not impressed. Past masters in the art of Red doubletalk, they turned "Izvestia's" arguments against the Kremlin rulers themselves.

No doubt the Russians rule much of Asia, said China's Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi. "But they rule it as a white colonial power and not as a genuine Asian nation."

As Peking sees it, large parts of Soviet territory in Asia were seized by the czars from China in the 19th century. The treaties that sealed them were "unequal" and therefore unjust. Red Russia is merely continuing the policies of Czarist Russia.

All this may be a bitter pill to swallow for the Kremlin's self-proclaimed champion of the "oppressed" colonial people. But as Lenin, Khrushchev's ideological master, once said, "facts are stubborn things."

And all the facts, according to United Nations reports, indicate clearly that it is Red China and not Red Russia that is winning the battle for the minds and souls of Africans and Asians.

Airbase Lacks Proper Flag for Big Visit

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Luke Air Force Base had a traditional four-star flag for Gen. Maxwell Taylor's visit Tuesday, and Sharron Wynn has the nickname of "Betsy Ross."

Luke officials discovered Monday afternoon that they lacked the proper flag to greet the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They called on Mrs. Wynn, who runs a clothing specialty shop.

She started working on it at 5 in the afternoon and finished the 18-by-26 inch flag at 7 a.m. Tuesday, after sewing through the night.

"It is a great honor to do something for somebody important," Mrs. Wynn said. "I didn't even know it was Gen. Taylor."

Wheat, Moisture Conservation Field Day Topic

"What and Moisture Conservation" will be the topics of talks and tours at a field day June 12, at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Central Great Plains Field Station at Akron.

Final plans are being made for the field day which is open to all farmers, ranchers, and other interested persons from Colorado, western Kansas, western Nebraska, and eastern Wyoming.

Visitors will see more than 1,000 different varieties of winter wheat that were planted last fall, including some promising new varieties. More than 240 varieties and selections of winter barley will be shown.

One of the high points will be a demonstration of summer fallow methods — one of the most important practices in the dryland farming areas of the Great Plains region. The best types of cultivation and seedbed preparations to conserve moisture and control wind erosion will be discussed.

Researchers at the station will present facts on utilization of soil moisture by sorghums and forage crops, and illustrate recent test methods of using water runoff to grow forage sorghums.

Tour visitors will also see a planting test made with drill box samples from the surrounding area, and the weateher station where measurements are made and climate trends are compiled.

Highlights of the afternoon session will include a machinery exhibit and a talk on "Hybrid Wheat and the Wheat Improvement Program in Colorado," by Dr. Byrd Curtis, plant breeder and wheat specialist at Colorado State University, Fort Collins.

O. E. Hays, superintendant of the Akron Station, is in charge of field day arrangements.

Wheat, Moisture Conservation Field Day Topic

"What and Moisture Conservation" will be the topics of talks and tours at a field day June 12, at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Central Great Plains Field Station at Akron.

Final plans are being made for the field day which is open to all farmers, ranchers, and other interested persons from Colorado, western Kansas, western Nebraska, and eastern Wyoming.

Visitors will see more than 1,000 different varieties of winter wheat that were planted last fall, including some promising new varieties. More than 240 varieties and selections of winter barley will be shown.

One of the high points will be a demonstration of summer fallow methods — one of the most important practices in the dryland farming areas of the Great Plains region. The best types of cultivation and seedbed preparations to conserve moisture and control wind erosion will be discussed.

Researchers at the station will present facts on utilization of soil moisture by sorghums and forage crops, and illustrate recent test methods of using water runoff to grow forage sorghyms.

Tour visitors will also see a planting test made with drill box samples from the surrounding area, and the weateher station where measurements are made and climate trends are compiled.

Highlights of the afternoon session will include a machinery exhibit and a talk on "Hybrid Wheat and the Whest Improvement Program in Colorado," by Dr. Byrd Curtis, plant breeder and wheat specialist at Colorado State University, Fort Collins.

O. E. Hays, superintendant of the Akron Station, is in charge of field day arrangements.

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Bronx?"

"No Thonx."

Thus wrote Ogden Nash in 1931.

The county of the Bronx is celebrating its golden anniversary this year, however, and Dean Abraham Tauber of the Bronx Community College wrote to Nash asking him "to consider writing a little piece in your inimitable style, not to make us amends but to help us smile over our own foibles and yet to walk, with head held high and quickened step, the streets of the place in which so many fine people live and work and play."

Nash replied:

"I wrote those lines, 'The Bronx? No thonx.';

"I shudder to confess them.

City, Mo.

The 10 states are discouraging combine owners, truckers and workers from moving into harvest areas without previous commitments. At the same time they are urging harvest crews and workers to contact state employment service facilities for current information when moving from area to area. All states are making special efforts to provide harvest labor information.

Many will issue daily wheat harvest bulletins. Several will maintain temporary wheat harvesting offices. Current information will be available at local employment service offices and volunteer farm placement representatives. Ports of entry will also be sources of information.

The 10 states — Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Wyoming — expect to harvest about 30 million acres of wheat, slightly more than in 1963.

After the harvest season, job opportunities will be available for qualified farm hands but mostly for experienced tractor operators. In most cases, the supply of youth under 18 years of age is expected to be adequate and those looking for farm work are being encouraged to remain in their own states. Information about farm employment will be available at state employment service offices.

Individual summaries on expected men and equipment needs follow:

KANSAS — The demand this year, as in 1963, is for 4,000 out - of - state combines but no unattached trucks. A total of 7,500 out - of - area tractor, combine, and truck operators will be needed — slightly less than last year.

Temporary farm placement representatives will be employed in each county during the harvest. Daily bulletins will be issued. Losses due to dry weather and blowing soil have been extensive along the western edge of the state from Wallace and Logan counties south.

COLORADO — The normal movement of trucks and about 1,500 combines will be sufficient. In - migration to southeastern areas of Colorado is being discouraged.

There is no demand for workers in the southeastern harvest area. Elsewhere, the local supply of workers in addition to normal in - migration is expected to fill the demand.

Harvesting is expected to start about June 23 in the southeast. Daily wheat harvest bulletins will be issued and temporary harvest information offices will be established if needed. Combine crews and truck operators are required to stop at ports of entry, according to the Wheat Harvest Control Office.

NEBRASKA — The normal movement is expected to supply the 3,000 combines needed this

Wheat Producing States Specify 'No Help Wanted'

The nation's 10 major wheat producing states have hung up the "no extra help wanted" sign.

They expect to harvest this year's crop with virtually the same number of men and machines as they did last year, according to the 1964 Wheat Harvest forecast, "Men and Machines", issued by the U.S. Labor Department's Wheat Harvest Control Office in Kansas City, Mo.

The 10 states are discouraging combine owners, truckers, and workers from moving into harvest areas without previous commitments. At the same time they are urging harvest crews and workers to contact state employment service facilities for current information when moving from area to area. All states are making special efforts to provide harvest labor information.

Many will issue daily wheat harvest bulletins. Several will maintain temporary wheat harvesting offices. Current information will be available at local employment service offices and volunteer farm placement representatives. Ports of entry will also be sources of information.

The 10 states — Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Wyoming — expect to harvest about 30 million acres of wheat, slightly more than in 1963.

After the harvest season, job opportunities will be available for qualified farm hands but mostly for experienced tractor operators. In most cases, the supply of youth under 18 years of age is expected to be adequate and those looking for farm work are being encouraged to remain in their own states. Information about farm employment will be available at state employment service offices.

Individual summaries on expected men and equipment needs follow:

KANSAS — The demand this year, as in 1963, is for 4,000 out - of - state combines but no unattached trucks. A total of 7,500 out - of - area tractor, combine, and truck operators will be needed — slightly less than last year.

Temporary farm placement representatives will be employed in each county during the harvest. Daily bulletins will be issued. Losses due to dry weather and blowing soil have been extensive along the western edge of the state from Wallace and Logan counties south.

COLORADO — The normal movement of trucks and about 1,500 combines will be sufficient. In - migration to southeastern areas of Colorado is being discouraged.

There is no demand for workers in the southeastern harvest area. Elsewhere, the local supply of workers in addition to normal in - migration is expected to fill the demand.

Harvesting is expected to start about June 23 in the southeast. Daily wheat harvest bulletins will be issued and temporary harvest information offices will be established if needed. Combine crews and truck operators are required to stop at ports of entry, according to the Wheat Harvest Control Office.

NEBRASKA — The normal movement is expected to supply the 3,000 combines needed this year. The migration of unattached trucks to Nebraska is being discouraged. There is no need for additional workers as most operators are completely staffed before arrival in the state.

Current information will be available through Nebraska State Employment Service offices and temporary wheat harvest information points.

SOUTH DAKOTA — The demand for combines, trucks and workers will be the same as in 1963 and can be filled by normal movement and in - migration.

Temporary harvest offices may be established at Redfield, Gettysburg, and Miller to supplement the efforts of employment service offices and volunteer farm placement representatives. Combine ports of entry, usually at Oelrichs, Martin, Batesland, Olsonville, Wewela, Fairfax, and Yankton, will also have up - to -date harvest information.

NORTH DAKOTA — Out-of-state workers may be needed to replace local workers who will leave the harvest to take advantage of increased construction job opportunities. The normal movement of out - of - state combines should meet the needs for machinery.

Ports of entry will have information on combine and worker needs. Daily bulletins will be issued and available through employment service facilities in adjoining states.

WYOMING — The normal movement of men and machines should supply the demand in Wyoming.

Operators are being advised to telephone the nearest employment office from ports of entry for information on demand. Highway permit fees for out - of - state combines and trucks are usually $5 per unit, plus mileage if they weigh more than 7,000 pounds. Combination units may not be more than 15 feet in height or 70 feet long.

Anti-Poverty Package May Be Whipsawed

By TOM NOLAN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Although President Johnson's anti-poverty package emerged nearly intact from a House committee, it appears headed for a whipsaw position between Republicans and Roman Catholic Democrats in the weeks ahead.

GOP opposition is centered on the two largest items in the administration's package proposal—the $315 million it would provide training for some unemployed youths and children from impoverished families and the community action program which would help cities improve schools and health services.

With $315 million allowed for community action and $190 million for the job corps, the two items make up better than 50 per cent of the President's $962 million anti-poverty request in the 1965 fiscal year.

Democratic dissention hinges on the question of federal aid to church-supported schools and welfare projects. The Catholics, led by Rep. Hugh Carey, want to make sure that parochial schools have the same chance at qualifying for federal funds as public schools.

Under administration's proposal, only public schools would qualify for help in projects such as remedial reading courses and tutoring sessions.

House backers of the anti-poverty package have postponed their decision on the parochial school question—well aware that a choice to put it in the program could touch off the opposition of Southern Democrats, traditional believers in church-state separation.

Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., worked out the final anti-poverty package in closed-door caucuses of the Labor Committee's 19 Democrats. There are 12 Republicans on the committee.

Stung by what he terms "this Star Chamber action," one GOP member says: "We're not going to let them get away with this."

Earlier, Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., offered a counter anti-poverty measure providing for reduced federal spending and greater state participation.

This bill contains many of the remedial steps called for by President Johnson, but scuttles the job corps entirely as a duplication of federal retraining methods already under way.

To administer the community action program, President Johnson proposes the creation of the Office of Economic Opportunity under the direction of Sargent Shriver, present director of the Peace Corps.

The office would co-ordinate existing federal welfare programs and finance new proposals by city governments and private welfare agencies.

Frelinghuysen's version would require state agencies to administer the program, put up one-third of the costs after one year and one-half after two years. Department of Health, Education and Welfare funds would be distributed under an allocation formula based on state population, per-capita income and unemployment rates.

Committee Democrats partially yielded to Freylinghuysen by inserting this allocation formula—but it would only apply to 65 per cent of the $315 million allotted for community action.

Another 15 per cent of the funds would be reserved for research into the causes of poverty and the training of social workers. This would leave 20 per cent — $63 million — available to the Office of Economic Opportunity to use as it sees fit.

Built of the responsibility for running the program would remain in Washington, but the community action program stresses local initiative and effort.

"It's almost impossible for the government to get the various segments of a community to work together to solve their slum and health problems unless the government officials do. This can only be done by local people working on local levels."

Community action programs are nothing new. In the past several cities have sought their own educational and training opportunities on their own. The anti-poverty legislation would enable many more to do so.

Some successful examples from the past:

Four months after opening last fall, a Boston youth employment center had helped 400 young people find jobs. Three out of four of those placed came from families receiving relief.

In the Southwest, 35 Zuni Indians were given electronics training. Twelve days after completing the course, all were employed — at wages averaging double the 97 cents an hour they earned previously.

A program giving special tutoring to children from broken homes and low-ability students changed the dropout rate of a St. Paul, Minn., high school from highest in the city to second lowest.

In Jackson City, Fla., 49 persons of limited education were trained and are now employed as "cottage parents" for mentally retarded children. Eighty per cent of the trainees had been unemployed for two years or longer.

FEED GRAINS

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — By cooperating in the 1964 feed grain program, Macon County farmers have registered to divert 22,280 acres from feed grains this year.

It is a little higher than last years total with 173 more acres diverted in the county could reach $794,488 this year, compared with $540,866 last year.

The changes in the 1964 program make it possible for a farmer to divert a larger portion of corn base from production.

House backers of the anti-poverty package have postponed their decision on the parochial school question—well aware that a choice to put it in the program could touch off the opposition of Southern Democrats, traditional believers in church-state separation.

Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., worked out the final anti-poverty package in closed-door caucuses of the Labor Committee's 19 Democrats. There are 12 Republicans on the committee.

Sizing by what he terms "this Star Chamber action," one GOP member says "We're not going to let them get away with this."

Earlier, Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., offered a counter anti-poverty measure providing for reduced federal spending and greater state participation.

This bill contains many of the remedial steps called for by President Johnson, but scuttles the job corps entirely as a duplication of federal retraining methods already under way.

To administer the community action program, President Johnson proposes the creation of the Office of Economic Opportunity under the direction of Sargent Shriver, present director of the Peace Corps.

The office would co-ordinate existing federal welfare programs and finance new programs by city governments and private welfare agencies.

Frelinghuysen's version would require state agencies to administer the program, put up one-third of the costs after one year and one-half after two years. Department of Health, Education and Welfare funds would be distributed under an allocation formula based on state population, per-capita income and unemployment rates.

Committee Democrats partially yielded to Freylinghuysen by inserting this allocation formula—but it would only apply to 65 per cent of the $315 million allotted for community action.

Another 15 per cent of the funds would be reserved for research into the causes of poverty and the training of social workers. This would leave 20 per cent — $63 million — available to the Office of Economic Opportunity to use as it sees fit.

Bulk of the responsibility for running the program would remain in Washington, but the community action program stresses local initiative and effort.

"It's almost impossible for the government to get the various segments of a community to work together to solve their school, slum and health problems," says one government official. "This can only be done by local people working on local levels."

Community action programs are nothing new. In the past, several cities have sought to expand educational and training opportunities on their own. The anti-poverty legislation would enable many more to do so.

Some successful examples from the past:

Four months after opening last fall, a Boston youth employment center had helped 400 young people find jobs. Three out of four of those placed came from families receiving relief.

In the Southwest, 35 Zuni Indians were given electronics training. Twelve days after completing the course, all were employed — at wages averaging double the $7 cents an hour they earned previously.

A program giving special tutoring to children from broken homes and low-ability students changed the dropout rate of a St Paul, Minn., high school from highest in the city to second lowest.

In Jackson City, Fla., 49 persons of limited education were trained and are now employed as "vottage parents" for mentally retarded children. Eighty per cent of the trainees had been unemployed for two years or longer.

FEED GRAINS

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — By cooperating in the 1964 feed grain program, Macon County farmers have registered to divert 22,280 acres from feed grains this year.

It is a little higher than last years total with 173 more acres diverted in the county could reach 3794.468 this year, compared with $540.866 last year.

The changes in the 1964 program make it possible for a farmer to divert a larger portion of corn base from production.

Munich Tries to Make Up For Brutalities of Hitler

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

MUNICH (NEA) — Munich, the city where the Hitler got his start, is atoning for the crimes which Hitler committed against the Jews.

For one thing, Munich is doing its best to make those Jews who have returned to live here feel at home. "We regard this as a challenge to the new German democracy," explains Dr. Anton Fingerle, superintendent of Munich's schools.

As early as 1948 Munich took the lead in forming the first Christian - Jewish association in West Germany. Since then, 36 chapters of the association have sprung up.

Munich has pioneered also in the establishment of cultural exchanges with Israel. Bubbling with enthusiasm the Lord Mayor of Munich, Dr. Vogel, has just returned from a tour of the Zionist state, and he has recommended that Munich sends as a challenge to the new German democracy," explains Dr. groups of teachers and students of Munich's schools to Israel twice a year on an exchange basis.

This is in addition to the scholarships which Munich already offers to Israelis, particularly to those studying in social welfare fields.

There were half a million Jews in the German Reich in 1933. Some 270,000 emigrated; 130,000 were killed. Today only 30,000 are left in the Federal Republic.

Of this pitiful remnant, approximately one - sixth live in Munich, which thus has the largest Jewish population of any West German city.

In his office in Munich's posh Prinzregenten Platz, Fingerle explained what Munich is doing to combat the anti - Semitism which lingers as a hangover from the Nazi regime.

Early in March each year Munich sponsors a Brotherhood Week during which the unity of all religions and races is underscored by means of lectures, exhibits, public discussion.

The Christian-Jewish association, headed by a Jew as co-chairman, also sponsors a week-end conference on this subject in the autumn.

The teaching of contemporary history in the schools is one of the difficulties with which Fingerle has to contend. For one Hitler's regime are inadequate. Very few of them even mention the Nazi extermination of the Jews.

To compensate, Munich has invited Professor Werner J. Cahnman of Rutgers University, a native German, to supervise and make a special study of anti-Semitism with the view of publishing his findings in book form. The expelled Jews themselves present special problems, largely of a psychological nature.

Two-thirds of the travelers are non-German Jews, mainly refugees from Eastern Europe who have been driven ironically to seek refuge in Germany by a new, postwar wave of anti-Semitism behind the Iron Curtain.

They do not feel at home here, their background and culture being utterly different from those of the former German Jewish community.

Of the 9,000 German Jews who have returned since the war many feel just as uncomfortable. Almost every returning Jew keeps his adopted nationality, and owns two passports," wrote Der Spiegel, the German news weekly.

They are sensitive to the slightest manifestation of anti-Semitism. "Our bags are always packed," the returnees comment. The remark is borne out by the provisional nature of their homes.

As a result, the present Jewish contribution to national life is insignificant. Before Hitler, this contribution was rich and varied. For example, before 1933 the Jewish community provided 11 out of 46 German Nobel prize-winners.

Nor is the younger generation any better integrated in Germany than its elders. In a recent Frankfurt opinion poll more than 80 per cent of the young Jews expressed a desire to emigrate.

Many young Jews have refused to do their national service, which is their constitutional right. "How can I enlist as long as there are officers who served under the Nazis?" one of them is reported to have asked the selection board.

Not all returned Jews share this gloomy outlook. Dr. Theodor W. Adorno, who emigrated to Los Angeles when Hitler came to power, returned here in 1961 and is now professor of sociology at Frankfurt University.

"I returned to Germany because it was the scene of my childhood," Adorno declares. "I did not underestimate the risks involved, but I have not regretted my decision."

A close associate of Adorno is Professor Max Horkheimer, who likewise has returned to Germany from America.

"I came back in memory of the men who resisted the murderous Nazi regime," the professor explained. "I have in mind especially those of my non-Jewish students who risked their lives. I believe that there will be some like them in future generations as well."

Back-to-School Fashions Area Already Made

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although many schoolboys are just getting out for the summer, a horde of 4,000 buyers from various stores throughout the country already have made their fall back-to-school selections in New York.

The consensus in the 2 to 12 age group is that back-to-school clothes will be lighter and brighter. Some of the highlights: the return of corduroy suits, lined rainshirts in striped slicker cloth hanging out teen-age style and knickers for the ski slopes.

A number of men's and boys' wear associations including the Boys Apparel and Furnishers Manufacturers Association (BAMA) got together several months ago to decide what was in for the future for us and the answer was "Indian country colors."

Almost every manufacturer emphasized some strong colors as prairie gold, Indian clay, canyon copper, quicksilver and flint the last two being a light and a medium shade of gray. The same colors were selected for men's wear for fall, too.

The colors are the same, used for background and emphasis but the boldness of design, the occasional sharp suit and the universality slim pants separated the men from the boys. Even a Boy Scout model who was a husky six-feet-two had a definite teen-age look.

One of the hits of the showings was parkas with the pile on the outside—one with silver and black pile so long it looked like lynx. Other hits were western-style pants with wide bell loops, an "LBJ look" in some shirts and jackets (plus the LBJ hat) and parkas with linings that matched the sweaters worn underneath.

The most notable feature was the layered look — a turtle neck or rib sport under a shirt or a V-neck sweater, a shirt under the sweater, the sweater under a jacket with the emphasis on "lots" and lots in dozens of combinations.

Other coats ran from elegant private eye coats with belts through ski parkas and corduroy seen in combinations with suede and leather. The cuts ran from the short "British warm" to knee length. There also was the coated "Slicker look."

The ski look dominated sports wear. This was a clean, unfussy look, from the colorful pants to the smooth knit sweaters. Many jackets were reversible from quilt to plain or dull to pile and most manufacturers seemed to be competing on which one could hide the hood the best — often in a trim, standing collar. One ski outfit featured a cape.

Teens were definitely moving back to belt loops and many of the slacks shown were with western pockets and wide belt loops—another part of a general trend to a western look. In this connection Levi Strauss featured "Sta - Prest" permanently creased cotton slacks, and the J. P. Stevens & Co. fabric company announced development of permanent creased cottons and cotton blends to be introduced later.

In the field of suits there were several schools of thought. There were sharp, traffic-stopping avant garde jackets with patched pockets. One in gray had black trim on the lapels and pockets, a two-button model with a sharply curved jacket front. Many teen-agers were reported wearing traditional Ivy League suits — but with slim pants. One suit was a British-influence fitted model.

Shirts were mostly striped, shown with bold-striped ties—a challenge to the teen-ager to match them up correctly. Ties were generally narrow. The newest fad: teen-agers in Virginia have begun carrying tightly furled umbrellas and manufacturers think that in a few years no teen-ager would be seen without one.

WILL HE SUCCEED NEHRU—India's Minister of Defense Y. B. Chavan, who has been prominently mentioned as a successor to the late Premier of India, Pandit Nehru, is shown as he was guided on a tour Tuesday of North American Air Defense Command facilities by Gen. John Gerhart, NORAD Commander in Chief. Upon news of the death of Nehru, Chavan departed Colorado Springs immediately this morning, for return to the capital of India.

India's Leader Nehru Dies of Sudden Stroke

tributed his death to "heart attack and shock."

The official gave this report of Nehru's last hours:

After returning to New Delhi Tuesday night from a three-day holiday in the mountain resort of Dehra Dun, Nehru went to bed at 11 p.m. as usual in his second floor bedroom. He seemed normal and cheerful.

Upon arising this morning, Nehru acted and apparently felt as usual. But within minutes he was stricken and immediately lapsed into unconsciousness. He never regained consciousness.

Physicians who had lived in the prime minister's mansion since his first stroke quickly administered oxygen and other specialists hurried to the mansion. But at 11:45, word spread through the house that "he is sinking."

At 1:30 p.m., Nehru's condition was termed "desperate and critical," and he died at 2 p.m.

Nehru was born an aristocrat —a Kashmiri Brahmin, or the highest of the high among Hindus. But Gandhi's persuasion and his own compassion for his oppressed countrymen under British rule drove Nehru and his whole family into the independence movement. It meant years in British jails for him and his father, the wealthy lawyer Motilal Nehru, and others in the family.

The boy raised in the lap of luxury — indoor and outdoor swimming pools at home, ponies to ride, and a British education —often disagreed with the mystic and visionary Mahandas Gandhi but bowed to Gandhi's will to attain the goal of independence, reached in mid-August 1947.

By then Gandhi's mission was over for all practical purposes and Nehru undertook the perhaps even more arduous task of trying to make a democracy of as curious a crazy quilt pattern of ex-colonial areas, princedoms and satrapies as the world has known — present population about 470 million.

As an elder statesman Gandhi lasted less than six months—until his assassination Jan. 30, 1948 — and Nehru then became sole leader.

He believed neither capitalism nor socialism alone would work for India, and he instituted a form of state socialism for heavy industry and utilities, accepting foreign aid where he could get it for these and sponsoring private works where possible.

Nehru steered a careful but perilous course in world politics and won denunciations from both sides of the cold war as well as praise and cooperation from the nonaligned, or neutral, nations.

Much of the West's dissatisfaction with Nehru resulted from the way his foreign policy was dealt out at the United Nations and elsewhere by his venomous roving defense minister, V. K. Krishna Menon. Menon, a leftist anti-Westerner, fell from grace through lack of preparedness for the Chinese invasion of India in 1962.

Menon was the high-riding defense minister a year earlier when India invaded and seized the Portuguese west coast enclaves of Goa, Damao and Diu after failing to persuade the Portuguese they should leave the subcontinent as the British and French had done. For this exploit Nehru was widely criticized as being inconsistent with his preachments but he claimed India had no alternative in regard to foreign rule.

Pakistan, the Moslem nation born of the 1947 independence and the British-drawn partition of the subcontinent, was Nehru's greatest single continuing political problem until the 1962 Chinese invasion. But full-scale war between India and Pakistan was averted. Their closest, and continuing, confrontation of arms is in Kashmir, the last prize in the independence grab bag, where their armies are separated by a U.N. truce line.

Nehru had been in waning health for more than two years. In March 1962 he was struck by prostate trouble, his first serious illness after advancing into old age with unusual bounce and vigor. He recovered, but in the ensuing months his appearance aged rapidly.

The 1962 Chinese invasion acted as a restorative, and he responded with his old vigor. But after the one-month undeclared war ended, his energy began to ebb again.

Nehru's performance became very uneven. Some visitors found him lucid and energetic. But he dozed off on other visitors and occasionally at public functions. Sometimes he walked erect. More often he hobbled along, head bent.

A stroke on Jan. 7 partially paralyzed his left side. He improved slowly, and in recent weeks had resumed some government activities, including appearances in Parliament.

Nehru died without designating a political heir, so far as is known.

When he suffered his first stroke, he brought Lal Bahadur Shastri back into the government as minister without portfolio and the government's spokesman in parliament. Shastri, 59, then was viewed as deputy prime minister in effect and Nehru's heir apparent.

But after the prime minister's partial recovery and his return to Parliament, Ahastri's authority diminished and a leadership vacuum developed. Nehru still was not physically able to carry out his duties fully but was unwilling to delegate authority for major decisions or designate an heir.

Last Friday, at his first news conference since his stroke, Nehru brushed aside a question about his possible successor. "My lifetime is not ending," he said.

Nehru Stood as National Symbol for Troubled India

EDITOR'S NOTE—Henry S. Bradsher was an Associated Press correspondent in New Delhi from 1959 until early this year. Now stationed in Moscow, he discusses what lies ahead for India after the death of Prime Minister Nehru.

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — He was India.

To the ill clad man in the village, where most of India's 470 million people live, and to the man in the street on the other side of the world he was the national symbol.

Without him, without the combination of dreamy idealism and tough politician, plus the common touch of Jawaharlal Nehru, what will India be?

There are many problems, including how to hold together people so diverse they speak more than a dozen languages; how to maintain the effectiveness of disparate elements in his ruling political party, the Indian National Congress; how to make heard in all corners of India the relatively unknown voice of the successor.

Nehru had the prestige that enabled him to unite and lead India from a position virtually above politics.

A quarter - century of prominence in the struggle against British rule gave him the authority to run independent India as prime minister.

Nehru once said his role would remain unique because never again would India provide such a long period of development for a young leader and then a long period of rule.

The national unity that Nehru's dominance gave to India has already begun to weaken.

Greater use of regional languages rather than English, still the language of the central government, is a factor. So is the increasing independence of the Congress party's state leaders from the national organization.

Nehru built against disunity. This has been the most important element in the survival of India as an independent nation for this long, allowing a feeling of nationhood to grow.

Regional separatist parties that challenged Nehru were attacked, weakened, but not completely eliminated.

Growing economic centralization is another basic influence against disunity. The effect of Nehru's five-year plans has been to tie India together.

These factors surive him. Political unity, however, may go quickly.

The Congress party of Mohandas Gandhi and of Nehru was a collection of all who fought for independence regardless of ideology. After independence some left it for Communist and Socialist parties.

Nehru, a Socialist at heart, stayed with the bulk of the party that had the conservatism of its members' origins and of its big business financing.

Almost singlehandedly Nehru dedicated the party to a mildly Socialist program, grating on the instincts of the many conservative members.

Without Nehru's vote - getting magic, conservative parties are likely to grow. Unstable minority governments lacking power or determination to tackle India's problems are the danger of the future.

Much will depend upon the personal grip that the new prime minister can establish. The effect of Nehru's actions for the last decade has been to reduce the personal power of others.

Nehru often said he was primarily interested in establishing democracy in India. He found democracy inconsistent with selection of an heir. Nehru said it was not right for him to groom a successor.

In the view of some observers he went to the opposite extreme of deliberately cutting down those who rose toward the position of a successor.

He was like a great banyan tree in whose shade nothing could grow, said one prominent politician.

The constitution is vague on the allocation of power between president and prime minister but Nehru exercised all power. A strong politician in the presidency now might assert himself.

The president is Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, a philosopher whom Nehru brought into government. By nature Radhakrishnan is more likely to become important as a moderating influence and giver of advice rather than an actual maker of policies.

The eventual roles of the presidency and the prime ministership will take time to develop as other persons fill these jobs.

Whoever they are, no one can fill Nehru's shoes. No one can so easily put down problems with the force of his personality and unquestioned authority.

So India's problems can be expected to grow.

U.N. Protection Is Requested for Cambodia Border council, which is debating Cambodia's charge that the United States and South Viet Nam have violated its frontier, attacked Cambodian border villages and killed civilians.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson pressed again Tuesday for a U.N. force to keep watch over the border, despite opposition from France and Cambodia.

Stevenson said he was puzzled why France had expressed opposition to putting the United Nations into the Southeast Asian picture.

U.N. Secretary - General U Thant told a news conference in Ottawa he doubted the United Nations could undertake any tasks at this time in Southeast Asia.

He said the Cambodian issue was primarily a political problem and political solutions in accord with the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina appeared more advisable.

French Ambassador Roger Seydoux told the council Monday the border problem should be left to the International Control Commission set up by the Geneva agreement.

Stevenson opposed this, declaring that "the whole sad story" of commissions in Cambodia, Viet Nam and Laos shows that by the nature of their makeup they are incapable of decisive action. Commission members are Canada, India and Communist Poland.

The debate on Cambodia was sidetracked Tuesday while Stevenson and Soviet delegate Nikolai T. Federenko argued over a remark by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona about use of atomic weapons in Viet Nam.

Goldwater, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said in a television interview Sunday that several methods had been suggested for cutting Communist jungle supply lines into South Viet Nam. One, he said, was defoliation of the forest by low-yield atomic weapons so supply trails could be spotted.

Federenko said there was world concern over "this cannibalistic appeal by the head of the so - called madmen." He asked Stevenson whether Goldwater's remarks reflected U.S. policy.

Stevenson replied that American policy was "made and executed by the executive branch and not by Senator Goldwater or any other seatnaor."

Goldwater told a news conference in San Diego, Calif., his position had been misrepresented. He said he does not favor the use of nuclear weapons to strip foliage or cut supply lines in Viet Nam.

"It could be done, but I don't think it should be done," Goldwater said. He said the suggestion was not his own but was advanced by some military men.

Attorney Protests Ruling in Larceny Case Trial Here

"You will cross - examine under the conditions under which this statement was taken period," District Judge David W. Enoch firmly told defending attorney Larry Hecox in court late Tuesday.

Hecox is representing Frank Antonio Rivera, 36, YMCA, on trial for larceny of the person.

A few seconds before the Judge's remark Hecox had said "I must take issue," as he protested a court ruling concerning his method of cross examination. The point of contention was the admissability of a signed statement made by the defendant admtting his participation in the crime.

Hecox objected to the statement being admitted as evidence. His objection was overruled however, and the jury allowed to read the statement.

Rivera is accused of stealing a wallet containing $30 from Esquipuila Blea aged 66, April 19.

Police Sgt. John C. Orwig who took the statement from the defendant testified he interrogated Rivera April 21 and April 22.

The victim, Blea, also took the stand and answered questions through an interpreter. He said he had been at the Court House Cafe the night of the alleged incident and when he came out someone had put an arm round his neck from the back throwing nim to the ground and stealing his wallet. He also told the court he saw the defendant running off with the wallet in his hand.

An eye - witness to the episode, Mrs. Shirley Steinfeld also said she was outside the cafe at the time and saw Rivera whom she identified in court, take the wallet and escape.

The state represented by Deputy District Attorney Charles West rested its case at 5:30 p.m. and the jury re - convened this morning at nine. It is expected the case will go to the jury late this afternoon.

Two Principals in Police Burglaries Granted Paroles

CANON CITY (UPI)— Two principals in the 1960-61 Denver police burglary have been granted parole by the State Parole Board, it was revealed Tuesday.

The two former policemen, Keith L. Hutton, 42, and Gerald L. Sanford, 29, will be released July 16, according to State Parole Director Edward Grout.

Sanford's stiff 10- to 32-year term meted out by Judge George McNamara in Denver in July, 1961, was credited with jogging memories and loosening tongues to the extent that much of the scandal was cleared up within three months.

Sanford was convicted of taking $7,521 in cash and jewelry from a lower downtown pawn shop. Dist. Atty. Bert M. Keating of Denver asked in October, 1961, that Sanford's sentence be reduced because of his subsequent cooperation in prosecuting other "blurglars in blue," but McNamara refused.

Hutton was convicted in July, 1961, of taking part in a safe-cracking at a Denver restaurant that netted $3,425. Hutton was sentenced to six to 20 years and subsequently admitted 54 burglaries during a 3-year period.

Former Gov. Steve McNichols commited the sentences of both men to five to 10 years.

Only three other convicted police-burglars remain in prison. They are Bobbie Whaley, 35; Stanley E. McClure, 38, and Robert M. Roberts, 42. Roberts was sheriff of Adams County when he was convicted of helping the Denver burglars expand into the suburbs.

Whaley and McClure will be eligible for parole at the board's June meeting and Roberts becomes eligible Sept. 14.

St. Louis picked up the 20-year-old Williams for the $8,000 "first year" player waiver price and sent him to Winnipeg.

Informed American sources said today U.S. reconnaissance flights over Laos may continue indefinitely, despite Communist protests. They said photoreconnaissance has recorded Red troop movements so accurately it has been possible sometimes even to determine the type of truck being used in supply convoys.

Souvanna's statement on military aid was a response to an assemblyman's question.

"I have asked many countries for aid for the army," the premier said. "I have not asked for aid from the Russians, but the (Soviet) ambassador called on me this morning and I told him we are short of army supplies. I shall send him a letter (requesting military aid) this afternoon."

India's Leader Nehru Dies of Sudden Stroke

tributed his death to "heart attack and shock."

The official gave this report of Nehru's last hours:

After returning to New Delhi Tuesday night from a three-day holiday in the mountain resort of Dehra Dun, Nehru went to bed at 11 p.m. as usual in his second floor bedroom. He seemed normal and cheerful.

Upon arising this morning, Nehru acted and apparently felt as usual. But within minutes he was stricken and immediately lapsed into unconsciousness. He never regained consciousness.

Physicians who had lived in the prime minister's mansion since his first stroke quickly administered oxygen and other specialists hurried to the mansion. But at 11:45, word spread through the house that "he is sinking."

At 1:30 p.m., Nehru's condition was termed "desperate and critical," and he died at 2 p.m.

Nehru was born an aristocrat—a Kashmiri Brahmin, or the highest of the high among Hindus. But Gandhi's persuasion and his own compassion for his oppressed countrymen under British rule drove Nehru and his whole family into the independence movement. It meant years in British jails for him and his father, the wealthy lawyer Motilal Nehru, and others in the family.

The boy raised in the lap of luxury — indoor and outdoor swimming pools at home, ponies to ride, and a British education —often disagreed with the mystic and visionary Mahandas Gandhi but bowed to Gandhi's will to attain the goal of independence, reached in mid-August 1947.

By then Gandhi's mission was over for all practical purposes and Nehru undertook the perhaps even more arduous task of trying to make a democracy of as curious a crazy quilt pattern of ex-colonial areas, princedoms and satrapies as the world has known — present population about 470 million.

As an elder statesman Gandhi lasted less than six months—until his assassination Jan. 30, 1948 — and Nehru then became sole leader.

He believed neither capitalism nor socialism alone would work for India, and he instituted a form of state socialism for heavy industry and utilities, accepting foreign aid where he could get it for these and sponsoring private works where possible.

Nehru steered a careful but perilous course in world politics and won denunciations from both sides of the cold war as well as praise and cooperation from the nonaligned, or neutral, nations.

Much of the West's dissatisfaction with Nehru resulted from the way his foreign policy was dealt out at the United Nations and elsewhere by his venomous roving defense minister, V. K. Krishna Menon. Menon, a leftist anti-Westerner, fell from grace through lack of preparedness for the Chinese invasion of India in 1962.

Menon was the high-riding defense minister a year earlier when India invaded and seized the Portuguese west coast enclaves of Goa, Damao and Diu after failing to persuade the Portuguese they should leave the subcontinent as the British and French had done. For this exploit Nehru was widely criticized as being inconsistent with his preachments but he claimed India had no alternative in regard to foreign rule.

Pakistan, the Moslem nation born of the 1947 independence and the British-drawn partition of the subcontinent, was Nehru's greatest single continuing political problem until the 1962 Chinese invasion. But full-scale war between India and Pakistan was averted. Their closest, and continuing, confrontation of arms is in Kashmir, the last prize in the independence grab bag, where their armies are separated by a U.N. truce line.

Nehru had been in waning health for more than two years. In March 1962 he was struck by prostate trouble, his first serious illness after advancing into old age with unusual bounce and vigor. He recovered, but in the ensuing months his appearance aged rapidly.

The 1962 Chinese invasion acted as a restorative, and he responded with his old vigor. But after the one-month undeclared war ended, his energy began to ebb again.

Nehru's performance became very uneven. Some visitors found him lucid and energetic. But he dozed off on other visitors and occasionally at public functions. Sometimes he walked erect. More often he hobbled along, head bent.

A stroke on Jan. 7 partially paralyzed his left side. He improved slowly, and in recent weeks had resumed some government activities, including appearances in Parliament.

Nehru died without designating a political heir, so far as is known.

When he suffered his first stroke, he brought Lal Bahadur Shastri back into the government as minister without portfolio and the government's spokesman in parliament. Shastri, 59, then was viewed as deputy prime minister in effect and Nehru's heir apparent.

But after the prime minister's partial recovery and his return to Parliament, Ahastri's authority diminished and a leadership vacuum developed. Nehru still was not physically able to carry out his duties fully but was unwilling to delegate authority for major decisions or designate an heir.

Last Friday, at his first news conference since his stroke, Nehru brushed aside a question about his possible successor. "My lifetime is not ending," he said.

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — He was India.

To the ill clad man in the village, where most of India's 470 million people live, and to the man in the street on the other side of the world he was the national symbol.

Without him, without the combination of dreamy idealism and tough politician, plus the common touch of Jawaharlal Nehru, what will India be?

There are many problems, including how to hold together people so diverse they speak more than a dozen languages; how to maintain the effectiveness of disparate elements in his ruling political party, the Indian National Congress; how to make heard in all corners of India the relatively unknown voice of the successor.

Nehru had the prestige that enabled him to unite and lead India from a position virtually above politics.

A quarter - century of prominence in the struggle against British rule gave him the authority to run independent India as prime minister.

Nehru once said his role would remain unique because never again would India provide such a long period of development for a young leader and then a long period of rule.

The national unity that Nehru's dominance gave to India has already begun to weaken.

Greater use of regional languages rather than English, still the language of the central government, is a factor. So is the increasing independence of the Congress party's state leaders from the national organization.

Nehru built against disunity. This has been the most important element in the survival of India as an independent nation for this long, allowing a feeling of nationhood to grow.

Regional separatist parties that challenged Nehru were attacked, weakened, but not completely eliminated.

Growing economic centralization is another basic influence against disunity. The effect of these factors surive him. Political unity, however, may go quickly.

The Congress party of Mohandas Gandhi and of Nehru was a collection of all who fought for independence regardless of ideology. After independence some left it for Communist and Socialist parties.

Nehru, a Socialist at heart, stayed with the bulk of the party that had the conservatism of its members' origins and of its big business financing.

Almost singlehandedly Nehru dedicated the party to a mildly Socialist program, grating on the instincts of the many conservative members.

Without Nehru's vote - getting magic, conservative parties are likely to grow. Unstable minority governments lacking power or determination to tackle India's problems are the danger of the future.

Much will depend upon the personal grip that the new prime minister can establish. The effect of Nehru's actions for the last decade has been to reduce the personal power of others.

Nehru often said he was primarily interested in establishing democracy in India. He found democracy inconsistent with selection of an heir. Nehru said it was not right for him to groom a successor.

In the view of some observers he went to the opposite extreme of deliberately cutting down those who rose toward the position of a successor.

He was like a great banyan tree in whose shade nothing could grow, said one prominent politician.

The constitution is vague on the allocation of power between president and prime minister but Nehru exercised all power. A strong politician in the presidency now might assert himself.

The president is Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, a philosopher whom Nehru brought into government. By nature Radhakrishnan is more likely to become important as a moderating influence and giver of advice rather than an actual maker of policies.

The eventual roles of the presidency and the prime ministership will take time to develop as other persons fill these jobs.

Whoever they are, no one can fill Nehru's shoes. No one can so easily put down problems with the force of his personality and unquestioned authority.

So India's problems can be expected to grow.

Attorney Protests Ruling in Larceny Case Trial Here

"You will cross - examine under the conditions under which this statement was taken period," District Judge David W. Enoch firmly told defending attorney Larry Hecox in court late Tuesday.

Hecox is representing Frank Antonio Rivera, 36, YMCA, on trial for larceny of the person.

A few seconds before the Judge's remark Hecox had said "I must take issue," as he protested a court ruling concerning his method of cross examination. The point of contention was the admissability of a signed statement made by the defendant admtting his participation in the crime.

Hecox objected to the statement being admitted as evidence. His objection was overruled however, and the jury allowed to read the statement.

Rivera is accused of stealing a wallet containing $30 from Esquipuila Blea aged 66, April 19.

Police Sgt. John C. Orwig who took the statement from the defendant testified he interrogated Rivera April 21 and April 22.

The victim, Blea, also took the stand and answered questions through an interpreter. He said he had been at the Court House Cafe the night of the alleged incident and when he came out someone had put an arm round his neck from the back throwing him to the ground and stealing his wallet. He also told the court he saw the defendant running off with the wallet in his hand.

An eye - witness to the episode, Mrs. Shirley Steinfeld also said she was outside the cafe at the time and saw Rivera whom she identified in court, take the wallet and escape.

The state represented by Deputy District Attorney Charles West rested its case at 5:30 p.m. and the jury re - convened this morning at nine. It is expected the case will go to the jury late this afternoon.

Two Principals in Police Burglaries Granted Paroles

CANON CITY (UPI)— Two principals in the 1960-61 Denver police burglary have been granted parole by the State Parole Board, it was revealed Tuesday.

The two former policemen, Keith L. Hutton, 42, and Gerald L. Sanford, 29, will be released July 16, according to State Parole Director Edward Grout.

Sanford's stiff 10- to 32-year term meted out by Judge George McNamara in Denver in July, 1961, was credited with jogging memories and loosening tongues to the extent that much of the scandal was cleared up within three months.

Sanford was convicted of taking $7,521 in cash and jewelry from a lower downtown pawn shop. Dist. Atty. Bert M. Keating of Denver asked in October, 1961, that Sanford's sentence be reduced because of his subsequent cooperation in prosecuting other "blurglars in blue," but McNamara refused.

Hutton was convicted in July, 1961, of taking part in a safe-cracking at a Denver restaurant that netted $3,425. Hutton was sentenced to six to 20 years and subsequently admitted 54 burglaries during a 3-year period.

Former Gov. Steve McNichols commited the sentences of both men to five to 10 years.

Only three other convicted police-burglars remain in prison. They are Bobbie Whaley, 35; Stanley E. McClure, 38, and Robert M. Roberts, 42. Roberts was sheriff of Adams County when he was convicted of helping the Denver burglars expand into the suburbs.

Whaley and McClure will be eligible for parole at the board's June meeting and Roberts becomes eligible Sept. 14.

"Together we shall drive out the lackeys of Red Chinese imperialism who are invading South Viet Nam after having imposed the yoke of party rule on the whole territory of North Viet Nam," he said.

The Colts did not disclose how much they paid for the 29-year-old Roberts. He was bought from the Colts' Oklahoma City farm team.

St. Louis picked up the 29-year-old Williams for the $8,000 "first year" player waiver price and sent him to Winnipeg.

Roberts was batting .382 for Oklahoma City at the time of purchase. He has been in the minor leagues nearly 12 years. Roberts was expected to be playing for Houston immediately.

Informed American sources said today U.S. reconnaissance flights over Laos may continue indefinitely, despite Communist protests. They said photo-reconnaissance has recorded Red troop movements so accurately it has been possible sometimes even to determine the type of truck being used in supply convoys.

Souvanna's statement on military aid was a response to an assemblyman's question.

"I have asked many countries for aid for the army," the premier said. "I have not asked for aid from the Russians, but the (Soviet) ambassador called on me this morning and I told him we are short of army supplies. I shall send him a letter (requesting military aid) this afternoon."

Nephew of Ike Is on Staff of Sen. Goldwater

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rolling stone who has gathered moss is Earl Eisenhower Jr., 28, handsome nephew of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Moreover, he has stopped rolling, though only temporarily.

Young Eisenhower is now an assistant in the public relations department at Sen. Barry Goldwater's campaign headquarters.

What with various migrations by his parents, two hitches in the Army and a couple more in universities, young Eisenhower figures: "In ten years I have had 25 changes of address."

That qualifies him as a rolling stone. What about the moss?

The moss is a philosophy—a conviction that every man is an individual and ought to be let alone as much as possible.

"A fellow ought to be free to go to hell in a wheelbarrow if he wants to," says this soft-spoken, dark-haired Eisenhower.

Earl's father, brother of the former president, left Abilene, Kan. years ago and earned a degree in electrical engineering at the University of Washington. He worked for a Pennsylvania power company and is now a public relations man for a chain of suburban newspapers outside Chicago.

Between Army hitches, young Earl got in two years at Pennsylvania State University and most recently has been studying Russian affairs at Georgetown University.

Why is he supporting Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination?

"All the Eisenhowers are quite individual figures," he said. "I take after them. We've got that stubborn streak of individualism.

"My opinions may not always be right, but at least they are my own."

Young Eisenhower is a bachelor. The question naturally arose whether he has a steady girl friend. The answer is negative.

His consuming ambition, he said, is to see the world before settling down.

Common Market Workers Shop For Best Jobs

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

BRUSSELS (NEA) —Dusseldorf, West Germany, has suddenly blossomed out with signs reading "trattoria" (cafe) and "albergo" (hotel) for the benefit of Italians who have migrated to that rich Ruhr city.

In Frankfurt it is not uncommon to hear Spanish, Greek, and even the Slavic languaged spoken on the street. An Italian village, complete with its own school, has sprung up on the edge of the coal pits in Luxemburg.

These are some of the results of the vast migration of workers now in progress in the six countries—France, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Luxemburg and Italy—that comprise the European Economic Community, or Common Market as it is better known.

The population shifts are also giving rise to new problems. Every big European population center now has its tragic stories of broken homes and wives left behind by workers in their haste to migrate to greener pastures. In some German cities, there have been clashes between migrants and elements of the local population.

There is also fear that new ghettoes may form in the bigger cities as a result of the migratory workers' habits of keeping to themselves. Many of he migrants, too, are homesick, and those from the Mediterranean suffer from the colder northern climates.

Despite the migration, there is still an unslaked demand for imported labor in some Common Market countries. In West Germany, alone, 559,000 jobs are going begging for want of takers, while in Holland the number of unfilled jobs stands at 114,000.

To ease this situation, the EEC has just adopted new regulations designed to ease the flow of workers, and to improve their living conditions. The new rules provide, among other things, that a breadwinner be allowed to bring his dependents, regardless of age, with him when he migrates. Heretofore, only his wife and children up to the age of 21 were allowed to accompany him. But now he can even bring his mother-in-law with him, if he so desires.

Also, better housing facilities and schools are to be provided for the migrants.

Despite an easing of local restrictions, the European labor supply still has a long way to go to catch up with demand.

In 1958 supply and demand were evenly balanced in five of the six countries that make up the Common Market, the exception being Italy, where there were 2 million jobless, mostly in the south.

But by 1964 startling changes had taken place. West Germany and France had become big importers of labor, and Italian unemployment, partly as a result of emigration, had been reduced to about 600,000.

The vast migrations now under way are changing the face of Europe. That they will give rise to a new breed of man, one that is truly European in its outlook rather than restricted by narrow nationalisms, is the pious hope of those who see in the Common Market a United States of Europe.

TOURING FARMERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two thousand American farmers will tour Iron Curtain countries this summer, predicts Joe Kimball, travel director of People-to-People, Inc.

Most of them will be seeking personal contact with their counterparts, one of the features of People-to-People travel, Kimball said. "Indications of increased U.S.-Soviet trade and recent U.S.S.R. crop failures have whetted farmer interest in Russian agriculture," he explained.

Package May Be Used for Civil Rights

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders plan to introduce today the package of amendments they are counting on to win passage of a revised civil rights bill.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen announced Monday after a fourth and final GOP conference on the proposed changes that they would be ready for introduction late today—the 64th day of Senate debate on civil rights.

He also predicted that the votes will be available to shut off a Southern filibuster against civil rights legislation. "I believe we can get cloture," he said. "And I think we have to have cloture now."

Dirksen said the changes will be discussed thoroughly and ample time will be allowed for rebuttal by Southern senators who already have pronounced the package completely unacceptable.

Some senators have said an attempt will be made the second week in June to get the two-thirds vote needed to invoke cloture and shut off the Dixie oratory that has blocked action on the House-passed bill.

Dirksen said this may be a little early.

He noted that a jury trial amendment has been before the Senate for three weeks without a final vote.

This issue must be decided before the leaders' amendment package can be put before the Senate. Dirksen said a consensus had not been reached yet on the best way to handle the jury trial question.

Many senators regard the floor discussion as a marking-time operation until the showdown—cloture—comes in June.

Dirksen said some additional language modifications were accepted as a result of the Republican caucuses on the bill, but that the package as disclosed last week remained pretty much intact.

Some GOP senators said after the session they believed that chances for passage of the bill had improved, but others voiced dissatisfaction.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, said, "This bill still is not satisfactory to me."

However, Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said it was his guess that, in the end, only four or five Republicans would vote against cloture.

This would mean 28 or 29 GOP votes for cloture and would virtually assure its adoption under estimates made so far.

A QUESTION OF VALUES

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The teen-age boy was charged with a felony.

Judge Carl C. Durrance called the mother before him and inquired whether she had gotten her son an attorney. "No," she said.

Assistant Public Defender Robert Rawlins told Judge Durrance the woman had told him she could afford only $25 for an attorney.

"Well, I don't think you can get an attorney for $25," the judge said. He directed the public defender to represent the boy. The boy was returned to jail to await trial.

The mother walked out of the courthouse, climbed into an air conditioned 1964 model car and drove away.

Eighty-five per cent of the public libraries in the nation were built before 1920, the American Library Association reports.

COSTLY VANDALISM

BOSTON (UPI) — School vandalism has cost Boston around $1 million during the past eight years. Last year it cost the city $100,000 just to replace broken windows in schools. Other damage to school buildings cost $60,000 more.

Boston School Supt. William H. Ohrenberger figures the loss from vandalism during the last eight years would have paid for a completely equipped 19-room school or for 400,000 books.

But by 1964 startling changes had taken place. West Germany and France had become big importers of labor, and Italian unemployment, partly as a result of emigration, had been reduced to about 600,000.

The vast migrations now under way are changing the face of Europe. That they will give rise to a new breed of man, one that is truly European in its outlook rather than restricted by narrow nationalisms, is the pious hope of those who see in the Common Market a United States of Europe.

TOURING FARMERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two thousand American farmers will tour Iron Curtain countries this summer, predicts Joe Kimball, travel director of People-to-People, Inc.

Most of them will be seeking personal contact with their counterparts, one of the features of People-to-People travel, Kimball said. "Indications of increased U.S.-Soviet trade and recent U.S.S.R. crop failures have whetted farmer interest in Russian agriculture," he explained.

Package May Be Used for Civil Rights

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders plan to introduce today the package of amendments they are counting on to win passage of a revised civil rights bill.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen announced Monday after a fourth and final GOP conference on the proposed changes that they would be ready for introduction late today—the 64th day of Senate debate on civil rights.

He also predicted that the votes will be available to shut off a Southern filibuster against civil rights legislation. "I believe we can get cloture," he said. "And I think we have to have cloture now."

Dirksen said the changes will be discussed thoroughly and ample time will be allowed for rebuttal by Southern senators who already have pronounced the package completely unacceptable.

Some senators have said an attempt will be made the second week in June to get the two-thirds vote needed to invoke cloture and shut off the Dixie oratory that has bogged action on the House-passed bill.

Dirksen said this may be a little early.

He noted that a jury trial amendment has been before the Senate for three weeks without a final vote.

This issue must be decided before the leaders' amendment package can be put before the Senate. Dirksen said a consensus had not been reached yet on the best way to handle the jury trial question.

Many senators regard the floor discussion as a marking-time operation until the showdown—cloture—comes in June.

Dirksen said some additional language modifications were accepted as a result of the Republican caucuses on the bill, but that the package as disclosed last week remained pretty much intact.

Some GOP senators said after the session they believed that changes for passage of the bill [illegible] had improved, but others voiced dissatisfaction.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, said, "This bill still is not satisfactory to me."

However, Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said it was his guess that, in the end, only four or five Republicans would vote against cloture.

This would mean 28 or 29 GOP votes for cloture and would virtually assure its adoption unless [illegible] made so far.

A QUESTION OF VALUES

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Fifteen-age boy was charged with a felony.

Judge Carl C. Durrance studied the mother before him and inquired whether she had gotten her son an attorney. No, she said.

Assistant Public Defender Robert Rawls told Judge Durrance the woman had told him she could afford only $25 for an attorney.

"Well, I don't think you can get an attorney for $25," the judge said. He directed the public defender to represent the boy. The boy was returned to jail to await trial.

The mother walked out of the courthouse, climbed into an air conditioned 1964 model car and drove away.

Eighty-five per cent of the public libraries in the nation were built before 1920, the American Library Association reports.

COSTLY VANDALISM

BOSTON (UPI) — School vandalism has cost Boston around $1 million during the past eight years. Last year it cost the city $100,000 just to replace broken windows in schools. Other damage to school buildings cost $60,000 more.

Boston School Supt. William H. Ohrenberger figures the loss from vandalism during the last eight years would have paid for a completely equipped 19-room [illegible] 400,000 books.

Rodeo Interest Spotlights Rivals Tescher, Wood

DENVER — Interest of the professional rodeo world centers on North Dakota cowboy, Jim Tescher, and his rival, Canada's Marty Wood, as their head and head battle for the saddle bronc title lead spurred unabated into its 16th week.

Wood, 30, Bowness, Alta., and Tescher, 33, from Medora, first clashed in January following Denver's National Western Rodeo. Since, their winnings never have been $348 apart while the front changed hands eight times.

Latest switch was at Tulsa, Oklahoma, where Wood came up with a $605 victory, after logging an 81 marking on Beutler Brothers' brown bombshell, Knot, in, highest score yet this season.

Tescher placed second behind Wood in the first go-round, won the second stanza, and then lost his shot for average money by bucking off Bullet in the final go-round.

When the arena dust settled, Wood was leading the event's national standings, $6,733 to $6,655.

Other action during the five-day rodeo saw Oklahoma's Bobby Wegner score his third major bull riding win in as many weeks, pocketing $790 for his trips into the Tulsa arena.

Wegner leads the event's title charts, with $6,802.

Another Oklahoma entry, Barry Burk, 22, of Wagoner, collected the biggest chunk of the rodeo's $13,464 payoff, winning calf roping and $1,155.

The new money bounced Burk from fifth to runner-up spot in national roping standings. Event leader, Olin Young, Albuquerque, N. M., was fourth in the Tulsa competition.

Event winners: saddle broncs, Marty Wood, Bowness, Alta., $605; bareback broncs, Clyde Vamvoras, Lake Charles, La., $599; bull riding, Bob Wegner, Ponca City, Okla., $790; calf roping, Barry Burk, Wagoner, Okla., $1,155; steer wrestling, John Barger, Bartlesville, Okla., $968.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk were advised at an early hour today of the death of Prime Minister Nehru of India.

The death of Nehru put an immediate halt to U.S. defense talks here.

India's defense minister, Y.B. Chavan, was notified in Colorado Springs, Colo., where he was visiting the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Chavan had been scheduled to see Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Thursday in the final session on India's request for $550 million in U.S. military grants and credits for the next five years.

Tuesday The World Bank and nine industrial nations led by the United States pledged another $1,028,000,000 in economic aid to India. The U.S. share was $435 million—an amount equal to the U.S. aid provided India in each of the past two years.

Soon after Johnson and Rusk were advised of Nehru's death, statements of condolence were President Rhadakrishnan.

The expectation here is that the Indian president will name an acting prime minister until the Indian Parliament has an opportunity to elect a new head of government.

GOP in Florida Turns Down Bid By Goldwater

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A delegate slate pledged to Sen. Barry Goldwater was turned down by Republicans, and a governor sworn to erect barriers against civil rights was nominated by Democrats in Tuesday's Florida primary.

Goldwater's chances of Florida support at the national convention were not erased. But they were weakened by election of a slate headed by a man who made no bones about current disenchantment with the Arizona conservative.

"Goldwater appeared on television and radio extensively in the last week and campaigned against us," said Tom Fairfield Brown of Tampa, state Republican chairman who heads the winning slate.

"I feel we have a mandate from the people to go to California and represent Florida the best we can. Whether the delegates will be in favor of Goldwater when we get there may be another matter."

Brown's slate will send at least 28 of the 34 Florida delegates to the convention. The six other spots remained in doubt.

It was a big victory for Brown, who had led his delegation in a fight for the state party leadership against Rep. William Cramer, R-Fla., who headed the slate pledged to Goldwater.

An Associated Press poll had shown most of the Brown slate loyal to Goldwater, but Brown now called it a "no-preference delegation."

Haydon Burns, 52-year-old mayor of Jacksonville and a tough-talking foe of the civil rights bill, won the Democratic nomination for governor. That means almost certain election in November against Republican Charles Holley, a state legislator.

Burns won by a margin of more than 167,000 votes over Mayor Robert King High of Miami, who had promised to enforce any civil rights law enacted by Congress and signed by President Johnson.

Racial violence hit Burns' city of Jacksonville during the heated campaign, which was waged almost entirely on the rights issue.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

DEBT LIMIT: The House Ways and Means Committee has voiced swift approval of an administration proposal to hike the temporary debt limit from $315 billion to $324 billion and a key Republican opponent says he plans no attempt to cut the increase on the house floor.

Following Tuesday's action, the committee's ranking Republican, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin said no attempt was made to cut the increase in the committee, and he plans none when the bill reaches the House floor next month.

"We tried that on two occasions without success," Byrnes said.

The administration proposal would establish the $324 billion level for a year starting July 1. Without new legislation, the debt limit would drop July 1 to the permanent level of $285 billion.

The committee also approved continuation of a number of excise taxes—on tobacco, alcoholic beverages, autos, auto parts, telephone calls and air transportation. Most date from the Korean war and are due to expire June 30.

STASSEN: Harold E. Stassen has become the third Republican to take advantage of President Johnson's offer to give potential presidential candidates briefings on the world situation.

Stassen termed helpful Tuesday's session at which Undersecretary of State George W. Ball and Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance participated.

Earlier New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton received briefings.

CONSTRUCTION: The House has passed 340 to 5 a $1,599,014,500 appropriation bill to finance military construction in the year starting July 1.

Without amendment and by rollcall vote, the house approved the bill Tuesday and sent it on to the Senate.

The total was $279,985,500 less than President Johnson requested, and $13,134,500 more than was appropriated for the military construction program last year.

SHIPYARDS: Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has canceled indefinitely plans to visit today the naval shipyards at Charleston, S.C., and Portsmouth, Va.

Grand National Stock Premiums Set for 1964

Livestock premiums have been set for the 1964 Grand National Livestock Exposition, according to L. C. Smith, president of the Cow Palace Board of Directors.

"Premium money this year is an all-time high," said Smith, "and we anticipate a record number of exhibitors."

Beef cattle premiums total $58,000, including $11,250 for the National Western Angus show, $15,000 for the Register of Merit Hereford Show and $3,850 for the Shorthorn show.

Dairy and dual purpose cattle premiums total $26,000, of which $6,000 is for the National Ayrshire show.

In the swine division, the National Breeding Hampshire show premiums amount to $2,552, ano the All-Market Barrow show has $7,051 set. Swine premiums total $12,000.

Sheep premiums are set at $14,000, with $4,188 for the National Hampshire show.

In addition to the livestock exposition, the Grand National will feature a class "A" horse show, a championship rodeo and a top arena attraction. Dates are Oct. 23 through Nov. 1.

MOCKINGBIRD MIMIC

The mockingbird, with a rich repertoire of songs of its own, also mimics almost every other bird and frog found in the neighborhood.

Tighter Controls Slated For Trailer Courts Here

City Council took initial action Tuesday to bring mobile home courts under more rigid city control.

Passed on first reading was an ordiance laying down regulations for establishments of Mobile Home Park Districts within Colorado Springs.

The proposal was worked out at a series of meetings between the Planning Commission, city officials and representatives of Mobile Home Park developers.

Among other things, the new ordinance will require that all such district have a 15-foot setback from any adjacent highway; that there be a minimum of 50 feet between trailers that each trailer has a frontage of 40 feet with a 65-foot deep lot.

Also required are hard surfaced driveways of at least 30 feet in width and sidewalks connecting the trailers and service and recreational buildings.

One requirements calls for a six-foot wall or fence to be constructed where the boundaries of the trailer court abut property other than a public street, park or dedicated open space. All new mobile home courts must have adequate landscaping to give a park appearance.

Each new court must be at least 3-acres in size and can be established on any tract of land in any district held by a single ownership or unified control. The regulations will not affect present trailer courts.

Council set a public hearing for next council meeting on a request from Conover Investment Co. to review the decision of the City Planning Commission which rejected a petition for a zone change on Lelaray Street.

The company had asked for a change from single family residential to multi-family residential. The petition met with residential opposition at the time of the Planning Commission's hearing.

Approved were the following:

Final plat of Holland Park Subdivision No. 2, a 109.561 acre tract lying southwest of the intersection of North Chestnut Street with the Garden of the Gods Road.

Annextaion of a 3-acre tract lying between El Paso Street and Prospect Street north of Fillmore Street.

A proposal by the City Planing Commission to amend the minimum side yard dimensions of the R-2 single family residential zone to five feet; and amending the minimum lot sizes for multi-family residential areas.

Also approved were a long list of zone change requests in various areas in the city.

A drainage fee of $295 per acre was established for the 19th Street Drainage Basin and Council approved a Drainage Committee recommendation that $2,457.20 be refunded to Sproul Homes Inc. from the Spring Creek Drainage Fund. The refund is the balance of the advance Sproul made for drainage fees before a final fee was established for that area.

Lynn A. McGuire was granted a 3.2 beer license for the Midnight Sun, formerly known as the White Star Cafe; Robert W. Recob was granted a beer, wine and liquor license for the Brass Rail Bar and Grill which is now operated by Glendel W. Owens.

WASHINGTON — Special to Gazette Telegraph — Rather than face possible contempt of court in the Cadet John Dunmar case Army Secretary Stephen Ailes directed that the cadet be returned to the roster of cadets with pay and allowances. Chances are that Cadet Dunmar will be silenced by the Corps.

Responsibility for assignment and promotion of National Guard and Reserve General officers is to be shifted from Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel to Chief Office of Reserve Components of the Army.

The next economy move on the part of the Army is expected to be a consolidation of some of the Continental Armies. If this should come about, probably the first merger will be that of the First and Second Armies.

An existing grim outlook for space-available travel via MATS from Travis AFB, Calif. is expected to continue and even become tighter in the next few months. In addition MATS officials say that billeting facilities at the base for those awaiting transportation are in critical shape.

The cost of living plus inadequate rental quarters may force Department of Defense to send some junior officers and enlisted men assigned here back to straight duty. Those holding desk jobs would be replaced by civilian employes. Back of the Pentagon proposal is the information recently brought to light indicating that many junior officers and enlisted men must seek "moonlighting" or extra jobs, in order to stay out of debt.

Warning has come from the Pentagon to reservists and national guard personnel nearing age 60 that while they may be entitled to reserve retirement pay at age 60, they will not start to collect unless they apply for it. The average reserve officer retiring at age 60 draws about $151.31 a month for the rest of his life.

President Johnson is reported to be convinced of the need for bombers. This makes rather interesting the appearance in the May 22 issue of Time magazine an article on the Air Force's missile program written around Air Force Gen. Bernard Schriever. The May issue of the Air Force Association magazine also contains a "missile and Schriever" article. Some Washington sources see in these rather interesting coincidences the start of a build up for Gen. Schriever to move up.

Florida Congressman Robert L. F. Sikes, mentioned in recent press stories as one of the members of Congress holding a Reserve commission in violation of the Constitution and a strong member of the Reserve lobby bloc in Congress, may be next Chairman of the Defense subcommittee on Appropriations. He is a Maj. Gen. in the Army Reserve.

Brig. Gen. Howard Snyder, Chief of Staff of First Army, is moving to Atlanta to command the Reserve Corps there. A West Point graduate in 1936 and son of retired White House physician Maj. Gen. Snyder, he not only served as senior aide to Gen. Maxwell Taylor when he was Chief of Staff but has had considerable experience in Reserve planning.

The Army Reserve needs experienced aviators and aviation maintenance personnel, according to Maj. Gen. W. J. Sutton Chief of Army Reserve. Gen. Sutton said increased emphasis on organic air mobility in the Army imposes added requirements for the Reserve to meet current and mobilization expansion of plans for the aviation program. Enlisted Reservists interested in becoming rotary wing aviators may volunteer for training. Graduation means promotion to Reserve warrant officer.

Latest word is that the House may take up the Federal employe pay bill about the middle of June. Chances for enactment remain at 50-50.

The Defense Department has ordered a program to permit more long term training for its civilian employes at colleges, universities, and other non-government institutions. By long term training, a Pentagon spokesman explained, means courses that take more than 120 days to complete.

Defense officials are worried over what is reported to be an increase in the number of service men involved in crime in local communities. Each service chief may order a survey for facts.

The Retired Officers Association has made known the fact that it favors elimination of current requirements that retired Reserve officers have had at least 8 years of active duty in order to qualify for free hospital and medical care for themselves and their dependents.

One of every five men in the United States 65 or older is a veteran of one of our wars, according to the Veterans Administration. For this reason the VA is expanding its program of research on aging. Major emphasis is being placed upon new ideas and new approaches to the many problems which aging and the increasing population of senior citizens present.

Miss Jacqueline Cochran, prominent woman aviatrix, has been appointed chairman of a committee to organize the home for widows and other dependents of Air Force officers. The name of the organization is the Air Force Village Foundation.

Lawyer Defends Self in City Court; Gets Traffic Warning

A Louisiana lawyer got off with a warning Tuesday in Municipal Court when he defended himself against a speeding charge.

Judge Allan Asher converted the citation to a warning ticket for Gordon O'Steen, 53, 3 S. Roosevelt St. The attorney-contractor maintained he was driving 30 miles an hour May 2 when he was cited in the 500 block of East Costilla Street by Officers John Tagert and Delmer Davidson.

He admitted he had been in excess of the speed prior when he passed the radar car and upon his return trip, said he told the officers he would have been a fool to exceed the limit.

O'Steen also questioned Tagert's ability to judge by sight how fast he was going, and asked several questions of the officer concerning his educational background. Tagert had testified he had made an independent observations of the man's speed and judged it in excess of the prescribed limit. The radar had showed O'Steen was driving in excess of 42 miles an hour. He said he was driving a new car which had 71 miles, and he'd later had it checked and the speedometer was correct. However, Judge Asher advised him to have a recheck as new cars can often be unreliable from this standpoint.

A left turn violation was dismissed against Leon George Bernard, 56, 621 E. Madison St., on a motion by Bernard's attorney Allen Compton who pointed out that his client had been wrongly charged.

In the companion case, William Ritter, 57, 2415 Lafayette Rd., pleaded guilty to failing to stop at an intersection and received a $5 suspended fine.

In a second companion case, riotous conduct and breach of peace charges were dismissed against Thomas Edmisten, 30, 1114 S. 25th St., and James Roberts, 24, 1210 Langmeyer St., was found guilty of careless driving and fined $25. The two men had lodged the charges against each other.

William Jackson, 79, 532 E. Bijou St., was found innocent of a charge of taking the right of way.

At the request of Deputy City attorney Bob Isaac, Judge Asher dismissed a reckless driving charge against James Lagge who was represented by attorney Wayne Hodson. Isaac requested the dismissal on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Carl Stotz, 31, 33 Friendship Lane, was found guilty of speeding and fined $15.

Edward Rauch, 45, 3318 Jon St., pleaded guilty to two drunk charges and was given two 10 - day jail sentences. Richard Stewart, 32, 2417 W. Tighter Controls Slated For Trailer Courts Here

City Council took initial action Tuesday to bring mobile home courts under more rigid city control.

Passed on first reading was an ordiance laying down regulations for establishments of Mobile Home Park Districts within Colorado Springs.

The proposal was worked out at a series of meetings between the Planning Commission, city officials and representatives of Mobile Home Park developers.

Among other things the new ordinance will require that all such district have a 15-foot setback from any adjacent highway, that there be a minimum of 50 feet between trailers that each trailer has a frontage of 40 feet with a 65-foot deep lot.

Also required are hard surfaced driveways of at least 30 feet in width and sidewalks connecting the trailers and service and recreational buildings.

One requirements calls for a six-foot wall or fence to be constructed where the boundaries of the trailer court abut property other than a public street park or dedicated open space. All new mobile home courts must have adequate landscaping to give a park appearance.

Each new court must be at least 3-acres in size and can be established on any tract of land in any district held by a single ownership or unified control. The regulations will not affect present trailer courts.

Council set a public hearing for next council meeting on a request from Goodyear Investment Co. to review the decision of the City Planning Commission which rejected a petition for a zone change on Lelaray Street.

The company had asked for a change from single family residential to multi-family residential. The petition met with residential opposition at the time of the Planning Commission's hearing.

Approved were the following:

Final plat of Holland Park Subdivision No. 2, a 109.561 acre tract lying southwest of the intersection of North Chestnut Street with the Garden of the Gods Road.

Annextaion of a 3-acre tract lying between El Paso Street and Prospect Street north of Fillmore Street.

A proposal by the City Planing Commission to amend the minimum side yard dimensions of the R-2 single family residential zone to five feet; and amending the minimum lot sizes for multi-family residential areas.

Also approved were a long list of zone change requests in various areas in the city.

A drainage fee of $295 per acre was established for the 19th Street Drainage Basin and Council approved a Drainage Committee recommendation that $2,457.20 be refunded to Sproul Homes Inc. from the Spring Creek Drainage Fund. The refund is the balance of the advance Sproul made for drainage fees before a final fee was established for that area.

Lynn A. McGuire was granted a 3.2 beer license for the Midnight Sun, formerly known as the White Star Cafe. Robert W. Recob was granted a beer, wine and liquor license for the Brass Rail Bar and Grill which is now operated by Glendel W. Owens.

Tabled were two requests from Crestmoor Park Subdivision. One was for extension of Municipal water service and the other for a preliminary platof the subdivision. Council said it would seek more information.

WASHINGTON — Special to Gazette Telegraph — Rather than face possible contempt of court in the Cadet John Dunmar case, Army Secretary Stephen Ailes directed that the cadet be returned to the roster of cadets with pay and allowances. Chances are that Cadet Dunmar will be silenced by the Corps.

Responsibility for assignment and promotion of National Guard and Reserve General officers is to be shifted from Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel to Chief Office of Reserve Components of the Army.

The next economy move on the part of the Army is expected to be a consolidation of some of the Continental Armies. If this should come about probably the first merger will be that of the First and Second Armies.

An existing grim outlook for space-available travel via MATS from Travis AFB, Calif. is expected to continue and even become tighter in the next few months. In addition MATS officials say that billeting facilities at the base for those awaiting transportation are in critical shape.

The cost of living plus inadequate rental quarters may force Department of Defense to send some junior officers and enlisted men assigned here back to straight duty. Those holding desk jobs would be replaced by civilian employes. Back of the Pentagon proposal is the information recently brought to light indicating that many junior officers and enlisted men must seek "moonlighting" or extra jobs in order to stay out of debt.

Warning has come from the Pentagon to reservists and national guard personnel nearing age 60 that while they may be entitled to reserve retirement pay at age 60, they will not start to collect unless they apply for it. The average reserve officer retiring at age 60 draws about $151.31 a month for the rest of his life.

President Johnson is reported to be convinced of the need for bombers. This makes rather interesting the appearance in the May 22 issue of Time magazine an article on the Air Force's missile program written around Air Force Gen. Bernard Schriever. The May issue of the Air Force Association magazine also contains a "missile and Schriever" article. Some Washington sources see in these rather interesting coincidences the start of a build up for Gen. Schriever to move up.

Florida Congressman Robert L. F. Sikes, mentioned in recent press stories as one of the members of Congress holding a Reserve commission in violation of the Constitution and a strong member of the Reserve lobby bloc in Congress, may be next Chairman of the Defense subcommittee on Appropriations. He is a Maj. Gen. in the Army Reserve.

Brig. Gen. Howard Snyder, Chief of Staff of First Army, is moving to Atlanta to command the Reserve Corps there. A West Point graduate in 1936 and son of retired White House physician Maj. Gen. Snyder, he not only served as senior aide to Gen. Maxwell Taylor when he was Chief of Staff but has had considerable experience in Reserve planning.

The Army Reserve needs experienced aviators and aviation maintenance personnel, according to Maj. Gen. W. J. Sutton. Chief of Army Reserve. Gen. Sutton said increased emphasis on organic air mobility in the Army imposes added requirements for the Reserve to meet current and mobilization expansion of plans for the aviation program. Enlisted Reservists interested in becoming rotary wing aviators may volunteer for Latest word is that the House may take up the Federal employe pay bill about the middle of June. Chances for enactment remain at 50-50.

The Defense Department has ordered a program to permit more long term training for its civilian employes at colleges, universities and other non-government institutions. By long term training a Pentagon spokesman explained, means courses that take more than 120 days to complete.

Defense officials are worried over what is reported to be an increase in the number of service men involved in crime in local communities. Each service chief may order a survey for facts.

The Retired Officers Association has made known the fact that it favors elimination of current requirements that retired Reserve officers have had at least 8 years of active duty in order to quality for free hospital and medical care for themselves and their dependents.

One of every five men in the United States 65 or older is a veteran of one of our wars, according to the Veterans Administration. For this reason the VA is expanding its program of research on aging. Major emphasis is being placed upon new ideas and new approaches to the many problems which aging and the increasing population of senior citizens present.

Miss Jacqueline Cochran, prominent woman aviatrix, has been appointed chairman of a committee to organize the home for widows and other dependents of Air Force officers. The name of the organization is the Air Force Village Foundation.

Lumber Airlift Is Helped Now By Helicopter

AVERY, Calif. (UPI- — This small mountain community in the heart of California's historic Mother Lode country is back to normal now but during the past winter it was invaded by a small army of construction engineers who turned it into GHQ for an unusual airlift.

The operation was carried out by a pair of "flying lumber trucks" — two 35-horsepower helicopters which hauled hundreds of heavy boards to a construction site on the side of a mountain 800 feet above the Stanislaus River.

Avery, just a hop-skip-and-jump up the road from Angel's Camp of Calaveras County Jumping Frog fame, served as the main staging area for the work crews, lumber, portable generators and other equipment, as well as a base for the workhorse helicopters.

The town, with a population of about 100 persons, is located nearly four miles from the site where Pacific Gas & Electric Co. was rebuilding a wooden flume that carried water for power generation in the communities that formed the one-time Gold Rush capital of the world.

The snaking, quarter-mile-long wooden canal was perched on the side of a 1,200-foot-deep canyon and engineers concluded that helicopters could best perform the job of transporting lumber to the site, despite the rugged mountain terrain and unpredictable weather conditions.

During a six-week period the two choppers flew a total of 1,000 flights, airlifting 375 tons of lumber. The cargoes weighed an average of 650 pounds and were carried on 20 and 35-foot slings.

Each flight down the canyon took about five minutes one way and mechanics on the ground guided the pilots' maneuvers with portable radios.

Once the operation was in full swing, the ground-to-air teamwork worked so smoothly that the pilots were able to lower 18-foot-long beams within inches of their final position.

The helicopters also were used to fly skilled workers from Avery to the job site, thus saving the men a 40-minute road trip each way.

The operation was twice hampered by severe blizzards but even then the choppers were pressed into service. They flew workers over to the flume to shovel off the three-foot snowbanks which had mounted on the structure.

Negro Robber Escapes New York Lynchers

By RICHARD F. WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP) — "Lynch him. Kill him," shouted a mob of whites outside a bar where a Negro was being questioned about the holdup murder of a white bartender.

The victim was the third white man attacked by Negroes near the western edge of Harlem in five days.

Police had to call in reinforcements Tuesday night to push through the mob to a patrol car with the Negro. They said early today that the man, Alonzo Cook, 20, of Harlem, had admitted the shooting.

Police said the bartender, Gerald Esmond, 55, was talking to a lone customer when the gunman entered and said, "Give me your money."

"Are you kidding?" Esmond asked, and was shot twice. The gunman grabbed $40 from the cash register and fled, pursued by the customer.

Police arrested Cook after they found him in bushes in a church yard.

Esmond, married and the father of one, was well-known in the Vinegar Hill section of Manhattan's upper West Side, a predominantly white neighborhood. A crowd gathered at the bar at 3299 Broadway and the noisiest rattled and pounded on the door, shouting for a lynching.

Last Friday night, L. Carroll Adams, 56, a professor of physical education at Columbia University, was attacked and robbed of $70 by about 20 teenage Negroes.

Adams was attacked at 120th Street and Riverside Drive after he left a Peace Corps meeting. Police captured six of the Negroes, aged 13 to 16.

The next day Prof. John Hazard, 55, of Columbia Law School was attacked by five Negro teen-agers at Morningside Drive and 113th Street.

Jews Patrol Brooklyn Against Marauding Foes

By MALCOLM STEPHENSON

NEW YORK (AP)—A fear - ridden community of Jews in Brooklyn is operating a nightly radio car patrol to protect its 65,000 people from marauders. Jewish leaders charge the attackers come from the predominantly Negro Bedford - Stuyvesant section, which adjoins the Jewish neighborhood.

Each of four cars with two-way radios is manned by six young men over 21—"all strong" although not armed—says Rabbi Samuel Schrage, a leader among the Hasidic Jews in Crown Heights.

Rabbi Schrage said the patrol cars are used primarily to prevent trouble.

"In case of trouble, our people try to overwhelm the attackers by sheer weight of numbers. If it is beyond their capacity, they call us on the radio and we call the police," the Rabbi said.

The Hasidic Jews decided recently to fight their tormenters and formed a group of about 100 volunteers named the Maccabees of the Community.

The Maccabees were a Jewish family that led a fight for religious freedom when the king of Syria attempted to force Greek culture upon Judea in the second century, B.C.

Hasidic men wear beards, side curls, wide-brimmed black hats and long black coats—customs they brought from the old world.

Rabbi Schrage said the tightly knit community in Crown Heights—one of several Hasidic neighborhoods in Brooklyn — has been virtually housebound by fear since it heard that a rabbi's wife had been dragged from her apartment at knifepoint by a man who tried to rape her two weeks ago.

Beatings and robbings of a number of men and women in the neighborhood led the religious and community leaders to organize the radio car patrol. A group of Negroes recently attacked children at a Jewish religious school headed by Rabbi Schrage.

Hasidic leaders are reluctant to identify their tormenters as Negroes. But they say that most attacks are made by residents of the Bedford-Stuyvesant section.

Non - Jewish sympathizers — 12 whites and 8 Negroes—have volunteered to man the radio patrol cars on Friday nights, the start of the Jewish Sabbath. The cars operate from 3 p.m. to 5 a.m. They make regular radio reports to Maccabees of the Community headquarters on street conditions.

The telephone number of the patrol headquarters is being circulated throughout the community so that Jewish residents who plan to be out at night can call for protection.

Mikoyan Goes Home Without Agreement

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan returned home today without agreement on two major proposals he brought from Premier Khrushchev.

The Japanese balked on conclusion of a World War II peace treaty because the Soviets refused to return several islands off northern Japan. They made agreement to joint efforts for a total nuclear test ban conditional on Soviet acceptance of an effective policing system.

Two weeks of discussion also failed to produce agreement on a Tokyo-Moscow airline.

ZOO ACQUISITION

An Arment's cowbird, with a coat of seal brown, which makes him different from the usual all-black cowbird, is an acquisition of the Washington zoo. Not seen since 1866, the species was thought extinct and this specimen came in a shipment of miscellaneous birds from Colombia, South America.

Jews Patrol Brooklyn Against Marauding Foes

By MALCOLM STEPHENSON

NEW YORK (AP) — A fear - ridden community of Jews in Brooklyn is operating a nightly radio car patrol to protect its 65,000 people from marauders Jewish leaders charge the attackers come from the predominantly Negro Bedford - Stuyvesant section, which adjoins the Jewish neighborhood.

Each of four cars with two-way radios is manned by six young men over 21—"all strong" although not armed—says Rabbi Samuel Schrage, a leader among the Hasidic Jews in Crown Heights.

Rabbi Schrage said the patrol cars are used primarily to prevent trouble.

"In case of trouble, our people try to overwhelm the attackers by sheer weight of numbers. If it is beyond their capacity, they call us on the radio and we call the police" the Rabbi said.

The Hasidic Jews decided recently to fight their tormenters and formed a group of about 100 volunteers named the Maccabees of the Community.

The Maccabees were a Jewish family that led a fight for religious freedom when the king of Syria attempted to force Greek culture upon Judea in the second century, B.C.

Hasidic men wear beards, side curls, wide-brimmed black hats and long black coats—customs they brought from the old world.

Rabbi Schrage said the tightly knit community in Crown Heights—one of several Hasidic neighborhoods in Brooklyn — has been virtually housebound by fear since it heard that a rabbi's wife had been dragged from her apartment at knifepoint by a man who tried to rape her two weeks ago.

Beatings and robbings of a number of men and women in the neighborhood led the religious and community leaders to organize the radio car patrol. A group of Negroes recently attacked children at a Jewish religious school headed by Rabbi Schrage.

ANN SOTHERN TO JOIN LUCILLE BAL TV SERIES

HOLLYWOOD — Ann Sothern joins her pal, Lucille Ball, for at least three, and maybe more, shows this season. Vivian Vance's deal calls for a limited number, so Annie steps in to keep things rollin'. Ann had a miserable winter. She and her daughter, Tish, had to appear in a San Luis Obispo courtroom for a jury trial over an automobile accident. ("We felt like Sacco and Vanzetti, but won hands down.") The temperature in the courtroom went from frigid to blazing and Ann got pneumonia. She was hospitalized for weeks and has just begun to feel like herself again. She's taken a big apartment here and is trying to figure out what to do with 23 rooms of furniture she stored.

Elke Sommer phoned to let me know she wasn't too high on that article Joe Hyams wrote about her, but the irony of it all is that his estranged wife typed the story. Elke's 23, has never been married; but says she, "I'm in love" and as soon as Joe's free they'll take the plunge.

Art Carney's brother, Fred, called to say that Art is not making his picture debut in "Yellow Rolls-Royce." Back in 1941, he did a little thing called "Pot O' Gold," a Jimmy Roosevelt production with Jimmy Stewart, Paulette Goddard, and Horace Heidt. Art had no screen credit. Being in Heidt's band got him in the picture. When he left high school, he went with Heidt, doing impersonations which started his career. Incidentally, he has five brothers.

When the script of "Mickey One" called for Warren Beatty to be beaten up by a bunch of hoodlums, he sent for an old school tie, Joe Marconi, now with the Chicago Bears. Joe brought a bunch of buddies along. They had a celebration and Warren made the mistake of refusing to have a double. He's now recuperating from the punches his pals forgot to pull. Since he finishes the picture next week, he's looking for a house to rent in Jamaica. That is where Leslie Caron will do location scenes with Cary Grant in "Father Goose."

Bette Davis didn't show up for rehearsals on "Hush, Hush," Thursday or Friday, and took no phone calls after Paramount sued her for refusing to shoot one more scene for a picture with Susan Hayward.

Sophia Loren walked off the picture "Judith," which was about to start shooting. Paramount Exec Jack Karp winged out to Rome to try to talk her back in.

Whoever put this cast together sure had a sense of humor: Tuesday Weld and George Hamilton, with Gloria Swanson playing his mother, in "Your Daddy Is Dead, Dear."

Van Heflin says California never looked better. He's home after nine months on Broadway playing Louis Nizer: "A tough role that had me on stage 2½ hours each performance."

Three companies are fighting for the screen rights to "Libel," and if Van wins the role on screen, which is a lead pipe cinch, he'll tour with the play this fall before making the movie.

Tom Ewell's still stage-struck, so sold his Bel Air home and moves east. He goes out this summer for 11 weeks in "Thursday Is a Good Night" with Sheree North. He plays a bookie who mistakes reporter Sheree for a call girl. It will be directed by his first wife, George Abbott's daughter, Judy. They'll ramble all over the East Coast. Tom admits the stage is precarious business, but says: "The important things are making friends along the way and not taking ourselves too seriously." He has one son (9) by his second marriage: "We named him Taylor, because one of our cousins was Zachary Taylor, one of the drinking Presidents. We always have one in each generation."

There are an estimated seven million stepchildren in the nation, the Census Bureau reports.

Bette Davis didn't show up for rehearsals on "Hush, Hush," Thursday or Friday, and took no phone calls after Paramount sued her for refusing to shoot one more scene for a picture with Susan Hayward.

Sophia Loren walked off the picture "Judith," which was about to start shooting. Paramount Exec Jack Karp winged out to Rome to try to talk her back in.

Whoever put this cast together sure had a sense of humor: Tuesday Weld and George Hamilton, with Gloria Swanson playing his mother, in "Your Daddy Is Dead, Dear."

Van Heflin says California never looked better. He's home after nine months on Broadway playing Louis Nizer: "A tough role that had me on stage 2½ hours each performance." Three companies are fighting for the screen rights to "Libel," and if Van wins the role on screen, which is a lead pipe cinch, he'll tour with the play this fall before making the movie.

Tom Ewell's still stage-struck, so sold his Bel Air home and moves east. He goes out this summer for 11 weeks in "Thursday Is a Good Night" with Sheree North. He plays a bookie who mistakes reporter Sheree for a call girl. It will be directed by his first wife, George Abbott's daughter, Judy. They'll ramble all over the East Coast. Tom admits the stage is precarious business, but says: "The important things are making friends along the way and not taking ourselves too seriously." He has one son (9) by his second marriage: "We named him Taylor, because one of our cousins was Zachary Taylor, one of the drinking Presidents. We always have one in each generation."

There are an estimated seven million stepchildren in the nation, the Census Bureau reports.

Giant Rain God Statue Moved to Mexico City

By JAIME PLENN

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — After years of planning, and despite bitter opposition of natives, the gigantic monolithic statue of the ancient Indian rain god, Tlaloc, has been moved to a new location in Mexico City's Chapultepec Forest Park.

The most modern lifting and transport techniques were called into play to bring the great stone figure, which is 23 feet high and 13 feet square, from the Santa Clara River bed in the village of Coatlinchan to the Mexican capital, a distance of about 30 miles.

The figure is believed to be the largest monolithic sculpture in the western hemisphere.

A specially - built 72-wheel trailer was used to convey the figure, which weighs 167 tons. Total weight of the trailer and monolith was 225 tons.

A special pedestal was built in the park, in front of the new Anthropological museum, so that the "goddess" can continue to live in the open air.

The loading of the monolith and its trip were guarded by federal soldiers because several months ago natives in the area rioted and destroyed a huge framework that had been built to lift the figure from its recumbent position in the river bed.

It was said at that time that the natives feared the removal of the statue would bring an end to rains in that region.

The huge figure moved along the highways at the rate of about three miles an hour, preceded and flanked by military cars and a force of 1,200 soldiers, in addition to a highway patrol.

Moving of the sculpture has been compared with the transfer of "Cleopatra's Needle" to London and that of Egyptian monoliths to Paris.

Aside from the natives, some Mexican archeologists had opposed removal of the figure, arguing that it should be set up in the area where it was found. But Pedro Ramirez Vazquez of the Anthropological Museum, in charge of the operation, said it should be available to as many persons as possible.

He said it is thought the figure is of the Teotihuacan culture, and possibly made in the sixth or seventh century A.D.

Dr. Luis Aveleyra Arroyo de Anda, coordinator of the new museum, said the figure appears to be unfinished and not "partially destroyed," as previously believed.

Existence of the huge monolith was known for centuries, but it was first unearthed in its entirety by Leopold Batres in 1910.

Speaker System Spells Dispute Among Addicts

By PRESTON McGRAW
United Press International

One of the arguments against the small speaker system, no matter how good, is that it fixes too closely the source of the sound it produces.

A listener might well get the feeling that what he hears comes out of a small hole, which psychologically distracts from the performance of the small speaker.

A possible way to get away from this feeling is to use a system like University's Classic Mark II System.

At the same time, it performs with the verve of systems considerably bigger. And it sells within the range of some of the fanciest compact systems.

The Mark II is a three-way ducted system, with a 15-inch eight - inch midrange speaker and a "sphericon super tweeter to produce frequencies about 3,000 cycles per second.

The tweeter is mounted within the midrange speaker. The low frequency speaker is mounted on the right side of the baffle with the midrange and tweeter on the left side.

Two ducts are between the two speakers. Since the baffle measures 28 to 20 inches, the Mark II gives a good spread of sound.

But the truth is that an honest 30-cycle note is hard to find in source material. Suffice to say that the Mark II has a remarkable bass.

Overall, there is little or no coloration. The Mark II is clean. The low to midrange crossover is at 150 cycles; the mid to high range crossover is at 3,000 cycles.

The crossover frequencies, particularly the one from low to midrange, have a great deal to do with the essential cleanliness of the sound the Mark II produces.

There are controls on the back of the system to regulate the midrange and high frequency speakers. In a test in a living room with carpets and average draping the Mark II sounded fine with both controls turned up to maximum.

The impedance of the Mark II system is a rather inexact 4-8 ohms, but the directions advise using the 4-ohm tap on the amplifier.

A 4-ohm impedance is on a speaker system. But the fact that the Mark II operates best at 4 ohms will be of interest to solid state amplifier owners.

Some solid state amplifiers have a maximum output at 4 ohms and drop off sharply at 8 and 16 ohms.

University makes all of the parts for the Mark II, the top system in its line. It makes the cabinets at a factory in New York State and the speakers and dividing networks at its new plant in Oklahoma City.

Speaker System Spells Dispute Among Addicts

By PRESTON McGRAW
United Press International

One of the arguments against the small speaker system, no matter how good, is that it fixes too closely the source of the sound it produces.

A listener might well get the feeling that what he hears comes out of a small hole, which psychologically distracts from the performance of the small speaker.

A possible way to get away from this feeling is to use a system like University's Classic Mark II System.

At the same time, it performs with the verve of systems considerably bigger. And it sells within the range of some of the fanciest compact systems.

The Mark II is a three-way ducted system, with a 15-inch eight - inch midrange speaker and a "sphericon super tweeter to produce frequencies about 3,000 cycles per second.

The tweeter is mounted within the midrange speaker. The low frequency speaker is mounted on the right side of the baffle with the midrange and tweeter on the left side.

Two ducts are between the two speakers. Since the baffle measures 28 to 20 inches, the Mark II gives a good spread of sound.

But the truth is that an honest 30-cycle note is hard to find in source material. Suffice to say that the Mark II has a remarkable bass.

Overall, there is little or no coloration. The Mark II is clean. The low to midrange crossover is at 150 cycles; the mid to high range crossover is at 3,000 cycles.

The crossover frequencies, particularly the one from low to midrange, have a great deal to do with the essential cleanliness of the sound the Mark II produces.

There are controls on the back of the system to regulate the midrange and high frequency speakers. In a test in a living room with carpets and average draping the Mark II sounded fine with both controls turned up to maximum.

The impedance of the Mark II system is a rather inexact 4-8 ohms, but the directions advise using the 4-ohm tap on the amplifier.

A 4-ohm impedance is on a speaker system. But the fact that the Mark II operates best at 4 ohms will be of interest to solid state amplifier owners.

Some solid state amplifiers have a maximum output at 4 ohms and drop off sharply at 8 and 16 ohms.

University makes all of the parts for the Mark II, the top system in its line. It makes the cabinets at a factory in New York State and the speakers and dividing networks at its new plant in Oklahoma City.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Alan's platonic condition is often started by fatigue of the untreated diabetic. But millions of healthy males also become platonic due to worry and a fear complex. So will you wives PLEASE prevent this serious threat to your marriage by using the booklet below?

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-475: Alan D., aged 52, is the diabetic who complained of a platonic marriage thereafter.

* * *

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "is diabetes a cause of impotence? If so, how do you scientists explain that dire result?"

Diabetic Impotence

Many diabetic men complain of a platonic role in marriage, at least till they get their blood sugar level regulated and back to normal.

But even thereafter, they may still be impotent.

For impotence is usually about 90 per cent psychological!

It results from fear of inability to function. For such a fear makes a man worry.

And worry is a function of the brain (cerebral cortex).

But we have an axiom in psychiatry that you cannot cerebrate and also emote at the same time.

In short, you can't think and also be engulfed in love, rage, fear of grief.

"When angry, count to ten," is an old adage that expresses much the same idea.

For the very act of counting thus forces the irate victim into using his brain.

Conversation, counting your own pulse, performing mental multiplication — anything that requires intelligence will thus curb emotions.

Sexual ardor is simple the dramatic emotional climax to physical love, so diabetics, as well as normal men, often hamstring their erotic ardor when they pass 40.

"Am I getting prematurely old and platonic?" is the worrisome idea that flirts through the margins of their attention.

And this causes panic in millions of healthy men.

Thereafter they try to spy on their own behavior. Out of the corner of their eye, so to speak, they decide to observe their erotic action.

But it is simply impossible to be a secret FBI agent regarding your own sexual passion, and simultaneously be an ardent husband.

So that very act of spying on themselves, is sure to produce the sexual impotence which they have secretly dreaded.

And after one or two humiliting failures, such men become victims of their own induced sexual inferiority complex.

At this stage, many men consult a physician for hormones, though these are usually not necessary from the chemical angle, though they may exert some psychological benefits.

Others throw themselves into alcoholism, both as a means of attaining temporary unconsciousness and relief from their secret dread.

But they also figure that their alcoholic condition will prove a red herring to their devoted mate and thus divert her mind from wondering why they no longer are fervent husbands.

Occasionally, a man becomes "testing" minded, so he has a clandestine date with a strange young woman.

And when he finds he can function again, he may go berserk emotionally in his wild delight at finding he isn't a senile platonic male.

Wives, send for my booklet "How to Prevent Impotence," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. It can prevent most divorces!

Referee Will Continue Despite Soccer Tragedy

By ANIBAL ARGUELLO

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—The referee at the disastrous soccer game in Peru is mourning at home with his wife and two daughters for a week.

"Then I want to see my priest," said Angel Ednardo Pazos. "I want to be sure the fault wasn't mine, like some Lima newspapers are saying. It has been so terrible.

"But I will remain a referee," added Pazos, 38, a metal worker who officiates at soccer games in his spare time.

Argentina's team was leading Peru's 1-0 in the pre-Olympic game in Lima Sunday when Pazos disallowed a Peruvian score because a Peruvian player had committed a foul. A spectator jumped onto the field and ran toward Pazos.

Police dragged the man off, but other fans poured onto the field and Pazos called off the game. Rioting began.

"The police had to use tear gas because the water hoses didn't work," Pazos said.

A frenzied push for the exit gates began, but four of the seven at the north end of the stadium were locked. Body upon body was crushed against the barriers. Those who fainted or stumbled were trampled. There were 328 dead and hundreds more injured — the sports world's greatest tragedy.

Peruvian authorities disclosed Tuesday that three of the dead were policemen killed by the mob. Rioters strangled a sergeant with his own necktie. An officer who tried to save him was thrown from the stadium wall to his death 50 feet below. A third policeman was thrown into the path of stampeding spectators and was trampled.

Pazos said he couldn't understand why the stadium gates were closed.

"Fifteen minutes before the game was to end, the gates to the stadium were open," he said. "Then they were closed. This doesn't make sense."

Crying as he talked, Pazos said, "I was correct in my call. There was no mistake. I called the game by the rules."

"An excellent referee, an all-around athlete, one hundred per cent honest," said the Montevideo newspaper El Pais.

News reports from Kwangju said police arrested about 20 students. Two demonstrators and a policeman were injured.

GOULET A SILENT BACKER

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Robert Goulet is to be a silent backer of "One of My Lovers Is Missing," a play scheduled for debut next fall on the White Way.

Colorado's Cattle Feeders Due to Sell More Beef

If current marketing trends continue, Colorado cattle feeders will sell 19,000 more finished cattle during April through June than they did during the same period last year.

According to Hugh Winn, livestock marketing specialist at Colorado State University, this same trend is also indicated for most Western Corn Belt and Great Plains states. The largest increases in fed cattle marketing are expected in Colorado, Kansas, the Dakotas, Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri.

April fed cattle marketings in Colorado increased 5,000 head over last year, Winn explains. Therefore, if the April - June marketing estimate is correct over 14,000 more fed cattle will move to market during May and June than during these same months last year.

During the last three weeks, national beef slaughter rates have reached record levels. These record slaughter rates of cattle under federal inspection have averaged well over 475,000 head each week, Winn continues.

In addition, average weights of these cattle are higher than last year. For example, "choice" cattle sold on the Denver market from April 1 through May 7 averaged 30 pounds heavier than a year ago. Average weight for this period in 1963 was 1,154 pounds . . currently it is 1,184.

The question of whether American consumers can keep up with the record slaughter rates will have considerable effect on the future beef situation, the livestock marketing specialist states.

If the large number of beef animals now being slaughtered is not matched by increased consumer buying, some of the record supply could go into cold storage. Cold storage stocks are currently running about 116 million pounds ahead of the past five - year average.

An increase in cold storage holdings would further complicate the summer and fall beef situation if marketings continue to increase during the period according to present estimates.

Mrs. Jeannette M. Lynch, CSU extension consumer marketing specialist, says increased beef purchases on the part of the American consumer may partially keep in step with the increased slaughter of beef animals. She indicates American enthusiasm for beef may push per capita consumption of this product over the 100 pound mark this year. Per capita consumption of beef in 1962 was 89 pounds ... it advanced to 95 pounds in 1963.

Currently, the longer - cooking cuts (chucks, ribs, plate beef) are getting stronger competition from steaks and "quality" cuts at unusually attractive prices. Mrs. Lynch expects this trend to continue as the summer "cook - out" season approaches.

Consumers with freezer facilities may be reaching the saturation point as far as beef buying is concerned. Many have already taken advantage of low retail prices and stocked adequate beef supplies, the extension consumer marketing specialist explains.

One of the big drawbacks in the current beef supply situation from a conusmer point of view is the higher percentage of overly fat cuts coming from finished cattle weighing over 1,200 pounds, Mrs. Lynch states. "It is hard to sell this kind of product to many American housewives."

There are still many cattle in this weight class being held from the markets, notes CSU Livestock Marketing Specialist Winn. This holdover will not only continue to affect the kind of beef appearing on retail display counters, but will also give feeders little local price relief during the next six weeks, he concludes.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices deteriorated gradually early this afternoon with electronic issues leading the way. The trading pace was slightly faster than the last two sessions when activity was near the slowest of the year.

Most changes were fractional although a few key issues included in the popular averages gave up a point or so. Farm implement and rubber issues were generally lower by small fractions.

Most Wall Streeters expected little more than the gradual slide of prices that has been under way for the last two sessions. They figured there will be no major change until after the holiday weekend. The market is closed Friday for Memorial Day.

At noon, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .7 at 305.4. Industrials were down 1.4, rails off .1 and utilities down .2. The noon Dow Jones industrial average was 816.04, off 2.88.

Prices opened narrowly mixed and soon turned downward.

Sperry Rand was among the most active of the electronics and was down about ½.

Zenith was down a major fraction.

The steels, which made fractional gains Tuesday, were on the way to repeating their performance.

Rails presented an irregular picture.

Among the wide movers, IBM and Xerox fell around 5.

Prices continued mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Selling was persistent and sufficiently heavy in the grain futures market today to drive all commodities into weakness in the early afternoon on the Board of Trade.

Declines ranged to two cents in wheat and to well over a cent in rye and soybeans.

Carlot receipts today were estimated at: wheat 1 car, corn 66, oats none, rye none, barley 8, soybeans 4.

Golden Cycle Proposes New Setup to Carry Out Project

Golden Cycle Corp. stockholders will be asked at a special meeting here Thursday to approve formation of a new company, Cripple Creek Gold Inc., to carry out a project outlined in a letter from Merrill E. Shoup, president, and Max W. Bowen, executive vice president.

Golden Cycle would assign all its properties in the Cripple Creek District and all shares and securities in other Cripple Creek mining corporations to the new company in a move for re-evaluation and possible redevelopment of its properties.

Golden Cycle holds about 2,000 acres in the Cripple Creek District, and has about 3,000 acres of fee land and owns coal rights on 3,000 acres in the Colorado Springs Area. Golden Cycle said in its 1963 report that 64.38 acres of fee land were sold last year for an average of $1,665 an acre, a total of $107,189.

Cripple Creek Gold Inc. would have 251,053 shares, the same number as the Golden Cycle shares, which would be assigned to the new firm. Management of Cripple Creek Gold Inc. would be identical with that of Golden Cycle.

The project will not be carried out unless at least 60 per cent of the stock is voted for it.

The letter to stockholders said the Golden Cycle management believes that a considerable amount of geological and development work should be done in the Cripple Creek District "so that if an improvement occurs in the economics of the gold industry, the company will have necessary data to attract investment capital for resumption of mining and milling activities."

Discussions have been carried out with mining companies with a view to an agreement on a percentage basis, the letter said.

Mining and milling in Cripple Creek District were shut down at the end of 1961, and since that time Golden Cycle has confined its operations largely to land development, land sales and ice and cold storage business.

Golden Cycle said it costs $80,000 a year to carry its properties in the Cripple Creek District, and the new setup would enable Golden Cycle to save that amount in addition to separating its Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek holdings.

Golden Cycle was founded in 1895 and treated more than 40 per cent of the $436 million worth of gold ore shipped from the Cripple Creek District.

Kaufman's Pays $12,445.57 Into Trust Fund

Kaufman's contributed $12,445.57 this year to its Employees Profit Sharing Trust, the largest contribution made since the trust was set up several years ago.

Morris Guberman, president of Kaufman's, said six beneficiaries drew $6,307.42 in the fund in 1963, and in April, this year, an additional $2,482.63 was paid to four former employes.

Guberman, in his talk to employees last week, stressed the importance of profits to a business and particularly the advantages where a business has a profit-sharing plan.

Kaufman's profit sharing retirement program was instituted in 1957. Kaufman's pays a share of its yearly profits to the fund, which is held in trust by the trust department of the First National Bank and invested. The fund is distributed to eligible employees who retire or leave Kaufmans employment.

Severe Storms Hammer Areas Of U.S. Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was warm and humid in the Southeast today and fairly cool and wet in wide areas from the Northwest across the north central regions to the northern Appalachians.

More showers splashed along the boundary of the cooler and warmer weather extending from Maine to Ohio, westward to Kansas and along much of the Rocky Mountains and the west central part of the nation.

Severe storms hammered areas in the Midwest Tuesday with heavy rain, hail and strong winds. Hardest hit sections were from Kansas to Ohio, with damaging wind and thunderstorms in many parts of Kansas, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio.

Tornadic winds ripped off the roofs of two schools in Indiana near Bedford and at Northfield, minutes after pupils had left the building. Property damage from the storms that swept a 200-mile path in Indiana were estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. A fisherman was killed when a tree toppled on him on the Kentucky shore of the Ohio River, across from Madison, Ind.

Heavy hail and winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour lashed the Kansas City area.

Window Smashing In Security Area

Two cases of window smashing in the Security area were reported to the sheriff's office Tuesday. In both instances glass marbles were thrown at the windows.

The first happened at the home of Robert Williams, 132 Cornell St., where a $40 plate glass window was smashed.

The second incident was reported by Hugh Boring, 405 Kiva Rd. He told Deputy Sheriff Harry Orvis that he and his family were in the living room when they heard something hit a sliding glass door. Damage amounted to $25.

Oral Exams Readied For Police Candidates

Prospective candidates for the Colorado Springs police department will be given oral examinations June 10 before the City Civil Service Commission.

A total of 16 men have qualified for the final exams in written and physical tests taken at an earlier date.

Steelmakers Changing to New Techniques

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—American steelmasters, converging on New York today for their annual meeting, are comparing notes on the fast change-over to new techniques now under way. Some of the smaller companies are claiming credit for leading the move to catch up with steelmakers abroad.

Beyond that, delegates to the American Iron & Steel Institute meeting are being told to "anticipate major changes in metallurgical education and laboratory research" with whose new industries to "emerge out of the new scientific developments."

The here-and-now changes are coming fast, if belatedly. Continuous casting units are the latest, touted as saving from $3 to $12 a ton by skipping steps in the older process. This trend follows closely on the switch to oxygen furnaces, which can cut $2 to $8 a ton from costs of production from the standard open hearths.

Continuous casting was first used in the European Common Market, Japan and Russia. Recently it was taken up here by some small steel companies. And now many of the biggest concerns are building or planning to build continuous casting units. These bypass the ingot mold, stripping, soaking pit, and blooming mill, to convert molten metal into semifinished steel in one operation.

U.S. Steel will have a unit in operation in about two years at Gary, Ind. National Steel will have one at Weirton, W.Va., and Armco Steel at Butler, Pa. Bethlehem's pilot model will soon be in operation. Republic is building oxygen furnace plants which could accommodate continuous casting units later. McLouth is experimenting with the process.

But some small companies have units already in operation: Roanoke Steel, Roblin Steel, Connors Steel division of H. K. Porter.

The reason seems to be that this is one innovation which the small firm, as well as the large, can afford.

Timken Reaffirms Employment Policy

The Timken Roller Bearing Company announced that it had signed a joint statement with the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity reaffirming the company's policies and the committee's policies on equal employment opportunity.

The statement, called a "Plan for Progress," was signed by W. R. Timken, president of The Timken Roller Bearing Company, and by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The Timken Company is one of more than 200 nationally known companies with a total annual sales volume exceeding $149 billion who have signed or have submitted similar Plans. The company statement said that: "The Timken Roller Bearing Company reaffirms its policy of treating all employees and applicants, whether or not they are members of minority groups, equally according to their individual qualifications, ability, experience, and other employment standards. There is to be no discrimination because of race, creed, color, or national origin."

Hewlett-Packard Earnings Gain 25 Per Cent

Hewlett-Packard Co., which operates an oscilloscope plant here, reported Monday net earnings of $3,944,000 for the six-month period ended April 30. The earnings represent a 25 per cent increase over the $3,162,000 earned during the first six months of the company's 1963 fiscal year.

Earnings allocated to common stock, after provision for payment of preferred dividends, totaled $3,742,000. This was equivalent to 33 cents a share on 11,272,148 shares outstanding, compared with 27 cents a share on 11,162,314 shares outstanding for the corresponding period in 1963.

The company's six-month operating results were announced by David Packard, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, at a meeting of Boston Security Analysts. Packard told the analysts that Hewlett-Packard, a major manufacturer of electronic test equipment headquarters in Palo Alto, Calif., had the "best first half in its 25 year history."

"Sales totaled $59,643,000, an increase of nine per cent over sales of $54,777,000 for the first six months of 1963," Packard said. "In addition, our incoming orders amounted to $61,019,000, an 11 per cent gain over the corresponding period last year."

Packard pointed out that operating results for the first half of 1963 have been restated to give effect to the current write-off of research and development expense, thereby making them comparable to fiscal 1964 figures. As a result, the earnings now reported for the first half of 1963 are slightly less than those previously reported.

Packard said the company developed a number of new products last year and that the subsequent entry of these products into the Hewlett-Packard worldwide market had a "substantially beneficial effect" on first half sales and earnings in 1964.

He also pointed out that the company's international business is continuing to grow rapidly and now accounts for about 20 per cent of total volume.

Hewlett-Packard's sales, according to Packard, are traditionally higher in the second half of the fiscal year than the first. He noted that 1962 sales were 10 per cent higher in the second half and that last year the difference was nearly 12 per cent.

"Our second half business is usually stimulated by a seasonal upswing in orders during the the summer months," Packard said, "and in addition, the new products we introduce each March at the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineering convention tend to add a significant increment to volume in the second half."

Packard also pointed out that Hewlett-Packard is expanding its technology into new fields of instrumentation. He cited the recent acquisition of Mechrolab, Inc. as a significant step in this expansion. Mechrolab, in Mountain View, Calif., manufactures a broad range of medical and scientific instruments, including blood clot timers osometers and automated manometers. The company became a wholly owned subsidiary of Hewlett-Packard Company in March.

Has 'Pool' Therapy Cured 'Golditis' of Uncle Sam?

By SAM CAMPBELL

A few months ago you were reading that the U.S. gold supply was in bad shape. But more recently you read that foreign claims against the supply had dropped off dramatically. What caused the change? Has the threat to the financial security of the United States evaporated?

Sir Winston Churchill observed that Anglo-Saxons have a great capacity for supposing that a danger is passed because it ths not yet arrived. And that thought will prove a useful guide as we loos into the present status of the gold situation.

The matter is reviewed in the May 18, 1964, report of the American Institute for Economic Research of Great Barrington, Mass.

The Institute points out that the gold drain started in 1958, reached a dramatic rate in October, 1960, and eventually reduced the stock at Fort Knox from $22.8 billion to $15.5 billion.

Late in 1961 U.S. financial authorities made an informal arrangement with seven major European central banks whereby the group would share in selling gold on the London market in order to hold the price. This arrangement came to be known as "the gold pool."

What it amounts to is this, according to the Institute:

First, when the price of gold tends to rise, the several parties to the pool sell. Secondly, members of the group coordinate their buying of gold. The overall effect, therefore, is to stabilize the price of gold. That contributed heavily to the change in appearances.

So far as the individual European or Latin American is concerned (Americans are forbidden by law to own gold), the effect is to cause him to believe that he always can get gold if he wants it, so what is the hurry?

In other words, it takes the pressure off.

Now what is wrong with an arrangement like that?

The answer is nothing. That is, nothing in the sense the gold pool does any direct harm. It's like a tight bandage on a broken leg; it helps a little temporarily, but it doesn't put the patient back in operation.

Any real cure of Uncle Sam's "golditis" eventually must come from a treatment of the cause.

The origin of the gold outflow is a bit peculiar. Unlike similar phenomena in other countries, does not arise from a trade deficit. Our trade balance isn't so bad. The real source of the trouble is the fact that the federal government makes gift payments of American dollars to residents of other countries. And the recipients cash these credits through Swiss banks at Ft. Knox.

At the height of the outflow, when American opinions were beginning to be aroused, Insiders News Letter — a Cowles publication — reported that Latin American recipients of foreign aid were buying real estate in Florida. The end effect, therefore — with procedural steps eliminated — is a giveaway of American soil.

The Institute wraps the subject in more scholarly language. It says:

"The gold pool can do nothing to get at the causes of the nation's gold problem. It deals merely with one manifestation or symptom of those causes.

"The solution of the problem can be achieved only by the adoption of fiscal and monetary policies that will put an end to government deficits, remove the threat of further inflation, and eliminate the long-continued deficit in the balance of international payments."

Golden Cycle Proposes New Setup to Carry Out Project

Golden Cycle Corp. stockholders will be asked at a special meeting here Thursday to approve formation of a new company, Cripple Creek Gold, Inc., to carry out a project outlined in a letter from Merrill E. Shoup, president, and Max W. Bowen, executive vice president.

Golden Cycle would assign all its properties in the Cripple Creek District and all shares and securities in other Cripple Creek mining corporations to the new company in a move for re-evaluation and possible redevelopment of its properties.

Golden Cycle holds about 2,000 acres in the Cripple Creek District, and has about 3,000 acres of fee land and owns coal rights on 3,000 acres in the Colorado Springs Area. Golden Cycle said in its 1963 report that 64.38 acres of fee land were sold last year for an average of $1,665 an acre, a total of $107,189.

Cripple Creek Gold Inc. would have 251,053 shares, the same number as the Golden Cycle shares, which would be assigned to the new firm. Management of Cripple Creek Gold Inc. would be identical with that of Golden Cycle.

The project will not be carried out unless at least 60 per cent of the stock is voted for it.

The letter to stockholders said the Golden Cycle management believes that a considerable amount of geological and development work should be done in the Cripple Creek District "so that if an improvement occurs in the economics of the gold industry, the company will have necessary data to attract investment capital for resumption of mining and milling activities."

Discussions have been carried out with mining companies with a view to an agreement on a percentage basis, the letter said.

Mining and milling in Cripple Creek District were shut down at the end of 1961, and since that time Golden Cycle has confined its operations largely to land development, land sales and ice and cold storage business.

Golden Cycle said it costs $80,000 a year to carry its properties in the Cripple Creek District, and the new setup would enable Golden Cycle to save that amount in addition to separating its Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek holdings.

Golden Cycle was founded in 1895 and treated more than 40 per cent of the $436 million worth of gold ore shipped from the Cripple Creek District.

Kaufman's Pays $12,445.57 Into Trust Fund

Kaufman's contributed $12,445.57 this year to its Employees Profit Sharing Trust, the largest contribution made since the trust was set up several years ago.

Morris Guberman, president of Kaufman's, said six beneficiaries drew $6,307.42 in the fund in 1963, and in April this year, an additional $2,482.63 was paid to four former employes.

Guberman in his talk to employees last week, stressed the importance of profits to a business and particularly the advantages where a business has a profit-sharing plan.

Kaufman's profit sharing retirement program was instituted in 1957. Kaufman's pays a share of its yearly profits to the fund, which is held in trust by the trust department of the First National Bank and invested. The fund is distributed to eligible employees who retire or leave Kaufmans employment.

Steelmakers Changing to New Techniques

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—American steelmasters, converging on New York today for their annual meeting, are comparing notes on the fast change-over to new techniques now under way. Some of the smaller companies are claiming credit for leading the move to catch up with steelmakers abroad.

Beyond that, delegates to the American Iron & Steel Institute meeting are being told to "anticipate major changes in metallurgical education and laboratory research" with whose new industries to "emerge out of the new scientific developments."

The here-and-now changes are coming fast, if belatedly. Continuous casting units are the latest, touted as saving from $3 to $12 a ton by skipping steps in the older process. This trend follows closely on the switch to oxygen furnaces, which can cut $2 to $8 a ton from costs of production from the standard open hearths.

Continuous casting was first used in the European Common Market, Japan and Russia. Recently it was taken up here by some small steel companies. And now many of the biggest concerns are building or planning to build continuous casting units. These bypass the ingot mold stripping, soaking pit, and blooming mill, to convert molten metal into semifinished steel in one operation.

U.S. Steel will have a unit in operation in about two years at Gary. Ind. National Steel will have one at Weirton, W.Va., and Armco Steel at Butler, Pa. Bethlehem's pilot model will soon be in operation. Republic is building oxygen furnace plants which could accommodate continuous casting units later. McLouth is experimenting with the process.

But some small companies have units already in operation. Roanoke Steel, Roblin Steel, Connors Steel division of H. K. Porter.

The reason seems to be that this is one innovation which the small firm, as well as the large, can afford.

Severe Storms Hammer Areas Of U.S. Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was warm and humid in the Southeast today and fairly cool and wet in wide areas from the Northwest across the north central regions to the northern Appalachians.

More showers splashed along the boundary of the cooler and warmer weather extending from Maine to Ohio, westward to Kansas and along much of the Rocky Mountains and the west central part of the nation.

Severe storms hammered areas in the Midwest Tuesday with heavy rain, hail and strong winds. Hardest hit sections were from Kansas to Ohio, with damaging wind and thunderstorms in many parts of Kansas, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio.

Tornadic winds ripped off the roofs of two schools in Indiana, near Bedford and at Northfield, minutes after pupils had left the building. Property damage from the storms that swept a 200-mile path in Indiana were estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. A fisherman was killed when a tree toppled on him on the Kentucky shore of the Ohio River, across from Madison, Ind.

Heavy hail and winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour lashed the Kansas City area.

Window Smashing In Security Area

Two cases of window smashing in the Security area were reported to the sheriff's office Tuesday. In both instances glass marbles were thrown at the windows.

The first happened at the home of Robert Williams, 132 Cornell St., where a $40 plate glass window was smashed.

The second incident was reported by Hugh Boring, 495 Kiva Rd. He told Deputy Sheriff Harry Orvis that he and his family were in the living room when they heard something hit a sliding glass door. Damage amounted to $25.

Million Poured By Demos Into Party Treasury

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats gaily chorused "Once in Love with Lyndon" as they poured an estimated million dollars in the party treasury Tuesday night and heard President Johnson stop just short of declaring what everyone knows — that he plans to be around for four more years.

Republicans were singing another tune.

They charged that career government employes had been pressured into taking part in the $100-a-ticket Democratic frolic.

The festivities were part of fund raising efforts expected to net more than $3 million this week for the 1964 Democratic presidential campaign. A re-run of the whole show is scheduled Thursday night in New York.

Some 6,000 turned out for the star-filled "Salute to Johnson" show at the District of Columbia Armory, with 750 persons on hand for the earlier $1,000-a-plate dinner with the President.

No figures were available, but the festivities probably contributed at least the $1 million predicted in advance.

But Johnson, with tongue firmly in cheek, insisted it was not a political shindig.

"This show is open to anyone who wants to contribute $100 to the Democratic campaign," he said.

On the serious side, Johnson told the crowd, "This is a significant moment. You are gathering as one Democratic administration draws to a close—and as we prepare for another four years of Democratic leadership."

Departing from his prepared text, the President, who never officially has said he will be a candidate next fall, added:

"I hope that you are all going to be with me for these years of achievement that are yet to come."

Johnson spent much of his speech pointing with pride to past accomplishments of Democratic presidents, and promising great things for the future.

But as an incumbent, he did not view with alarm anything, past, present or future.

He said: "Our legacy from the past is our faith in the future. From Jefferson to Kennedy we in this hall have received that legacy—a torch passed from one generation to the next.

"Let us carry that torch proudly toward our vision of the future."

As Democrats glowed, Republican Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware glowered and tried to get a Senate investigation of reported solicitation of career government employes to buy tickets to the fund-raising affair.

Williams introduced a resolution in the Senate Tuesday asking Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to determine whether solicitation of career employes is a violation of the law.

The resolution said career employes should be protected from such "partisan political pressures" and directed Kennedy, if he finds it is legal to solicit political contributions from government employes, to draft new legislation within 60 days to prohibit "further solicitations of this nature."

Democrats refused to let Williams' resolution come to a vote but it remained on the calendar.

Actor Gregory Peck, master of ceremonies for the "Salute to Johnson," told the President the year 1964 would be remembered "by the Republican party as the year of the write-in, by Democrats as the year of the shoo-in—Lyndon B. Johnson."

Then, for two hours, the crowd was entertained by the gospel singing of Mahalia Jackson, the folk singing of Joan Baez and the New Christy Minstrels, the comedy of Allan Sherman and Woody Allen, opera singer Anna Moffo, film stars Gina Lollobrigida and Mitzi Gaynor, and the New York City Center Ballet.

Nigerian Troops Will Be Sent to Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations plans to send about 900 Nigerian troops to help the Congo army restore order in rebellion - torn Kivu Province.

A U.N. spokesman said Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula had sent an oral request for aid against 3,000 leftist-led warriors of the Bafulero tribe who control about half of the Ruzizi River valley between the Congo and Burundi.

Adoula has concentrated about 1,400 Congolese troops in the province.

WASHINGTON AP — Democrats gaily chorused "Once in Love with Lyndon" as they poured an estimated million dollars in the party treasury Tuesday night and heard President Johnson stop just short of declaring what everyone knows — that he plans to be around for four more years.

"This show is open to anyone who wants to contribute $1[illegible] the Democratic campaign," he said.

Departing from the text prepared for the President, who never officially has said he will be a candidate next fall, added:

"I hope that you are all going to be with me for three years of achievement that are yet to come."

HIGH MORTALITY GROUPS

High blood pressure, obesity, and diabetes are a sinister trio. There is no better way to discourage a life insurance salesman than to tell him you have one or more of these conditions. This is understandable because all are associated with a considerable rise in mortality from heart attacks.

Men under 50 with a blood pressure of 170-100 mm. have 3½ times the death rate from coronary disease as men with normal blood pressure. A reading of 150-90 more than doubles the ratio. Hypertension is less serious when it comes on in males over 50.

The obese may drive some comfort from the fact that overweight is not as dangerous as a slight elevation of the blood pressure. A man under 60 years of age, who is 20 per cent above normal poundage, has only a 20 per cent increase in mortality from all causes. On the other hand, 35 to 50 per cent excess weight raises the rate 50 per cent. Diabetes also increases the hazard, more so when accompanied by high blood pressure.

The trio is sinister because most of the victims develop arteriosclerosis earlier than usual and die prematurely of heart attacks. This dark picture is not as grim as it sounds. All of these conditions can be corrected or controlled.

Hypertension, for example should be treated as soon as discovered. This is easy to do with modern diuretics and sedatives and the avoidance of salt. Diabetics like hypertension, damages the arteries when allowed to progress. Early treatment with diet and insulin or an anti-diabetic tablet usually brings the disease under control.

Obesity is the most difficult to correct because it involves will power and emotional needs. Weight loss helps lower high blood pressure and control diabetes and is a must when these disorders coexist.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

C. S. DUDLEY

Rather, this is an "I Disremember" piece.

The other night I was reading in my Father's arithmetic and such words as minuend, subtrahend, multiplicand, product, dividend, quotient and others seemed like a foreign language. I had to sit and think awhile before there came back to me the faintest adumbration of such things from early school days. They had departed from me entirely.

I told myself I was the greatest flop that ever lived. And I don't dispute that on second thought.

I couldn't grasp the problems of finding the square root or cube root of large numbers, even with samples before my eyes. And I know I was carefully taught such things by patient and long-suffering teachers. Where has gone that which they thought I learned?

I certainly have been a flop.

I read on of arithmetical details pertaining to partnerships promissory notes and various kinds of gains and losses in business.

All a blank to me. Although, to tell the truth, I have worked at newspaper scribbling and have had no touch with business.

Nevertheless I could not get the floppiness concerning myself off of my mind and got into the dumps so deeply that I had to take a couple of nitroglycerin pills for a heart spasm that came on.

But after coming to work at my job I have got a little lift. I asked several persons with whom I work if they remembered clearly those things I had forgotten, and they told me they did not. And they are certainly not flops, but successful men and women. In a different habitat than a newspaper news room, such as a bank for instance, I have no doubt there would not have been such a show of forgetfulness, for they use arithmetic daily and all day.

No, I am the only flop. I am sure of it.

My Father's arithmetic is very old. I don't think I looked at the copyright date. But sample partnership agreement problems, promissory note examples, interest problems and gain or loss problems in the purchase and sale if horses and cows were all dated 1875.

I would say a full quarter of this arithmetic treates of problems I know I did not get until I was studying plain and solid geometry in high school. I remember those problems more clearly, although if I did not flunk in them I must have got through by the skin of my teeth. They come to mind more nearly definitely than this arithmetic of the first grade.

Instead, I should say second grade, as I was late in getting into school and was put in the second grade. It may have been the third or fourth or fifth grade where I was introduced to these strange arithmetic terms. I don't know. Now in my 80's, those days have just about vanished from my memory. That is, of some things, such as studying. In some other respects school days hold up remarkably clear.

I have my old arithmetic. The covers are worn down to the bare pasteboard, and that is all gouged up from contact with fence posts, as I carried this and other books buckled in a strap with enough free end so I could swing the horrid things. But I do remember that on the outside of one of the covers there was a multiplication table. No multiplication table appears in my Father's arithmetic.

Why is it that when one does get something difficult through his head it doesn't stay with him? Or, perhaps, it does with other people.

In a different habitat than a newspaper news room, such as a bank for instance, I have no doubt there would not have been such a show of forgetfulness, for they use arithmetic daily and all day.

No, I am the only flop. I am sure of it.

My Father's arithmetic is very old. I don't think I looked at the copyright date. But sample partnership agreement problems, promissory note examples, interest problems and gain or loss problems in the purchase and sale of horses and cows were all dated 1875.

I would say a full quarter of this arithmetic treates of problems I know I did not get until I was studying plain and solid geometry in high school. I remember those problems more clearly, although if I did not flunk in them I must have got through by the skin of my teeth. They come to mind more nearly definitely than this arithmetic of the first grade.

Instead, I should say second grade, as I was late in getting into school and was put in the second grade. It may have been the third or fourth or fifth grade where I was introduced to these strange arithmetic terms. I don't know. Now in my 80's, those days have just about vanished from my memory. That is, of some things, such as studying. In some other respects school days hold up remarkably clear.

I have my old arithmetic. The covers are worn down to the bare pasteboard, and that is all gouged up from contact with fence posts, as I carried this and other books buckled in a strap with enough free end so I could swing the horrid things. But I do remember that on the outside of one of the covers there was a multiplication table. No multiplication table appears in my Father's arithmetic.

Why is it that when one does get something difficult through his head it doesn't stay with him? Or, perhaps, it does with other people.

Rocky Abandons Underdog Role In California

By JACK BELL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller apparently believes he has welded a responsibility key that will unlock the doors to victory in California's vital Republican presidential primary next Tuesday.

The New York governor has tossed overboard the underdog role he played expertly in winning the May 15 Oregon primary. In that contest he damaged beyond practical repair the potential candidacy of U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Rockefeller now is reported highly confident he can handily defeat Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in next week's voting and thus blight the Arizona conservative's burgeoning drive for the 655 convention votes needed for the presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's public prediction that if he wins California's 86 votes in Tuesday's balloting he will have 400 convention votes on the first ballot is privately chalked up in his own camp as a booboo.

Even if he can field all of New York's 92 votes—of which there is some doubt—Oregon's 18 and California's 86 would give him just 196. He probably would go over the 200 mark but would still be a distant second to Goldwater on the first countdown at the San Francisco meeting.

But his victory in Oregon and his confidence that he can win in California have restored the governor's obviously faltering faith—which he never conceded publicly—that he could win the nomination for himself.

Nobody around him was willing to admit it aloud, but until Oregon came along and California began to look good, the Rockefeller operation was regarded by the political pros as little more than a desperate effort to stop Goldwater.

The pros are not ready quite yet to go along, but Rockefeller's people are talking optimistically of getting the nomination for their candidate. They are bearing down on the point that the governor really believes he can beat President Johnson in November. They are suggesting that Goldwater and some other potential nominees have no such faith in their prowess.

The Rockefeller people believe a California primary victory would be accepted as proof GOP voters are not being influenced against him because of his divorce and marriage to the divorced mother of four children.

Rockefeller told a Young Republican audience in the swank Beverly Hilton Hotel Tuesday night that the issues in his head-on battle with Goldwater is "whether the Republican party is going to move forward in the mainstream of public life or whether it will pull off into a small eddy, pulled there by a small minority in the party."

Rockefeller got polite but not exactly enthusiastic applause when he said that Goldwater—"my competitor or whatever you call him"—does not stand within the framework of Republican responsibility as defined by (former) President Eisenhower."

Orphan Confesses He Set Three Fires

CULLMAN, Ala. (AP) — A teen-age orphan was in the city jail today after officers said he had confessed to setting three costly fires at the Childhaven Orphanage because he was unhappy over a change of administrators.

Police Chief R. B. Moyer said the boy, 14, a timid youth who had been in the orphanage since age 3, signed a statement admitting he set fires on April 2, May 6 and May 11.

The May 6 fire virtually destroyed the third floor of the orphanage's main building and forced the evacuation of children housed there. No one was hurt. Damage was placed at $45,512.

'Barebones Plan' Seen for U.S. Foreign Aid

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—Add the barebones technique to President Johnson's long list of ways of getting things done.

It served to get the foreign aid bill through the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and it may well get the bill all the way through Congress virtually untouched.

For the first time since the foreign aid program started back in the days after World War II, the Foreign Affairs Committee did not cut even one cent from the total.

Not only that, it added an extra $125 million to jack up the war effort in Viet Nam, making a total of about $3.5 billion for economic aid and military assistance to countries around the world.

A final routine vote by the committee on a clean copy of the bill is expected today to send it on its way to the House floor.

Last year, by contrast, President John F. Kennedy first asked for $4.9 billion for the program. By the time it had threaded its way through the appropriations process it came out at $3.3 billion.

Foreign Affairs Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., said in past years "everybody looked on this as a padded affair. This is a complete reversal. I think the President took a look at this thing and said he wasn't going through that procedure and run that gantlet."

"I think we've seen the last time the old way will be tried," Morgan added in an interview. "The new method is just to ask for and request exactly what it takes for defense and the mutual security of our nation."

That is the barebones technique. It gets its name from repeated references by administration witnesses to barebones and rockbottom.

"It was very effective," said Rep. E. Ross Adair, R-Ind., leader of the anti-foreign aid forces on the committee. He gave much of the credit to effective presentation by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on the military portion of the program.

But in spite of the success of Johnson's technique so far, its test of fire is still to come.

That test is Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that must vote on the actual money for the program. The Foreign Affairs Committee merely sets the ceiling in its authorization bill.

Agricultural Miracle Ended By Breakdown

ROME (UPI) — Fewer and older farmers — a growing percentage of them women — are proving unequal to the task of feeding an industrialized Italy.

And that's what's at the root of the economic trouble that brought an abrupt end to the "Italian miracle."

As Italian industry boomed and employment grew, the rising demand for manpower caused wages to go up. The workers in the cities, and the millions who migrated there from the countryside, rather suddenly found themselves better off than they ever had been.

In a country which until recently had been very poor, a sizable share of the workers' additional purchasing power went into more or better food.

Italian agriculture just could not meet the demand. The results were rising domestic prices, a wage-price spiral and massive food imports which upset the country's balance of payments.

In 1953, the average Italian ate 40 pounds of meat a year. In 1963, he ate 77 pounds.

Sugar consumption was 32 pounds a year per person in 1953 and 55 pounds in 1963. Consumption went up from 13.5 pounds to 33 pounds for olive oil, from 13 gallons to 16.5 gallons for milk and from 143 pounds to 208 pounds for fruit.

At the same time, farm population, which was 8,261,000 (M) in 1951, went down to 5,657,000 (M) in 1961.

Persons over 45 years of age, who in 1951 accounted for 31.3 per cent of the farmers and peasants, were up to 42.6 per cent.

Only 13.1 per cent of Italy's total working force is above 55 years, but the percentage zooms to 21.8 per cent in agriculture. The phenomenon is especially marked in some areas with a low birth rate, such as Liguria (the Italian Riviera), where 36.2 per cent of the farm manpower is above 55.

Women carry a growing share of the burden of tilling the land. In 1951 they accounted for 24.6 per cent of the persons employed in agriculture. Ten years later they were up to 26.6 per cent.

The feminization of agriculture was sharpest in the southern region of Apulia, where women accounted for 31 per cent in 1951 and for 41 per cent in 1961.

This did not mean that women were happy to work on the farm, but simply that they were left behind by the men who migrated to the cities. Whenever they can, women join the exodus.

When the growth in food demand came, Italian agriculture was completely unequipped to meet it and the country had to resort to import. Imports of agricultural commodities in the first 11 months of 1963 outweighed exports by 285 billion lire ($456 million) compared with a favorable balance of 43.5 billion lire ($69.6 million) the year before.

There is little that can be done about it in the near future. The government hopes to increase productivity in the long run by gradually doing away with sharecropping and granting sharecroppers special 40-year, one per cent interest loans to buy the land they work.

Many experts, remembering the high cost and little effect of postwar land reform, doubt this will help much.

Malaysians Resist Indonesian Move

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Malaysia stood fast today against a new Indonesian attempt to stage peace talks without a pledge to pull Indonesian guerrillas out of Malaysian Borneo.

The Malaysian Cabinet rejected for the second time Indonesian terms which did not commit President Sukarno's regime to any specific degree of withdrawal.

Malaysia has insisted on a "genuine and significant" pullout of guerrillas before agreeing to a second round of talks by Sukarno, President Diosdado Macapagal of the Philippines and Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia.

Bud Wilkinson Is Opposed by 33-Year-Old

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Democrats Tuesday night tapped Fred Harris, a 33-year-old attorney, as their man to tackle the pride of the Republicans — ex - football coach Bud Wilkinson, — for the U.S. Senate.

Harris swamped incumbent Sen. J. Howard Edmondson, whose meteoric rise in politics was cut short by sudden and overwhelming defeat.

Even more surprising was the victory of under-aged Jed Johnson over 6th District Rep. Victor Wickersham, an 18-year veteran of the lower chamber. The minimum age for a congressman is 25—and Johnson won't be that old until December.

Harris received 270,028 votes to 172,785 for Edmondson with all but a handful of the state's 3,044 precincts still out.

Johnson, who just barely won a runoff spot against Wickersham after the May 5 primary had 42,185 votes to 40,973 for Wickersham with all precincts reported.

Harris' stunning triumph was the climax to a bitter campaign.

Wilkinson, the Republican glamour candidate who turned to politics from a career as Oklahoma football coach, commented after Harris' victory that he hopes for a fall campaign based on issues rather than personalities.

Harris, a state senator and Lawton attorney, ran 5th in a field of 12 for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1962.

Edmondson's defeat in the Senate race was almost as great as his victory when he was elected governor in 1958. He resigned about a week before his term was to expire to accept a two - year appointment to the Senate after the death of Robert S. Kerr.

It is the final two years of Kerr's term which is involved in the current campaign.

Harris carried 74 of Oklahoma's 77 counties, missing out by only eight votes in Edmondson's home county, Muskogee, and in Cherokee and Adair counties.

Harris won the endorsement of Sen. Kerr's widow. The Kerr Senate staff formed the core of his campaign organization.

In the only other major election issue, rural residents led the way in giving resounding approval to what has been called a "Little Congress" plan for legislative apportionment.

Massed for what they called a "life or death" struggle against the federal court's reapportionment power, residents of some rural counties gave the constitutional amendment margins ranging up to 100 to 1.

The amendment bases representation in a 48-member Senate mainly on area, with some consideration given to population. The 128-member House is based on a population ratio system, with each county assured of at least one representative.

COMBINATION OF STYLES

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP) — There are plenty of modern house trailers in Florida but not many sport 17th Century furniture.

Hers apparently does, says Miss Anna Colborne, who retired from the Detroit Telephone Co. and came to Clewiston to grow orchids.

She installed in her trailer a table and four chairs handed down in her family. Then one day a vacationist stopped to admire her orchids and observed "orchids are out of my line—I'm an antique appraiser."

"He inspected the table and chairs thoroughly and said they were of English make of the said. "He thought they were of 17th Century." Miss Colborne the style known as Plymouth from the craftsmen building furniture at Plymouth, England at that time.

She said the chairs were appraised at $1,000 each, and the table at more.

Miss Colborne said she had no idea the furniture dated further back than the days of her grandmother.

NEW THEATER IS FREE

NEW YORK (AP)—A theater without a boxoffice is planned here by a producing trio who hope thereby to encourage showgoing by more people.

The group, called Independent Theater Productions, has rented a 450-seat auditorium on East Broadway, a thoroughfare on the Lower East Side. In addition to free performances, the project plans to emphasize cast integration.

The sponsoring three, Anton Agalbato, Dan Greene and August DePierre, plan to stage a new show every two months.

Bud Wilkinson Is Opposed by 33-Year-Old

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Democrats Tuesday night tapped Fred Harris, a 33-year-old attorney, as their man to tackle the pride of the Republicans — ex-football coach Bud Wilkinson, — for the U.S. Senate.

Harris swamped incumbent Sen. J. Howard Edmondson, whose meteoric rise in politics was cut short by sudden and overwhelming defeat.

Even more surprising was the victory of under-aged Jed Johnson over 6th District Rep. Victor Wickersham, an 18-year veteran of the lower chamber. The minimum age for a congressman is 25—and Johnson won't be that old until December.

Harris received 270,028 votes to 172,785 for Edmondson with all but a handful of the state's 3,044 precincts still out.

Johnson, who just barely won a runoff spot against Wickersham after the May 5 primary, had 42,185 votes to 40,973 for Wickersham with all precincts reported.

Harris' stunning triumph was the climax to a bitter campaign.

Wilkinson, the Republican glamour candidate who turned to politics from a career as Oklahoma football coach, commented after Harris' victory that he hopes for a full campaign based on issues rather than personalities.

Harris, a state senator and Lawton attorney, ran 5th in a field of 12 for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1962.

Edmondson's defeat in the Senate race was almost as great as his victory when he was elected governor in 1958. He resigned about a week before his term was to expire to accept a two-year appointment to the Senate after the death of Robert S. Kerr.

It is the final two years of Kerr's term which is involved in the current campaign.

Harris carried 74 of Oklahoma's 77 counties, missing out by only eight votes in Edmondson's home county, Muskogee, and in Cherokee and Adair counties.

Harris won the endorsement of Sen. Kerr's widow. The Kerr Senate staff formed the core of his campaign organization.

In the only other major election issue, rural residents led the way in giving resounding approval to what has been called a "Little Congress" plan for legislative apportionment.

Massed for what they called a "life or death" struggle against the federal court's reapportionment power, residents of some rural counties gave the constitutional amendment margins ranging up to 100 to 1.

The amendment bases representation in a 48-member Senate mainly on area, with some consideration given to population. The 128-member House is based on a population ratio system, with each county assured of at least one representative.

COMBINATION OF STYLES

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP) — There are plenty of modern house trailers in Florida but not many sport 17th Century furniture.

Hers apparently does, says Miss Anna Colborne, who retired from the Detroit Telephone Co. and came to Clewiston to grow orchids.

She installed in her trailer a table and four chairs handed down in her family. Then one day a vacationist stopped to admire her orchids and observed "orchids are out of my line—I'm an antique appraiser."

"He inspected the table and chairs thoroughly and said they were of English make of the said. "He thought they were of 17th Century." Miss Colborne the style known as Plymouth from the craftsmen building furniture at Plymouth, England at that time.

She said the chairs were appraised at $1,000 each, and the table at more.

Miss Colborne said she had no idea the furniture dated further back than the days of her grandmother.

NEW THEATER IS FREE

NEW YORK (AP)—A theater without a boxoffice is planned here by a producing trio who hope thereby to encourage showgoing by more people.

The group, called Independent Theater Productions, has rented a 450-seat auditorium on East Broadway, a thoroughfare on the Lower East Side. In addition to free performances, the project plans to emphasize cast integration.

The sponsoring three, Anton Agalbato, Dan Greene and August DePierre, plan to stage a new show every two months.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Fact — and Fiction

DEAR ABBY: This is for the mother who read her 16-year-old daughter's diary and was "worried sick." I, too, was 16 when my mother read my diary (12 years ago). It read like this: "After choir practice we all went to Margaret's house and as usual her mother was out. We were popping corn when Margaret's brother came in with some friends. 'R. M.' sure is the love of my life. When Margaret's mother came home, 'R. M.' was showing us how the coach gives rub-downs. I'm sure she thought the worst! Next week after choir we will go to Betty's as her folks will be out of town. Oh, boy! Here's hoping 'R. M.' will be there."

Some of the above was true, but the part about "R. M." was all wishful thinking. I had a terrific crush on him and he didn't know I was alive. I filled my diary with one imaginary love affair after another. Of course my mother would never believe that it was all made up. I'm sure that many teen-agers do this today. My own little girl (13) is now entering the thrilling age of secrets, and I am glad I have a secret to help guide me. Sincerely, —AUTHOR OF A TEEN-AGE DIARY

DEAR ABBY: I seldom disagree with you, but when you say that it is "unforgivable" for a mother to read her daughter's diary, I can't go along with that. It is the DUTY of parents to keep a close eye on their children until they are able to assume full responsibility for their actions. If a mother can learn something that will be helpful in guiding her daughter by reading her diary, or letters, or listening in on telephone conversations, I say more power to her! The "loss of privacy" is not nearly as serious to 15- or 16-year-olds as the trouble they could get into when they get away with things they shouldn't. It doesn't do an good to hear the confessions after a girl is in trouble when the trouble is evident. —ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW

DEAR ABBY: I, too, have read my 16-year-old daughter's diary for more than five years, and I expect to tell her only when she is lying awake waiting for her teen-ager to come in. By reading it, I have come to understand the intense need for love and patience at 16. It has helped me to foresee trouble before it develops, and to offer wise guidance. It has taught me to listen instead of preach. It has helped me to set limits before they are breached. It has also given me growing confidence in my daughter's ability to make the right decisions. I believe I have an obligation to God to return this child to Him as a fulfilled, useful person, not as an apology. And I know that I will be forgiven for using "unforgivable" means to do so when the time comes. —A MOM WHO CARES

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a 16-year-old boy, and while he doesn't keep a diary, I did come across an unfinished letter he had written to a boy cousin. I was shocked and heartsick at some of the stuff he said he had done. Since one incident had to do with school, I got in touch with his football coach, and a helpful school counselor, and had a talk with them. It turned out that my son hadn't done any of these things! He was just tired of being a "good kid" and wanted to appear more daring and spirited. Perhaps our entertainment today makes crime and violence appear so glamorous and exciting that our young people feel almost ashamed if they don't get into some sort of trouble. Parents shouldn't feel hurt if their children don't share all their thoughts and dreams with them. I know I didn't, and I might help the mother who was "Worried Sick" because of the escapades she read in her daughter's diary. They were probably pure fiction, too. —WANTING TO HELP

Opening lead: Queen of ♢ East laid the groundwork for the defense's campaign by means of an imaginative call during the auction. Thereafter, it was up to West to translate his partner's unusual cue bid into an effective plan of action.

The auction commenced normally enough. East had ample values for his mere one diamond overcall and he felt justified in offering further competition on the next round. Rather than rebid his diamonds, however, he paused to look into the future. Since his partner had remained silent, it was reasonable to anticipate that the opponents would out bid him. Should South become the declarer at a heart contract, it would be desirable to have West lead a club which East could ruff. East therefore decided to make a cue bid in North's suit, in the hope that it might induce West to open a club when the bidding was over. East could always retreat to diamonds if his two club bid was doubled. South chose to ignore his opponent's unorthodoxy, however, and, after jumping in hearts, he was raised to game by North.

West was a bit vague concerning the significance of his partner's cue bid, and, as a temporizing measure, he chose to open the queen of diamonds. East permitted West to hold the first trick and, in an effort to underline the purpose behind his bid, he followed with the deuce of diamonds.

East's extremely discouraging signal convinced West that his partner's cue bid in clubs had been designed to show first round control of that suit and, inasmuch as West had the ace himself, then East was clearly void of clubs.

While the normal procedure at this point would be to lay down the ace of clubs first, West was unwilling to alert declarer to the situation in clubs, so that the latter might take measures to protect himself against the unfavorable division. West therefore shifted to the deuce of clubs at trick two. South made the natural play of the king of clubs from dummy and East ruffed in with the seven of hearts.

In the subsequent play, West could not be prevented from taking two club tricks, and the contract went on the rocks. Had West played the ace and another club, South would have been able to avoid further loss in the suit since West could never get in again to give his partner another ruff.

Horticultural Arts Society Receives Gift

At the regular monthly meeting of the Horticulture Arts Society last Monday evening Mrs. Walter Freudenberg, president, announced that a gift of $250 had been received from the Colorado Springs Nurserymens' Association. The money had previously been loaned to the organizing committee to assist in getting the society started. With the society now well established and having more than 200 members, a check in repayment had been prepared. At a brief ceremony the repayment check was burned and Mrs. Frudenberg presented Evert Wheeler, president of the Colorado Springs Nurserymens' Association, with a letter of appreciation expressing the society's appreciation to the nurserymen for their assistance.

Henry Cannell of Cannell's Nursery conducted a program covering annual flowers.

It was announced at the meeting that the society plans to conduct tours of special gardens in the area featuring iris, roses and other flowers from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays. Further details will be published later.

Ham, Spinach, Cheese: Different

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Looking for a particularly appetizing dinner that is not the same old thing? Then try this glazed ham steak with balls of spinach and cheese. You'll like it and so will all the family.

Spinach-Cheese Balls

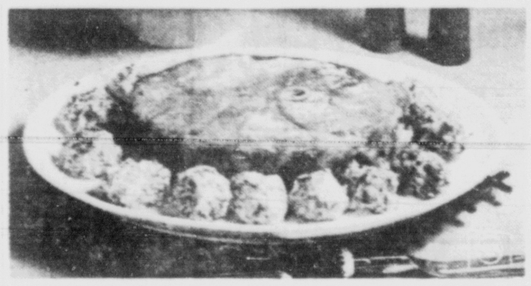
1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
1 container (15 ounces) ricotta cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup flour
2 quarts water

Defrost spinach by leaving unopened carton in refrigerator for 6 hours or at room temperature for 2 hours. Open package and squeeze spinach until almost dry. In bowl, mix spinach with all other ingredients except water. Mix together thoroughly. Shape mixture into 2-inch balls. In large pan, bring water to a gentle simmer. Roll spinach balls in additional flour and place in simmering water. After balls rise to the surface, let simmer gently for 15 minutes. Remove with slotted spoon and serve hot. Yield: About 18 2-inch balls.

Punch Glazed Ham Steak
(6 servings)

1 smoked ham steak, about 2 pounds
Whole cloves
1 can frozen concentrated strawberry-lemon punch
1-3 cup sugar

Score fat on sides of steak and stud with cloves. Place undiluted frozen punch in small saucepan; add sugar and heat gently, stirring, until sugar is dissolved and punch is hot. Place ham steak in well-greased baking pan and spoon glaze over top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour, basting frequently with remaining glaze during cooking period.



SPINACH CHEESE BALLS are fine with ham steak.

Why No Paella?

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Paella is the famous Spanish dish combining chicken, shellfish, meat and vegetables and rice. It makes a delicious main course.

At the Granada restaurant in the Spanish Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, a special Spanish paella pan is used—a shallow iron skillet much larger than those skillets used in American kitchens, with two handles. Spanish cooks never cover the paella pan.

Here is the Granada's recipe adapted to American kitchens.

Paella A La Granados
(Paella Granados Style)
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 pound large shrimp (langostina)
½ pound lean pork, in 1-inch cubes
1 pound boneless veal, in 1-inch cubes
4 to 6 tablespoons Spanish olive oil
1 squid, cleaned, sliced (optional)
1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, minced
¼ cup diced pimiento
1 or 2 garlic cloves, minced
1 medium tomato, peeled and chopped
1½ cups long grain rice
3 cups chicken broth (made with bouillon cubes or concentrate)
½ teaspoon saffron
1 quart mussels or clams; or one 7-ounce can minced clams

Shell shrimp, leaving tails on. De-vein. In large skillet, saute the pork and veal in ¼ cup olive oil until well-browned. Push to one side of pan, add the sliced squid, cook until lightly browned. Remove meat and squid, sprinkle with lemon juice. To the same skillet add onion, garlic, pimiento and tomato, adding additional oil if needed. Simmer until onion is soft. Add the rice, stir until glazed. Separately heat together salt, chicken broth and saffron until boiling; add a little at a time to rice.

Replace meat and squid in skillet, if large enough to hold it all (a 12 to 14-inch skillet will be needed). Otherwise, transfer to 2½ or 3-quart casserole, adding all remaining ingredients. Complete cooking in 325-degree oven until all liquid is absorbed and rice is fluffy and tender. (If desired, a cup of frozen peas may be added just before placing in oven.)

Ike Steals Show From Palmer at Exhibit Game

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The crowd at Merion Golf Club was apprehensive. "Gee, I hope he plays well," said a spectator. "I hope he doesn't embarrass himself," said another.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower not only didn't embarrass himself, he stole the show from his partner, Masters champion Arnold Palmer.

Eisenhower and Palmer teamed Tuesday for the benefit of the Heart Fund against veteran golf pro Jimmy Demaret and dancer Ray Bolger. The fund reported it took in $25,000.

This was Eisenhower's first public golf exhibition. He and Palmer defeated Demaret and Bolger 3 and 2 over the par 36-34—70 course in suburban Philadelphia.

"I must admit he carried me all the way," said Palmer. "His golf was superb."

Senate Leaders Scramble for Cloture Votes

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders are scrambling for the votes needed to apply cloture now that a showdown over the civil rights bill appears certain next month.

A revised bill — compromised to attract the undecided but retaining the basic provisions of the version which cleared the House Feb. 10—was finally introduced in the Senate Tuesday after weeks of tinkering.

The bipartisan leaders immediately voiced varying degrees of confidence that it will clear the Senate in June. Assistant Democratic leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota said he hopes the House then will agree to the Senate version in time for President Johnson to sign the bill into law by July 4.

First, however, the rights forces must get two-thirds of the senators present and voting to approve an end to debate, which is in its 65th day today.

The leaders are not willing to claim they have the votes now to limit debate by invoking cloture, but they say they expect to have them by next month, although there is some disagreement as to just when.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he hopes cloture will be by the second week in June. Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, chief author of the package of amendments which led to the compromise, said he fears this might be a bit too early.

Dirksen called the revised bill "workable, practicable, equitable and fair" and declared "it is infinitely better than what came to us from the House."

Mansfield said he knows some civil rights proponents will be disappointed, but he insisted that "this is the best that can be done."

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Southern forces, quickly scorned the package.

Russell said Northern and Western senators had succeeded in writing in safeguards for their states which made the bill more than ever a "punitive expedition" against the South.

He contended also that Dirksen and Humphrey had let Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy dictate the new version. The bill is the product of a "troika" but Kennedy is "the lead horse," Russell declared.

However, Russell conceded the package of amendments may pick up the votes needed "to gag and stifle us."

OLIVER'S PHONE

SPARKS, Nev. (AP) — Oliver Dondero has been dead for nearly two years. But there's still a number listed for him in the Reno-Sparks area telephone directory.

Several years back, Don Dondero, a commercial photographer, had trouble getting to the one family telephone for business because of its steady use by his two young daughters.

He decided to put in another telephone line for the girls to use. But there wasn't enough room allowed in the phone book to list both the girl's names for their number. So, the listing was put in the name of Oliver Dondero, a loved member of the family. This way, Don avoided the knotty question of which girl would have the privilege of having her name in the book.

After Oliver died, the photographer decided the household still needed two telephones. He decided to keep the second phone in the name of Oliver Dondero, in memory of the family's late pet water spaniel.

Why No Paella?

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Paella is the fam us Spanish dish combining chicken, shellfish, meat and vegetables and rice. It makes a delicious main course

At the Granada restaurant in the Spanish Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, a special Spanish paella pan is used —a shallow iron skillet much larger than those skillets used in American kitchens, with two handles Spanish cooks never cover the paella pan

Here is the Granada's recipe adapted to American kitchens

Paella A La Granados
(Paella Granados Style)
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 pound large shrimp
Langostina
½ pound lean pork in 1-inch cubes
1 pound boneless veal, in 1-inch cubes
4 to 6 tablespoons Spanish olive oil
1 squid, cleaned, sliced (optional)
1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, minced
¼ cup diced pimiento
1 or 2 garlic cloves, minced
1 medium tomato, peeled and chopped
1½ cups long grain rice
3 cups chicken broth (made with bouillon cubes or concentrate)
½ teaspoon saffron
1 quart mussels or clams; or one 7-ounce can minced clams

Shell shrimp, leaving tails on De-vein. In large skillet, saute the pork and veal in ¼ cup olive oil until well-browned. Push to one side of pan, add the sliced squid, cook until lightly browned. Remove meat and squid, sprinkle with lemon juice. To the same skillet add onion, garlic, pimiento and tomato, adding additional oil if needed Simmer until onion is soft Add the rice, stir until glazed Separately heat together salt, chicken broth and saffron until boiling, add a little at a time to rice.

Replace meat and squid in skillet, if large enough to hold it all (a 12 to 14-inch skillet will be needed) Otherwise, transfer to 2½ or 3-quart casserole, adding all remaining ingredients Complete cooking in 325-degree oven until all liquid is absorbed and rice is fluffy and tender (If desired, a cup of frozen peas may be added just before placing in oven)

2-3 cup butter or margarine
½ cup each minced onion and celery
1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Baste occasionally and turn halfway through roasting period. Makes 6 servings.

Give that bride-to-be a cake shower. Cake pans in various sizes, wire racks to hold the cakes when they come out of the oven, wooden mixing spoons, a cake tester, a flour sifter — these are all inexpensive gifts that a new cook who likes to bake will enjoy having. NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM, COMFORTABLE, TOO

Los Angeles:—Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer-genius, Olga. They are available in our area at

Designer Makes Bridal Gowns Lead Double Life

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new bridal gowns are a marriage of prettiness with practicality.

The girl going to the altar wants to look like a bride, but doesn't want to tuck her wedding gown into the keepsake drawer immediately after the ceremony. She wants it to serve for other dressup occasions.

The result, says one leading manufacturer, are the gowns with trains attached at the shoulder or waist and removable later to turn the dress into a handsome formal.

"I think some of that practical approach comes from so many early marriages," said Robert Hamburger, president of Murray Hamburger Co., Inc., a manufacturer of bridal attire for 26 years. "At 19 or 20, the couple doesn't have much money to get started. A dress should adapt for later occasions . . . the girls want more mileage."

Practicality shows in other styling too. Hamburger said that 10 years ago bridal gowns were clouds of ruffled skirts held out with hoops.

"We just don't use hoops anymore," he said in an interview.

Instead of billowing skirts, today's bride most likely will walk down the aisle in a simply-cut gown with A-line silhouette. The new silhouettes do not hug the body through the bodice, they are more like skimmers in fit, he said. There is a preponderance of the high-built bustline —the Directoire or Empire period influences.

"Necklines are lower than they've been," he said, "but not plunging. They show more shoulder instead. Not even the thin girls seem to mind if collar bones are on display."

In turn, arms often are covered all the way to the wrist.

And today's stylish brides and bridesmaids all wear floor length gowns, he added.

He said the firm had just quit making cocktail length bridal gowns and that "90 per cent of our bridesmaids' dresses also are floor length."

Peau de soie remains the number one fabric, he said. But the industry also is doing a lot with fabric combinations.

Wrist length sleeves in lace, for instance, with the rest of the gown peau de soie. Or white lace layered over ivory peau de soie for a brocade effect. Or satin train and satin midriff inset on a gown of white cut velvet.

White remains the number one color for the bridal gown, he said, but ivory's popularity is moving up. There's very little done in pastels.

But in bridesmaids' dresses, new are the color combinations of white skirts with the jewel-toned colors for the tops, he said.

In bridal headdress, tradition prevails to the extent the bride wants veiling set on a small pillbox or crown shaped base of lace or taffeta. "Sweet and not too severe," said Andrew Dessy, president of A. & M. Rosenthal, specialists in head coverings for 22 years.

Dessy said veils were less bouffant but have more depth because some will have as many as five layers of illusion (net).

There's also a demand for the mantilla-type veil, similar to the lace head coverings Mrs. John F. Kennedy frequently wears to Mass. These are made of silk illusion with border of re-embroidered Alencon lace.

Dessy's firm also styled for brides of '64 headwear which looks like a nun's cap to the extent that it covers all but the face.

And there's an all orange blossom headdress, shaped like a bandeau and covered with blossoms made of wax.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

What to do with old nylon stockings? Here's my answer: From the leg part of the stockings make yourself some quick-drying mops. They are the greatest.

Fold the stockings over double and tie them onto the end of your old mop handle. This can be done with any mop handle, but I prefer the dust mop handle which has a wire loop on the end. After folding the stockings in half tie each one on the loop until you have a full mop head.

Then take the scissors and trim the ends and you have a dandy mop that is especially good for applying liquid wax or for dusting.

The best part about this is that it washes so easily and dries so quickly, never snags on furniture legs and never sours. —Mary Wadsowrth

True! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I teach school and every minute is valuable when it comes to housework.

When buying a cloth for my kitchen table, I always purchase small, matching terry cloth towels to use as place mats over the tablecloth.

This saves frequent washing and ironing of the tablecloth because the little towels can be whisked off the table in a jiffy, run through the washer and put back on the table with no ironing.

These little matching or contrasting cloths are attractive as well as useful. They certainly save extra work. —Lois Stanley

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

When a small child falls and hurts his knee, etc., try slapping or hitting whatever he fell on and watch him laugh.

He forgets all about his hurt because he thinks it's so funny talking to a coffee table and punishing it. —Granny

Dear Heloise:

A few nights ago we found ourselves badly in need of an ice bag and all the drug stores were closed for the night. Know what I did?

I filled my plastic shower cap with ice cubes and tied it tightly at the elastic edge with some plant tie (gardener's tape). I wrapped a towel around the entire cap and-presto-it was ready for use. —M. R. day

Dear Heloise:

Did you ever use a good grade floor or furniture wax on your silver to keep it from tarnishing. —P. N. C.

Yes, I have. I like the no-rubbing liquid waxes best. They are easier to apply.

I do find that it dims the luster of the silver a little bit but it sure keeps it from turning black so quickly. I do not recommend using wax on silver which comes in contact with food. However, it is wonderful for the outside of a tea service set, candelabra, etc. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

That wonderful nylon net again . . .

For men and women who wear black (or any color that catches lint), try wrapping a piece of nylon net around your hand and rubbing the garment.

Off comes the lint! This works on sweaters, too. —Mrs. D.

Dear Heloise:

When I have a recipe that calls for small meat balls, I do it this way:

I make my meat ball mixture as usual. Then I line my ice cube tray (or trays) with waxed paper. I pack the mixture into the tray, put the cube divider on top, and press down right to the bottom, and there they are!

The little meat squares are all the same size and need only a pat or two to make them round. Quick and easy. —Mary Borthistle

The girl going to the altar wants to look like a bride, but doesn't want to tuck her wedding gown into the keepsake drawer immediately after the ceremony. She wants it to serve for other dressup occasions.

The result, says one leading manufacturer, are the gowns with trains attached at the shoulder or waist and removable later to turn the dress into a handsome formal.

"I think some of that practical approach comes from so many early marriages," said Robert Hamburger, president of Murray Hamburger Co., Inc., a manufacturer of bridal attire for 26 years. "At 19 or 20, the couple doesn't have much money to get started. A dress should adapt for later occasions . . . the girls want more mileage."

Practicality shows in other styling too. Hamburger said that 10 years ago bridal gowns were clouds of ruffled skirts held out with hoops.

"We just don't use hoops anymore," he said in an interview.

Instead of billowing skirts, today's bride most likely will walk down the aisle in a simply-cut gown with A-line silhouette. The new silhouettes do not hug the body through the bodice, they are more like skimmers in fit, he said. There is a preponderance of the high-built bustline —the Directoire or Empire period influences.

"Necklines are lower than they've been," he said, "but not plunging. They show more shoulder instead. Not even the thin girls seem to mind if collar bones are on display."

In turn, arms often are covered all the way to the wrist.

And today's stylish brides and bridesmaids all wear floor length gowns, he added.

He said the firm had just quit making cocktail length bridal gowns and that "90 per cent of our bridesmaids' dresses also are floor length."

Peau de soie remains the number one fabric, he said. But the industry also is doing a lot with fabric combinations.

Wrist length sleeves in lace, for instance, with the rest of the gown peau de soie. Or white lace layered over ivory peau de soie for a brocade effect. Or satin train and satin midriff inset on a gown of white cut velvet.

White remains the number one color for the bridal gown, he said, but ivory's popularity is moving up. There's very little done in pastels.

But in bridesmaids' dresses, new are the color combinations of white skirts with the jewel-toned colors for the tops, he said.

In bridal headdress, tradition prevails to the extent the bride wants veiling set on a small pillbox or crown shaped base of lace or taffeta. "Sweet and not too severe," said Andrew Dessy, president of A. & M. Rosenthal, specialists in head coverings for 23 years.

Dessy said veils were less bouffant but have more depth because some will have as many as five layers of illusion (net).

There's also a demand for the mantilla-type veil, similar to the lace head coverings Mrs. John F. Kennedy frequently wears to Mass. These are made of silk illusion with border of re-embroidered Alencon lace.

Dessy's firm also styled for brides of '64 headwear which looks like a nun's cap to the extent that it covers all but the face.

And there's an all orange blossom headdress, shaped like a bandeau and covered with blossoms made of wax.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

What to do with old nylon stockings? Here's my answer:

From the leg part of the stockings make yourself some quick-drying mops. They are the greatest.

Fold the stockings over double and tie them onto the end of your old mop handle. This can be done with any mop handle, but I prefer the dust mop handle which has a wire loop on the end. After folding the stockings in half tie each one on the loop until you have a full mop head.

Then take the scissors and trim the ends and you have a dandy mop that is especially good for applying liquid wax or for dusting.

The best part about this is that it washes so easily and dries so quickly, never snags on furniture legs and never sours. —Mary Wadsowrth

True! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I teach school and every minute is valuable when it comes to housework.

When buying a cloth for my kitchen table I always purchase small, matching terry cloth towels to use as place mats over the tablecloth.

This saves frequent washing and ironing of the tablecloth because the little towels can be whisked off the table in a jiffy, run through the washer and put back on the table with no ironing.

These little matching or contrasting cloths are attractive as well as useful. They certainly save extra work. —Lois Stanley

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

When a small child falls and hurts his knee, etc., try slapping or hitting whatever he fell on and watch him laugh.

He forgets all about his hurt because he thinks it's so funny talking to a coffee table and punishing it. —Granny

Dear Heloise:

A few nights ago we found ourselves badly in need of an ice bag and all the drug stores were closed for the night. Know what I did?

I filled my plastic shower cap with ice cubes and tied it tightly at the elastic edge with some plant tie (gardener's tape). I wrapped a towel around the entire cap and-presto-it was ready for use. —M. R. day

Dear Heloise:

Did you ever use a good grade floor or furniture wax on your silver to keep it from tarnishing. —P. N. C.

Yes, I have. I like the no-rubbing liquid waxes best. They are easier to apply.

I do find that it dims the luster of the silver a little bit but it sure keeps it from turning black so quickly. I do not recommend using wax on silver which comes in contact with food. However, it is wonderful for the outside of a tea service set, candelabra, etc. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

That wonderful nylon net again.

For men and women who wear black (or any color that catches lint), try wrapping a piece of nylon net around your hand and rubbing the garment.

Off comes the lint! This works on sweaters, too. —Mrs. D.

Dear Heloise:

When I have a recipe that calls for small meat balls, I do it this way:

I make my meat ball mixture as usual. Then I line my ice cube tray (or trays) with waxed paper. I pack the mixture into the tray, put the cube divider on top, and press down right to the bottom, and there they are!

The little meat squares are all the same size and need only a pat or two to make them round. Quick and easy. —Mary Borthistle

SANDS CAST

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tommy Sands, Frank Sinatra's son-in-law by virtue of his marriage to Nancy Sinatra Jr., has been cast in Sinatra's new picture "None, But the Brave" which Frankie will direct.

Simple Device Irrigates Plants, Agent Advises

Home gardeners can now give their houseplants the right amount of water by following a procedure devised by agricultural scientists for irrigating potted plants used in experiments, says Chuck Drage, Colorado State University extension horticulturist.

Watering from the surface is most convenient in both home and laboratory, but supplying enough water without waterlogging the soil is difficult.

The scientists avoid wetting the soil surface by using a watering column in each pot.

The column consists of a length of perforated polethylene tubing filled with silica sand and placed vertically in each pot. Avoid very fine or large-grain sand, which would clog the holes. The tube one inch in diameter, is closed at the bottom and extends about two inches above the soil surface.

Water poured into this sand-filled tube reaches the soil through four ⅛-inch openings. The scientists advise putting no openings in the bottom inch of the tube to avoid ponding of water at the base of the pot.

Suitable polyethylene plastic tubing is available at many garden and dairy supply stores, plant nurseries, and hardware stores. This irrigation system for potted plants was devised by Agricultural Research Service and Arizona Agricultureal Experiment Station scientists.

Central Park Patrol Will Be Motorized

NEW YORK (AP)—The paths and meadows of Central Park soon will be patrolled at night by policemen on motor scooters.

About 50 policemen took tests Tuesday to become scooter jockeys. Inspector John F. Spreen said the scooters can climb steep, slippery surfaces, dart through narrow spaces and overtake a running man quickly.

Virginia East Coast Will Get Record Tourist Mark

By MURRAY J. BROWN

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (UPI) —One of the most popular resorts on the East Coast, Virginia Beach, is bracing for a record influx of visitors and vacationers, thanks to a new sea-spanning highway.

The tourist also will benefit by a 17.6-mile long Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel which links Virginia's historic Tidewater region with the Old Dominion State's Eastern Shore.

The world's longest complex of bridges and tunnels, it closed the last water gap on the North-South Ocean highway (U.S. 13 and 17) between New York and Florida. In addition to ending time-consuming waits and a 90-minute ferry trip across the bay, the bridge tunnel cuts about 75 miles off the distance between the Norfolk area and points north. It also provides the motorist with an all-weather route which by-passes some of the traffic-heavy northern cities.

The run across, up and down the bridge-tunnel takes about 25 minutes. (Toll $4 for car and driver, 85 cents for each additional passenger.) This modern miracle of engineering is a two-lane crossing of 12.2 miles of trestled roadways; 1.6 miles of earth-fill causeway; two bridges totaling 4,350 feet in length; two 1-mile-long tunnels and four man-made islands.

Built from scratch in 35 to 40 feet of water, the 1,450-foot long by 230 foot wide islands serve as portals for the tunnels. The tubes were pre-fabricated in Texas, towed to the bay and sunk in trenches scooped out of the bottom.

The tunnel links were included because the U.S. Navy feared a well-placed bomb could wreck a bridge and block channels to its big Hampton Roads bases.

The tunnels lie 90 feet below mean water level, providing more than enough draft for the biggest naval vessels, tankers, freighters and other heavy shipping.

The northern terminus of the bridge-tunnel is at Cape Charles; the southern end between Norfolk and Virginia Beach. The trestled roadway is built on concrete piles about 30 feet above the choppy waters. The highest point is on the bridge which spans Northern Channel, with a clearance of 75 feet for commercial fishing boats and pleasure craft.

To the east of the crossing lies the Atlantic Ocean; Chesapeake Bay is to the west. An awesome sight on windy days — such as this writer experienced — is watching white-plumed breakers dashing across shoals nearby.

The new highway link is expected to have a strong impact on tourist trade throughout the famed Tidewater region as well as Virginia Beach, according to Scott Sterling.

We and other newsmen were guests at his new Princess Anne Inn in Virginia Beach for the press preview of the bridge-tunnel (opened April 15). All 60 rooms in the four-story motel overlook the ocean. Completed last year to replace a building which was a landmark — the first Princess Anne was built in 1882 — the new inn is open year round. There are numerous other fine hotels and motels with rates to fit most any pocket.

Virginia Beach offers swimming, water-skiing, fishing, horseback riding, golf, tennis and other water and land sports. It also schedules special events, including the annual Boardwalk Art Show (July 9-13), one of the largest outdoor exhibitions of its kind.

A short drive away is Norfolk, founded in 1682 and one of the oldest cities in the United States. Oustanding sight-seeing attractions include the Gen. Douglas MacArthur Memorial and treasured memorials of colonial and revolutionary days, including the Adam Thoroughgood House, erected in 1636 and the oldest brick dwelling in the United States.

Close by also are Williamsburg, famed restored colonial capital of Virginia; Jamestown, site of the first permanent English settlement in the New World; and Yorktown, scene of the British surrender in the War of the Revolution.

Sun Worshipper Stones Found In New Guinea

PORT MORESBY, Australia (AP) — An amateur archaeologist and anthropologist has found the shattered remains of a stone idol and evidence of what he believes was an ancient sun-worshipping cult on the remote island of New Hanover, part of the Australian trust territory of New Guinea.

The archaeologist, Ray Sheridan, Astralian government medical officer, has made an extensive study of the folklore of the New Guinea people.

In February he lead a patrol organized by the Department of Health to extend malaria control. After the party entered little-known country in the rugged interior of New Hanover it followed a canyon to its head and emerged in a natural basin with a circular lake in the center.

There, on Feb. 29, the party found four sections of a stone statue which originally stood 12 feet high and probably weighed about four tons. It had human and birdlike featues and faced the rising sun, but apparently it had been smashed by lightning.

Around the shattered statue were "spirit" stones carved with human faces and in geometric patterns. Lines of more carved and smooth stones formed patterns in the grass.

Natives living near the area had no knowledge of the history of the place, but Sheridan did hear a smattering of local legends about mysterious ghostly visitors.

These legends referred to a great chest of tools hidden in the mountains, a huge ship in a mountain cave and a hoard of tools also in a cave.

The natives believed they had been left by an alien people who visited New Hanover hundreds of years ago.

Sheridan's theory is that an ancient tribe called at New Hanover regularly to gather stones not available in their own land, and that they set up a shrine.

The island was occupied by the Japanese during the war, an administration officer who was a wartime coastwatcher on New Hanover said the Japanese dragged ships into caves there for repair and built underground workshops.

This was a possible explanation for some of the islanders' legends, he said.

Curtain Installed For Old Jury Box

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (UPI) —A curtain has been installed in the jury box in superior court to shield the legs of women jurors.

Judge Wilfred J. Paquet says he hopes to have similar curtains installed in jury boxes throughout Massachusetts. Jury rails were adequate in the days of all-male juries, says the judge, but in these days of women jurors, curtains are needed.

Sun Worshipper Stones Found In New Guinea

PORT MORESBY, Australia (AP) — An amateur archaeologist and anthropologist has found the shattered remains of a stone idol and evidence of what he believes was an ancient sun-worshipping cult on the remote island of New Hanover, part of the Australian trust territory of New Guinea.

The archaeologist, Ray Sheridan Astralian government medical officer, has made an extensive study of the folklore of the New Guinea people.

In February he lead a patrol organized by the Department of Health to extend malaria control After the party entered little-known country in the rugged interior of New Hanover it followed a canyon to its head and emerged in a natural basin with a circular lake in the center.

There, on Feb 29, the party found four sections of a stone statue which originally stood 12 feet high and probably weighed about four tons. It had human and birdlike featues and faced the rising sun, but apparently it had been smashed by lightning.

Around the shattered statue were "spirit" stones carved with human faces and in geometric patterns. Lines of more carved and smooth stones formed patterns in the grass.

Natives living near the area had no knowledge of the history of the place, but Sheridan did hear a smattering of local legends about mysterious ghostly visitors.

These legends referred to a great chest of tools hidden in the mountains, a huge ship in a mountain cave and a hoard of tools also in a cave.

The natives believed they had been left by an alien people who visited New Hanover hundreds of years ago.

Sheridan's theory is that an ancient tribe called at New Hanover regularly to gather stones not available in their own land, and that they set up a shrine.

The island was occupied by the Japanese during the war, an administration officer who was a wartime coastwatcher on New Hanover said the Japanese dragged ships into caves there for repair and built underground workshops.

This was a possible explanation for some of the islanders' legends, he said.

Curtain Installed For Old Jury Box

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (UPI) —A curtain has been installed in the jury box in superior court to shield the legs of women jurors.

Judge Wilfred J. Paquet says he hopes to have similar curtains installed in jury boxes throughout Massachusetts. Jury rails were adequate in the days of all-male juries, says the judge, but in these days of women jurors, curtains are needed.

Shirt Jacket Newest Trend In Knitwear

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Swiss invented knitting about 2,000 years ago, probably because it gets so cold in the Alps. The British invented a knitting machine in 1589 and things started getting better, but about all they made was underwear.

Lily Langtry, the famous Jersey Lily, brought it out into the open 75 years ago and called the fabric "jersey." Schiaparelli brought it into high-fashion in the 20's and women have been wearing it ever since.

Men were a lot slower and, by the 1890's, had progressed no further than knitted underwear although rather daring ankle-length bathing suits were beginning to make an appearance. Someone thought up a polo shirt in the 1920's and the outlook for men became brighter.

It was not until the 1930's and 1940's that there was any widespread use of knits in men's wear — aside from the wool sweaters and such things knitted by some loved one. But knitted leisure shirts came into fashion then and there was what is sometimes called a fashion renaissance.

Max Thal, president of Alamac Knitting Mills, says knitwear now represents more than 50 per cent of the entire men's sport shirt volume, reaching this peak after a 10-year climb. He credits built-in give which makes them ideal for sports, their form - fitting for a trim masculine look and, if you'll pardon the expression, they absorb sweat.

So the newest things in knitwear this Summer are the shirt jacket which buttons down the front and is not slipped over the head and the boat neckline which is also called a Henley neckline from the jerseys worn at the Henley regatta in England. This is collarless and has three or four buttons.

There is a surprise in color preference for summer—black, particularly in combinations with white. Gold is the second choice reported by buying offices and the third choice is the ever-popular blue.

Increasingly seen in summer wear (where it isn't too hot) are knitted turtle neck bibs worn in contrasting color under a shirt or sweater.

One of the style leaders in the men's wear field, F. Jacobson (Wren Shirts) reports the Henley neckline particularly popular in a regimental stripe knit. Puritan reports the shirt jacket a top seller with brown increasingly popular in an apparent trend toward dark colors.

Manhattan also reports the same two trends with blue and darker tones much in evidence. Rivoli, a mass market producer, reports subtle shades more popular with collar treatment including turtle necks, Henley necklines and mandarin, or open neckline treatments. Black here is tops.

Hartog of California reports heavy sales of official surfing shirts — you can recognize them with a surfing insignia on the chest. One is a linen-look blend in muted vertical stripes in yellow or blue tones on the front of the shirt.

Teen-agers who go in heavily for very brief knitted swim shorts cover up on the beach with knitted walkshorts almost knee length.

Another unusual shirt is what McGregor simply calls "Le Shirt" — an open weave, fine-angled mesh you can't see through. There is a thin border above the waistline and a three-button plaque. It also comes in short sleeve cardigan and in 16 colors.

Arrow goes in for togetherness with Mr. and Mrs. Rugby shirts in two - inch horizontal stripes in such colors as red and blue, or red and white. It also does Mr. and Miss Golf shirts in classic knits with a choice of sleeved or sleeveless for the ladies.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Now they're trying to interest the medical and dental professions in that do-all marvel, the electronic computer. But only for bookkeeping. Not for treatment (yet).

The Bank of America has offeer its professional billing service to California's 41,000 physicians and dentists, a service providing what the bank calls "complete and economical computer processing of patient accounts." Segregation Is De Facto, Say Negro Parents

CHICAGO (UPI) — The civil rights struggle in Chicago, as in many northern cities, has centered around the issue of "de facto" school segregation.

Negro parents took to the streets in 1962 to protest against alleged "inferior education" for their children.

The school protest led to violence, mass arrests and huge school boycotts as militant members of civil rights groups led "sit ins" at the Board of Education and at selected schools.

During the first week of school in September, demonstrators carrying picket signs and singing "freedom songs" marched on three school sites where portable classrooms were being installed. They said the units fostered segregation.

The demonstrators continued during the week and more than 30 persons were arrested in clashes with police.

Following the first boycott last Oct. 22, about 51 per cent of all students enrolled in Chicago public schools were reported absent from class. A second boycott Feb. 25 resulted in 37 per cent absenteeism, despite boycott opposition from the majority of Negro aldermen.

Negro parents charged that Chicago's school system, which restricts children to schools in their neighborhood, is a form of "de facto" segregation. They protested that schools in Negro neighborhoods were overcrowded and that their children had to attend classes on a double shift basis while classrooms in white schools a few blocks away remained vacant.

School Supt. Benjamin C. Willis released figures the day after the first boycott revealing for the first time the racial composition of city schools.

A head count showed Negroes comprised 51 per cent of public grade school students.

Encouraging children to participate in boycotts has produced a sharp conflict among politicians and private citizens.

Opponents, including six Negro aldermen, formed a committee to discourage the second boycott on grounds it teaches children to disobey the law.

Supporters, including Lawrence Landry, head of the boycott committee, said the children would learn more about freedom in one day of boycotting than they would through the entire school year.

Thomas R. Tyrrell, an assistant attorney for the board, blamed boycotts for the 100 per cent increase in assaults on teachers by students.

He echoed the complaints of John Lictenberg, attorney for Local 1, Chicago Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, who said:

"You can't pull kids out of school and into the streets, have them yell insults and hold placards, and then expect them to return to class the next day and feel law-abiding."

As pressure on the school board continued to mount, members last August named a five-man panel of nationally known educators to submit a plan to eliminate any iniquities in the school system.

The committee, led by Dr. Philip Hauser, University of Chicago sociologist, reported March 31 that 91 per cent of city public schools are racially segregated.

The report warned that unless school integration is speeded up, and the quality of education for Negroes is vastly improved, "The future of the city of Chicago and of other great metropolitan cities will be seriously jeopardized and the interests of the entire nation may be impaired and imperiled."

Civil rights leaders praised the report and urged the board to implement the panel's 13 recommendations.

ON-DUTY PAUL

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio (AP)—From 10:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. five shifts a week, Paul E. Wiant is a correctional officer at London state prison. After a 15-mile drive home, he becomes bus driver for Mechanicsburg exempted Village School District.

If some youngsters fail to appear, it's also his job to round them up, as truant officer. Mondays and Wednesdays, he's still another kind of officer, serving as policeman while Chief Cecil Rickard and the other village officer take a day of rest.

Finally, he is ambulance and hearse driver for a funeral home and works with Little League ball players. Despite all this, his wife Maybelle says: "I see about as much of Paul as most wives do their husbands."

Range, Pasture Conditions Better Over Most of West

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The Weather Bureau reported that range and pasture conditions improved over most of the West in the week ending last Monday.

The bureau said warmer weather over most of the area last week was favorable for the growth of pasture and range grasses.

The Weather Bureau report for last week said that grasses made good growth in the Northern Plains and mountain states. In the Central Plains, grass was responding to the warm weather but more moisture was needed.

The report said pasture conditions were worsening in an area including southeastern Colorado, western Texas, New Mexico, and parts of Arizona. A continued shortage of soil moisture left grazing very limited in these areas.

An Agriculture Department specialist said it appeared there is a reasonable chance that grazing conditions in most of the West would be close to normal this summer.

Ruth Appelthun Gives Tips About Vitamins

To get the most vitamins for your vegetable dollar, remember these tips from Ruth Appelthun, extension home agent.

You get several times as much vitamin A value from bright-orange mature carrots as from pale-colored, young ones. Even so, young carrots are a good source of vitamin A.

The dark-green leaves of leafy vegetables are richer in nutrients, particularly vitamins A and C, than light-green leaves. Peppers are high in vitamins A and C.

If the tops of beets are attached and still tender when you buy them, cook them. They are rich in vitamin A.

Wheat in Southeast Hit by Bugs

Winter wheat in southeastern Colorado is being attacked from all sides. Already deteriorating from lack of moisture, the grain is now being hard hit by a buildup of cutworms, brown wheat mites and green bugs.

Winter wheat in much of the dryland areas of the Southeast has not deteriorated beyond recovery. In the Northeast most felds were beginning to show considerable deterioration because of lack of moisture. About one - third of the state's entire acreage was heading last week and advanced fields were beginning to bloom. At the same time a year ago two - thirds of the acreage was heading.

Condition of winter barley also dropped sharply and nearly half of the acreage was heading by the end of last week.

Showers which fell over the state a couple of weeks ago were of little benefit, since high winds quickly sucked the moisture from the soil and warm temperatures completed the job.

Spring planting was spurred by the warming temperatures but completion was slowed by a lack of soil moisture. Topsoil moisture continued to be rapidly depleted by the winds and available supplies were reported at the lowest level since April.

During the week ended May 23, continued high winds and high temperatures caused considerable damage to dryland crops on the Eastern Slope. Winter grains and newly seeded stands were badly depleted by the severe shortage of moisture.

Irrigation water was generally in sufficient supply in the Northeast and on the Western slope but there was a serious shortage in the Arkansas Valley.

Moisture was urgently needed in the Southeast and additional rainfall would be beneficial in all areas of the state. Spring runoff began about two weeks ago in the San Luis Valley and on the Western Slope and many farmers in those areas were getting their first good run of irrigation water.

Movement of cattle to higher elevations was started last week but only a few herds were moved. Supplemental feeding continued heavy in most areas and feed supplies were getting critically short in many areas.

Cattle showed shrinkage in some areas of the state and rainfall was badly needed to promote growth and development of range grasses. Growth of these grasses has been late and limited this spring, putting considerable stress onfee dsupplies. Calving and lambing has been completed on schedule, however.

An international forestry panel has estimated there are only 75,000 foresters in the world today, although there is a need for 300,000.

Roundup

By Robbin Tibbets

THERE HAS BEEN plenty of publicity put out already about Rocky Mountain wood ticks. But because they transmit a sometimes fatal disease — Rocky Mountain spotted fever — there is no such thing as too many warnings. They also transmit Colorado tick fever, but it usually does not cause death. It does, however, cause the victim illness and extreme discomfort.

Both diseases are characterized by severe headache and sudden high temperatures. With Rocky Mountain spotted fever, a red rash develops over the body.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN wood ticks are able to sense an approaching host by body heat, carbon dioxide given off in breathing, and from the vibration of the host's footsteps. Hanging onto their brushy hiding place with their rear legs, they stretch their front legs into the air to grasp the hair or clothing of the passing host.

For this reason, it is advised that persons should wear hard finish clothing such as cotton twill, duck, or denim materials into the woods. Soft finish clothes, such as wool socks, are an open invitation to the ticks.

A GOOD TICK repellent worn around shoe tops, pant cuffs, skirt hems, sleeves, and belt lines is a good precaution to take. There are several good chemical repellents on the market, but for maximum effectiveness one should use those specifically designated as tick repellents.

AT THE LAST report, the heaviest population of ticks in years has been found in the Poudre River drainage up to the level of Roaring Creek, and in the Big Thompson drainage. These areas have been surveyed by the entomology section at the Colorado State University experiment station and the heavy infestation of ticks probably extends north, south, and west from these areas.

Picnickers in the Poudre River area reported finding as many as 14 ticks per person. Fort Collins residents who have not even been in the mountains have found them. It is suspected that dogs brought them in.

IN ORDER to transmit spotted fever to a new host, whether man or animal, the tick must feed from two to several hours. For this reason, it is suggested that persons returning from wooded areas should immediately be checked thoroughly for ticks. Carefully examine all folds of skin, the hair and scalp.

Ticks that are already imbedded by their mouth parts into the skin should be removed by washing with alcohol, or by carefully pulling them out with a steady pull in line with the direction they are imbedded.

The tick's mouth parts are barbed, and quick jerks or trying to "unscrew" them will only pull off the barbs, leaving them imbedded in the skin where they can cause infection.

PURPLE MARTINS and Bluebirds now have their own protective organization. It's called "The National Association for the Protection and Propagation of the Purple Martins and Bluebirds of America, Inc." I guess the initials for that would be NAPPPMBA. Quite a mouthful either way you take it.

Anyway, this organization is organized for the sole purpose of doing what its name says it does. I haven't heard about any of its work, but since the Purple Martins and the Bluebirds are two of man's best friends in his continual fight against insects, something should be done to protect them from destruction.

If you'd like to join the organization, membership may be obtained by making a voluntary contribution of $1 or more. You can send your donations to Charles C. Butler, secretary, 218 South C St., Arkansas City, Kan.

I GUESS you've heard the one about the city feller who bought a worn out dry land farm and moved to the country. He thought he could get a mud transfusion from the soil bank.

Cattle Dealers Plan Beef Sale Trip to Europe

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI)— A group of United States cattle dealers wants to stimulate overseas exports, one of President Johnson's advisers on beef imports said today.

"A committee has been set up composed of packers and traders that will actually take order books along, and will sell beef," Jay Taylor said.

His remarks were made in a television interview on Station KFDA-TV.

"I think that group will start next week if the secretary of agriculture recommends it to the President," Taylor said.

Taylor returned Thursday from Washington where he and other representatives of the cattle industry sought support for various programs such as the European sales trip.

An Amarillo cattleman and banker, Taylor has represented the industry for 30 years in Washington. He was one of seven members of a presidential advisory committee on beef imports who spent two days this week in conference with President Johnson and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The cast and crew of "Ride The Wild Surf" spent six weeks of location shooting in Hawaii on the famous surfing beaches of the north coast of Oahu Island.

Study of Water Ownership, Other Aspects Underway

A study of the legal aspects of ownership and exchange of water rights is underway at Colorado State University. While covering most of the West, states specifically selected for the study include Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, California and Arizona.

Results of the research may provide an economic basis for revising laws and organizational procedure in the western states including Colorado which is now studying legal regulations which would permit more flexible use of water.

The study, supported by a $77,000 grant from Resources for the Future, Inc., is directed by Dr. L. M. Hartman, associate professor of economics at CSU. Cooperating in the study are Dr. D. A. Seastone, CSU associate professor of economics, and Dr. Willis Ellis, professor of law at Denver University.

"Historically, the problem of water and the transfer of water rights have belonged to agriculture," Hartman pointed out. "Now, however, industry and the rapidly growing population centers require an ever increasing amount of water, but they have been hampered by the present somewhat inflexible laws regarding the use of water."

The researchers will study water organizations, such as the Denver Water Board and the Northern Colorado Conservancy District and their counterparts throughout the West, and state laws regulating water use and exchange. They hope to discover whether decisions of organizations involving the use of water are the best for the public good.

Because few books on the economics of water use are available, the three-man team plans to summarize their findings in book form at the conclusion of the study.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Weather Bureau reported that range and pasture conditions improved over most of the West in the week ending last Monday.

The bureau said warmer weather over most of the area last week was favorable for the growth of pasture and range grasses.

The Weather Bureau report for last week said that grasses made good growth in the Northern Plains and mountain states. In the Central Plains, grass was responding to the warm weather but more moisture was needed.

The report said pasture conditions were worsening in an area including southeastern Colorado, western Texas, New Mexico and parts of Arizona. A continued shortage of soil moisture left grazing very limited in these areas.

An Agriculture Department specialist said it appeared there is a reasonable chance that grazing conditions in most of the West would be close to normal this summer.

Ruth Appelthun Gives Tips About Vitamins

To get the most vitamins for your vegetable dollar, remember these tips from Ruth Appelthun, extension home agent.

You get several times as much vitamin A value from bright-orange mature carrots as from pale-colored, young ones. Even so, young carrots are a good source of vitamin A.

The dark-green leaves of leafy vegetables are richer in nutrients, particularly vitamins A and C, than light-green leaves. Peppers are high in vitamins A and C.

If the tops of beets are attached and still tender when you buy them, cook them. They are rich in vitamin A.

Wheat in Southeast Hit by Bugs

Winter wheat in southeastern Colorado is being attacked from all sides. Already deteriorating from lack of moisture, the grain is now being hard hit by a buildup of cutworms, brown wheat mites and green bugs.

Winter wheat in much of the dryland areas of the Southeast has not deteriorated beyond recovery. In the Northeast most felds were beginning to show considerable deterioration because of lack of moisture. About one - third of the state's entire acreage was heading last week and advanced fields were beginning to bloom. At the same time a year ago two - thirds of the acreage was heading.

Condition of winter barley also dropped sharply and nearly half of the acreage was heading by the end of last week.

Showers which fell over the state a couple of weeks ago were of little benefit, since high winds quickly sucked the moisture from the soil and warm temperatures completed the job.

Spring planting was spurred by the warming temperatures but completion was slowed by a lack of soil moisture. Topsoil moisture continued to be rapidly depleted by the winds and available supplies were reported at the lowest level since April.

During the week ended May 23, continued high winds and high temperatures caused considerable damage to dryland crops on the Eastern Slope. Winter grains and newly seeded stands were badly depleted by the severe shortage of moisture.

Irrigation water was generally in sufficient supply in the Northeast and on the Western slope but there was a serious shortage in the Arkansas Valley.

Moisture was urgently needed in the Southeast and additional rainfall would be beneficial in all areas of the state. Spring runoff began about two weeks ago in the San Luis Valley and on the Western Slope and many farmers in those areas were getting their first good run of irrigation water.

Movement of cattle to higher elevations was started last week but only a few herds were moved. Supplemental feeding continued heavy in most areas and feed supplies were getting critically short in many areas.

Cattle showed shrinkage in some areas of the state and rainfall was badly needed to promote growth and development of range grasses. Growth of these grasses has been late and limited this spring, putting considerable stress onfee dsupplies. Calving and lambing has been completed on schedule, however.

An international forestry panel has estimated there are only 75,000 foresters in the world today, although there is a need for 300,000.

Roundup

By Robbin Tibbets

THERE HAS BEEN plenty of publicity put out already about Rocky Mountain wood ticks. But because they transmit a sometimes fatal disease — Rocky Mountain spotted fever — there is no such thing as too many warnings. They also transmit Colorado tick fever but it usually does not cause death. It does, however, cause the victim illness and extreme discomfort.

Both diseases are characterized by severe headache and sudden high temperatures. With Rocky Mountain spotted fever, a red rash develops over the body.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN wood ticks are able to sense an approaching host by body heat, carbon dioxide given off in breathing, and from the vibration of the host's footsteps. Hanging onto their brushy hiding place with their rear legs, they stretch their front legs into the air to grasp the hair or clothing of the passing host.

For this reason, it is advised that persons should wear hard finish clothing such as cotton twill, duck, or denim materials into the woods. Soft finish clothes, such as wool socks, are an open invitation to the ticks.

A GOOD TICK repellent worn around shoe tops, pant cuffs, skirt hems, sleeves, and belt lines is a good precaution to take. There are several good chemical repellents on the market, but for maximum effectiveness one should use those specifically designated as tick repellents.

AT THE LAST report, the heaviest population of ticks in years has been found in the Poudre River drainage up to the level of Roaring Creek, and in the Big Thompson drainage. These areas have been surveyed by the entomology section at the Colorado State University experiment station and the heavy infestation of ticks probably extends north, south, and west from these areas.

Picnickers in the Poudre River area reported finding as many as 14 ticks per person. Fort Collins residents who have not even been in the mountains have found them. It is suspected that dogs brought them in.

IN ORDER to transmit spotted fever to a new host, whether man or animal, the tick must feed from two to several hours. For this reason, it is suggested that persons returning from wooded areas should immediately be checked thoroughly for ticks. Carefully examine all folds of skin, the hair and scalp.

Ticks that are already imbedded by their mouth parts into the skin should be removed by washing with alcohol, or by carefully pulling them out with a steady pull in line with the direction they are imbedded.

The tick's mouth parts are barbed, and quick jerks or trying to "unscrew" them will only pull off the barbs, leaving them imbedded in the skin where they can cause infection.

PURPLE MARTINS and Bluebirds now have their own protective organization. It's called "The National Association for the Protection and Propagation of the Purple Martins and Bluebirds of America, Inc." I guess the initials for that would be NAPPPMBA. Quite a mouthful either way you take it.

Anyway, this organization is organized for the sole purpose of doing what its name says it does. I haven't heard about any of its work, but since the Purple Martins and the Bluebirds are two of man's best friends in his continual fight against insects, something should be done to protect them from destruction.

If you'd like to join the organization membership may be obtained by making a voluntary contribution of $1 or more. You can send your donations to Charles C. Butler, secretary, 218 South C St., Arkansas City, Kan.

I GUESS you've heard the one about the city feller who bought a worn out dry land farm and moved to the country. He thought he could get a mud transfusion from the soil bank.

Cattle Dealers Plan Beef Sale Trip to Europe

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI)— A group of United States cattle dealers wants to stimulate overseas exports, one of President Johnson's advisers on beef imports said today.

"A committee has been set up composed of packers and traders that will actually take order books along, and will sell beef," Jay Taylor said.

His remarks were made in a television interview on Station KFDA-TV.

"I think that group will start next week if the secretary of agriculture recommends it to the President," Taylor said.

Taylor returned Thursday from Washington where he and other representatives of the cattle industry sought support for various programs such as the European sales trip.

An Amarillo cattleman and banker, Taylor has represented the industry for 30 years in Washington. He was one of seven members of a presidential advisory committee on beef imports who spent two days this week in conference with President Johnson and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman.

Study of Water Ownership, Other Aspects Underway

A study of the legal aspects of ownership and exchange of water rights is underway at Colorado State University. While covering most of the West, states specifically selected for the study include Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, California and Arizona.

Results of the research may provide an economic basis for revising laws and organizational procedure in the western states including Colorado which is now studying legal regulations which would permit more flexible use of water.

The study, supported by a $77,000 grant from Resources for the Future, Inc., is directed by Dr. L. M. Hartman, associate professor of economics at CSU. Cooperating in the study are Dr. D. A. Seastone, CSU associate professor of economics, and Dr. Willis Ellis, professor of law at Denver University.

"Historically, the problem of water and the transfer of water rights have belonged to agriculture," Hartman pointed out. "Now, however, industry and the rapidly growing population centers require an ever increasing amount of water, but they have been hampered by the present somewhat inflexible laws regarding the use of water."

The researchers will study water organizations, such as the Denver Water Board and the Northern Colorado Conservancy District and their counterparts throughout the West, and state laws regulating water use and exchange. They hope to discover whether decisions of organizations involving the use of water are the best for the public good.

Because few books on the economics of water use are available, the three-man team plans to summarize their findings in book form at the conclusion of the study.

Gardener With Experience Will Water Properly

(This is another article prepared as a public service by the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association, and its contents are specifically applicable to this region.)

A person with the proverbial green thumb does now drown a plant or permit it to die from thirst. There is a happy medium between oversaturation and drouth in the plant world.

Many plants are benefited by the entrance of oxygen into the soil; and by withholding water from a plant for a week to 10 days aids in this natural aerating of the soil, according to the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association.

There are exceptions to the rule of withholding water since some vegetation will not stand a dry period. On the other extreme some trees, such as birch, cherry, linden and oak, do better if the interval between waterings is longer than usual.

Discussing soaking, the nurserymen's association report says that it may take up to four hours to soak a tree root to a depth of two or three feet.

Overwatering, according to the nurserymen, is generally caused by the frequency rather than the quantity of water. A method of determining whether the soil needs water is to dig into the soil and use a "squeeze" test. If the soil has enough moisture, it will form a small ball of earth in the hand when squeezed.

Nurserymen warn against ever exposing a root to the open air.

Dryness of the top layer of soil should not cause any worry. If there is a question of whether the soil has enough moisture, dig below the top couple of inches and test the earth.

A soil - soaker type of hose, or letting the water run onto the lawn from an open end, generally allows more water to soak into the soil. If a sprinkler is used, it should be set in one spot for a long enough period of time to place enough water in the right places. Watering a lawn by hand is generally never very satisfactory because most people are too impatient to let enough water be sprinkled on the lawn.

If water restrictions are in effect, the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association suggests that a plan of watering be adopted which would insure that all of the lawn be soaked over the course of several days. As a recommendation, it is suggested that one-quarter of a lawn be watered one day and another quarter the next watering day. In this way, at the end of a week, the entire lawn would have received a soaking rather than a light sprinkling.

Competition Open For Rodeo Queen Of State Fair

Colorado State Fair manager, Clyde P. Fugate, announced statewide competition Tuesday for the 1964 State Fair Rodeo Queen title. The queen and her attendant will reign over the three - day championship rodeo and will participate in other fair festivities during the giant agricultural exposition Aug. 24-29 in Pueblo.

In outlining qualifications for the title, Fugate said applicants must be single (never married) girls between the ages of 16 and 21. He emphasized that in order to qualify for the State title, a candidate must have first received a comparable queen title in her own community. Contestants are also required to have sponsorship by a local organization such as a civic, service or fraternal group.

Final judging will take place at the State Fairgrounds, the evening of June 27, immediately preceding the Pueblo Saddle Club Rodeo. Fugate said the five judges will select the rodeo queen on the criteria of 70 per cent horsemanship, 20 per cent showmanship, and 10 per cent personality. The runner - up contestant will automatically be selected as attendant to the queen.

The queen and her attendant will be guests of the Past Fair Queens Association during the six - day exposition of Colorado agriculture and industry.

Details of the competition may be obtained from the Colorado State Fair, State Fairgrounds, Pueblo, Colo.

Rearrange Household; Walk 67 Miles Less

Over a period of a year, you can save a total of 67 miles of walking in your home. Here's how:

Rearrange your household equipment and supplies so you're as close as possible to where you use them at your best working height. Move housewares not actually needed to less valuble work space.

Save kitchen mileage by planning meal preparation carefully and by using a try cart. Save your back by using wheels to carry heavy loads like your weekly wash. You'll be surprised at the time and effort you save.

Per capita consumption of paper products in the U.S. last year reached a record 459 pounds.

Livestock Group Seeks Quotas On Beef Imports

The executive committee of the American National Cattlemen's Association has re-emphasized the organization's determination to vigorously pursue legislated quotas on foreign beef imports while stressing other positive approaches the industry can take to help ease the beef industry's desparate price situation.

The men from 18 states who met in Denver Friday outlined continued organized activity in a formal statement:

"The American cattle industry, led by the American National Cattlemen's Association, for many years has successfully resolved its economic problems by practical, self-initiated and self-advanced positive approaches.

"Witness the increase in per capita consumption of beef from 56 pounds in 1951 to about 100 pounds in 1964, such increased consumption stimulated primarily by programs financed by industry money.

"Witness the meeting at all times of national demands for beef products at a price commensurate with national economic relationships.

"Witness the constructive utilization of the recurring perishable natural resource of forage and other feed stuffs which is directly tied to our land resource, private and federal.

"Witness that this self-sustaining industry has accomplished its long-term positive objectives by 'eating' itself out of periods of oversupply, repercussions from Acts of God, extended drouth, as well as postward adjustments and other economic upsets.

"Witness the positive approach of attempting to further broaden the consumption of domestic beef by constructive and scientific recommendations for beef grading and other quality improvement production and marketing practices.

"Witness the American National's guidance over the years in voluntarily keeping domestic supply and demand in balance.

"Among other current positive approaches toward solutions of immediate and long-range industry problems, we feel that the recent survey by a government - sponsored delegation has uncovered European beef markets heretofore insufficiently developed by the meat trade. We feel this development has temporary potentials of varying degrees of relief from oversupply, such oversupply substantially aggravated by imports. This survey should be thoroughly explored and augmented.

"Above all else, however, we feel that recent attempts to secure legislative relief from imports must continue to be prosecuted with all vigor.

"Recognition of this long-term problem is emphatically demonstrated by the bi-partisan congressional support and urging of such legislative relief.

"This legislative action is the basic approach to safeguard the long-term stability of the beef industry. The health of the industry has great influence, above all others, upon every aspect of our national economic health in times of peace as well as war."

President Brooks J. Koegh, Keene, N. D., chairman of the committee, said that, in addition to aggressive efforts toward passage of the quota legislation and development of new outlets for beef elsewhere, the committee urged other organizations and individuals in the beef business to:

—Step up beef promotion efforts.

—Conduct special campaigns to encourage orderly marketing of animals at more desirable weights.

—Cooperate in extensive economic studies of all phases of the industry leading to broader knowledge for all of current and future implications.

Gardener With Experience Will Water Properly

(This is another article prepared as a public service by the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association, and its contents are specifically applicable to this region.)

A person with the proverbial green thumb does now drown a plant or permit it to die from thirst. There is a happy medium between oversaturation and drouth in the plant world.

Many plants are benefited by the entrance of oxygen into the soil and by withholding water from a plant for a week to 10 days aids in this natural aeration of the soil, according to the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association.

There are exceptions to the rule of withholding water since some vegetation will not stand a dry period. On the other extreme some trees such as birch, cherry, linden and oak, do better if the interval between waterings is longer than usual.

Discussing soaking, the nurserymen's association report says that it may take up to four hours to soak a tree root to a depth of two or three feet.

Overwatering, according to the nurserymen, is generally caused by the frequency rather than the quantity of water. A method of determining whether the soil needs water is to dig into the soil and use a "squeeze test. If the soil has enough moisture it will form a small ball of earth in the hand when squeezed.

Nurserymen warn against over exposing a root to the elements.

Drying of the top layer of soil should cause any worry. If there is a question of whether the soil has enough moisture, dig below the top couple of inches and test the earth.

A soil - soaker type of hose or letting the water run onto the lawn from an open end generally allows more water to soak into the soil. If a sprinkler is used, it should be set in one spot for a long enough period of time to place enough water in the right places. Watering a lawn by hand is generally never very satisfactory because most people are too impatient to let enough water be sprinkled on the lawn.

If water restrictions are in effect the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association suggests that a plan of watering be adopted which would insure that all of the lawn be soaked over the course of several days. As a recommendation, it is suggested that one-quarter of a lawn be watered one day and another quarter the next watering day. In this way, at the end of a week, the entire lawn would have received a soaking rather than a light sprinkling.

Livestock Group Seeks Quotas On Beef Imports

The executive committee of the American National Cattlemen's Association has re-emphasized the organization's determination to vigorously pursue legislated quotas on foreign beef imports while stressing other positive approaches the industry can take to help ease the beef industry's desparate price situation.

The men from 18 states who met in Denver Friday outlined continued organized activity in a formal statement.

"The American cattle industry, led by the American National Cattlemen's Association, for many years has successfully resolved its economic problems by practical, self-initiated and self-advanced positive approaches.

"Witness the increase in per capita consumption of beef from 56 pounds in 1951 to about 100 pounds in 1964 such increased consumption stimulated primarily by programs financed by industry money.

"Witness the meeting at all times of national demands for beef products at a price commensurate with national economic relationships.

"Witness the constructive utilization of the recurring perishable natural resource of forage and other feed stuffs which is directly tied to our land resource, private and federal.

"Witness that this self-sustaining industry has accomplished its long-term positive objectives by 'eating' itself out of periods of oversupply, repercussions from Acts of God, extended drouth, as well as postward adjustments and other economic upsets.

"Witness the positive approach of attempting to further broaden the consumption of domestic beef by constructive and scientific recommendations for beef grading and other quality improvement production and marketing practices.

"Witness the American National's guidance over the years in voluntarily keeping domestic supply and demand in balance.

"Among other current positive approaches toward solutions of immediate and long-range industry problems, we feel that the recent survey by a government - sponsored delegation has uncovered European beef markets heretofore insufficiently developed by the meat trade. We feel this development has temporary potentials of varying degrees of relief from oversupply, such oversupply substantially aggravated by imports. This survey should be thoroughly explored and augmented.

"Above all else, however, we feel that recent attempts to secure legislative relief from imports must continue to be prosecuted with all vigor.

"Recognition of this long-term problem is emphatically demonstrated by the bi-partisan congressional support and urging of such legislative relief.

"This legislative action is the basic approach to safeguard the beef long-term stability of the beef industry. The health of the industry has great influence above all others, upon every aspect of our national economic health in times of peace as well as war."

President Brooks J. Kreigh, Keene, N. D., chairman of the committee, said that, in addition to aggressive efforts toward passage of the quota legislation and development of new outlets for beef elsewhere, the committee urged other organizations and individuals in the beef business to:

—Step up beef promotion efforts.

—Conduct special campaigns to encourage orderly marketing of animals at more desirable weights.

—Cooperate in extensive economic studies of all phases of the industry leading to broader knowledge for all of current and future implications.

Save kitchen mileage by planning meal preparation carefully and by using a try cart. Save your back by using wheels to carry heavy loads like your weekly wash. You'll be surprised at the time and effort you save.

Per capita consumption of paper products in the U.S. last year reached a record 459 pounds.

WEST COAT SATIRE

NEW YORK (AP)—A West Coast specimen of brash topical satire is being brought to Broadway next autumn by producer Arthur Cantor. He participated in the arrival here several seasons back of the youthful Second City group of Chicagoans who pioneered the improvisational lampoon fad.

The show is put on by The Committee, a group of six performers and a musician.

Declutterization Inexpensive Way To Redecorate

Along with the urge to clean house about this time of year, many a homemaker wants to "change things around" at home. If you feel this way, too, Ruth Appelthun, county extension home agent, suggests some simple changes that can give satisfying results.

Declutterization can be your first step toward a different look with little effort or expense. Actually, it just involves getting out some of the objects you don't really like, use or want. All you need is a big wicker basket, plus the determination to give away or put away all the items that don't meet the est.

As you decide which accessories you want in a room and where you want them, remember they should be chosen with the use they will serve in mind. Also consider the way they fit in with the decor of the room.

You may decide to regroup plants or refurnish lamps to give your room a fresh new look. If you have a number of potted plants scattered about the room, Ruth Appelthun suggests arranging them in a group. Of, for that small window that is hard to curtain, try a series of glass shelves with interesting foliage plants grouped across them.

Although we may choose lamps primarily for the light we need, our choice of shades and bases can make a real difference in the feeling of a room.

Three Styles Are Seen In Colonial Furniture

By MARGERY McELHENY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fans of American Colonial furniture would rather fight than switch. A reproduction of a dough box or a new provincial print will send them scurrying to colonial outposts in search of a bargain.

To outsiders, colonial furniture is colonial furniture, all the talk about Early American, American Colonial and Georgian Colonial is redundant.

But there are three distinct styles grouped under the general name of American Colonial furniture.

Early American furniture was in use from approximately 1609-1720. In other words, before the Revolution.

The first Early American furniture was rough-hewn and crude, made by settlers for utilitarian purposes rather than beauty or even comfort. The woods used had to be native to the new country: pine, maple and cherry.

Chests needed primarily for storage space were also used as desks, tables and benches. Until real chairs could be made, barrels, crates and even tree stumps served the purpose.

The Colonists had no clothes closets so, in addition to chests for bedding and linens, clothespresses had to be built.

This rural American furniture was regarded as old-fashioned when America became a prosperous young nation. Consequently, Georgian Colonial evolved, and was in vogue from 1720-1780.

Colonial furniture makers had become more skillful, and the resulting chairs, tables, chests and other articles had a new look of beauty, plus utility. They were patterned after European designs of Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton, but copied by excellent American craftsmen.

Also classified in the American Colonial period is the Federal style, lasting approximately 50 years: from 1780-1830. Many interesting Federal antiques have been used in redoing the White House, and the fact that these designs have been chosen has brought about a revival of the furniture of this period.

The Federal style is characterized by slender, straight legs on chairs, tables and sofas and the use of walnut and mahogany coupled with formal fabrics.

The most popular of the three periods today is the hardy Early American. Typical pieces of the period were: Boston rockers harvest, trestle and drop-leaf tables; dough boxes deacons' benches and dry sinks.

All are available today in authentic reproductions, with modern utilitarian features. For instance, dough boxes now serve as end tables; dry sinks as bars, and commodes as cabinets for hi-fi and stereo, as well as records.

Comfortable adaptations of the period include sofas, upholstered chairs and benches, recliner chairs, and beds with comfort-insured mattresses and box springs.

Decorators advise using bold clear colors with Early American . Backgrounds of bright blue, vivid reds, old gold, olive green and even pure white show off maple, pine or cherry furniture to best advantage.

Interesting decorative accessories, such as old milk and sandwich glass, pewter, tole, tin and ironstone are available either in antique shops or as reproductions in furniture and department stores. Special hardware, such as brass, pewter, iron, or plain white porcelain, adds to the authentic Early American look.

Not only has the revival of Early American furniture spread from coast to coast in America, but it is said that chests, four poster beds, dough boxes and other interesting pieces of early Colonial equipment are being sought by Europeans to fit in with their provincial styles.

Carol Burnett Is Headlong Comic Romp

NEW YORK (AP) — Carol Burnett, one of television's favorite clowns, is on headlong comic romp in the musical "Fade Out-Fade In" which arrived Tuesday night at Broadway's Hellinger Theater.

Miss Burnett is enmeshed in a yarn of wheezing antiquity, but she rushes past most of its pitfalls with tomboy joy, wows the house with a dance and belts little tunes like opera arias.

The story is the one about a plain jane who crashes Hollywood by mistake, gets tossed out of the studio abruptly and then becomes an overnight sensation.

The lyrics provided by Betty Comden and Adolph Green for Jule Styne's score are a good deal brighter than a lot of their between-tune dialogue.

The musical numbers are pleasant rather than hummable, but "Fear" is a fine takeoff on executive sycophancy and "Lila Tremaine" provides a swinging first act finale.

All the action takes place in the Hollywood of the 1930s, which enables the company under George Abbott's direction to imitate a lot of yesterday's stars, and gives Miss Burnett a chance to stop the show with a twinkletoes takeoff of Shirley Temple.

Robustly handsome in the chief supporting assignment is Jack Cassidy, an able farceur and singer. Tina Louise, Dick Patterson, Lou Jacobi and Tiger Haynes are others prominently involved.

The major dance sequences, devised by Ernest Flatt, are done with noisy energy by the large and lively company.

"Fade Out-Fade In" sticks to musical formula with distressing persistence. But Miss Burnett rates only cheers.

WEST COAT SATIRE

NEW YORK (AP)—A West Coast specimen of brash topical satire is being brought to Broadway next autumn by producer Arthur Cantor. He participated in the arrival here several seasons back of the youthful Second City group of Chicagoans who pioneered the improvisational lampoon fad.

The show is put on by The Committee, a group of six performers and a musician.

Declutterization Inexpensive Way To Redecorate

Along with the urge to clean house about this time of year, many a homemaker wants to "change things around" at home. It's not feel this way, too? Ruth Appelthun, county extension home agent, suggests some simple changes that can give satisfying results.

Declutterization can be your first step toward a different look with little effort or expense. Actually, it just involves getting out some of the objects you don't really like, use or want. All you need is a big wicker basket, plus the determination to give away or put away all the items that don't meet the test.

As you decide which accessories you want in a room and where you want them, remember they should be chosen with the use they will serve in mind. Also consider the way they fit in with the decor of the room.

You may decide to regroup plants or refurnish lamps to give your room a fresh new look. If you have a number of potted plants scattered about the room, Ruth Appelthun suggests arranging them in a group. Or, for that small window that is hard to curtain, try a series of glass shelves with interesting foliage plants grouped across them.

Although we may choose lamps primarily for the light we need, our choice of shades and bases can make a real difference in the feeling of a room.

Three Styles Are Seen In Colonial Furniture

By MARGERY McELHENY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fans of American Colonial furniture would rather fight than switch. A reproduction of a dough box or a new provincial print will send them scurrying to colonial outposts in search of a bargain.

To outsiders, colonial furniture is colonial furniture, all the talk about Early American, American Colonial and Georgian Colonial is redundant.

But there are three distinct styles grouped under the general name of American Colonial furniture.

Early American furniture was in use from approximately 1609-1720. In other words, before the Revolution.

The first Early American furniture was rough-hewn and crude, made by settlers for utilitarian purposes rather than beauty or even comfort. The woods used had to be native to the new country: pine, maple and cherry.

Chests needed primarily for storage space were also used as desks, tables and benches. Until real chairs could be made, barrels, crates and even tree stumps served the purpose.

The Colonists had no clothes closets so, in addition to chests for bedding and linens, clothespresses had to be built.

This rural American furniture was regarded as old-fashioned when America became a prosperous young nation. Consequently, Georgian Colonial evolved, and was in vogue from 1720-1780.

Colonial furniture makers had become more skillful, and the resulting chairs, tables, chests and other articles had a new look of beauty, plus utility. They were patterned after European designs of Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton, but copied by excellent American craftsmen.

Also classified in the American Colonial period is the Federal style, lasting approximately 50 years from 1780-1830. Many interesting Federal antiques have been used in redoing the White House, and the fact that these designs have been chosen has brought about a revival of the furniture of this period.

The Federal style is characterized by slender, straight legs on chairs, tables and sofas and the use of walnut and mahogany coupled with formal fabrics.

The most popular of the three periods today is the hardy Early American. Typical pieces of the period were Boston rockers, harvest, trestle and drop-leaf tables; dough boxes, deacons' benches and dry sinks.

All are available today in authentic reproductions, with modern utilitarian features. For instance, dough boxes now serve as end tables, dry sinks as bars, and commodes as cabinets for hi-fi and stereo, as well as records.

Comfortable adaptations of the period include sofas, upholstered chairs and benches, recliner chairs, and beds with comfort-insured mattresses and box springs.

Decorators advise using bold clear colors with Early American. Backgrounds of bright blue, vivid reds, old gold, olive green and even pure white show off maple, pine or cherry furniture to best advantage.

Interesting decorative accessories, such as old milk and sandwich glass, pewter, tole, tin and ironstone are available either in antique shops or as reproductions in furniture and department stores. Special hardware, such as brass, pewter, iron, or plain white porcelain, adds to the authentic Early American look.

Not only has the revival of Early American furniture spread from coast to coast in America, but it is said that chests, four poster beds, dough boxes and other interesting pieces of early Colonial equipment are being sought by Europeans to fit in with their provincial styles.

Carol Burnett Is Headlong Comic Romp

NEW YORK (AP) — Carol Burnett, one of television's favorite clowns, is on headlong comic romp in the musical "Fade Out-Fade In" which arrived Tuesday night at Broadway's Hellinger Theater.

Miss Burnett is enmeshed in a yarn of wheezing antiquity, but she rushes past most of its pitfalls with tomboy joy, wows the house with a dance and belts little tunes like opera arias.

The story is the one about a plain jane who crashes Hollywood by mistake, gets tossed out of the studio abruptly and then becomes an overnight sensation.

The lyrics provided by Betty Comden and Adolph Green for Jule Styne's score are a good deal brighter than a lot of their between-tune dialogue.

The musical numbers are pleasant rather than hummable, but "Fear" is a fine takeoff on executive sycophancy and "Lila Tremaine" provides a swinging first act finale.

All the action takes place in the Hollywood of the 1930s, which enables the company under George Abbott's direction to imitate a lot of yesterday's stars, and gives Miss Burnett a chance to stop the show with a twinkletoes takeoff of Shirley Temple.

Robustly handsome in the chief supporting assignment is Jack Cassidy, an able farceur and singer. Tina Louise, Dick Patterson, Lou Jacobi and Tiger Haynes are others prominently involved.

The major dance sequences, devised by Ernest Flatt, are done with noisy energy by the large and lively company.

"Fade Out-Fade In" sticks to musical formula with distressing persistence. But Miss Burnett rates only cheers.

Cadets Host Nation's No.1 Nine

COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Wednesday, May 27, 1964 Gazette Telegraph—1-D

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The most successful college baseball team in the nation and ranked as No. 1 in the National Collegiate Athletic Association will be making a weekend appearance in Colorado Springs when Arizona State University invades Memorial Park this Friday and Saturday in the District 7 finals of the NCAA playoffs against the Air Force Academy.

Arrangements were completed Tuesday for the Sun Devils of Coach Bobby Winkles, a former shortstop with the Sky Sox of the Western League, to come here for the best-of-three series against the Falcons.

The winner of this series will advance on to the College World Series with champions of the eight NCAA districts. The national title will be decided in a double elimination tournament at Omaha, June 9-12.

Games between the Air Force and Arizona State have been set for 2 p.m. on Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday. The Saturday slate will be a possible double header, depending on whether a third contest is necessary.

It will mark the first official return to Memorial Park for Winkles since he used to play there with the Sky Sox. His Sun Devils, however, will not only be favored to win here but will also be one of the top seeded teams in the national tourney because of their tie with Missouri for the top spot in the national poll and an outstanding record of 41-5 which rates them as the winningest club in the country.

The Air Force won the right to meet Arizona State by taking two straight in the series with Rocky Mountain Conference champion Colorado State College last Saturday and Monday. The Falcons nudged the Bears 3-1 in the first game and swept the series with a 7-1 victory on Monday at Greeley.

That brought the AFA's overall record to 22-3 and they defeated CSC three out of four times during the spring. Losses were to New Mexico in the opener, Brigham Young of the Western Athletic Conference at mid-season in a game that snapped a 10-game winning streak, and the loss to Colorado State. Since that last defeat, the Falcons have won 10 straight again going into this weekend's district finals with A-State.

The Sun Devils captured their berth in the district finals by winning the Western Athletic Conference crown in a divisional playoff with Utah last weekend. Arizona State, southern division winner, beat the northern division's champ Utah with a come-from-behind 7-4 triumph last Friday and polished off the Utes with a 13-5 decision on Saturday.

In the first game, second baseman Luis Lagunas cracked a bases-loaded homer in the bottom of the ninth to pull out the victory after what looked like certain defeat. It was Lagunas' second home run of the game.

That contest saw Arizona's ace pitcher Skip Hancock pulled for a reliefer for the first time this season as their second liner Sam Cook came on in the seventh after Utah had gone ahead with two runs. Much like the Air Force, A-State has depended largely on the proformances of two hurlers with Hancock showing one of the best records in the nation and Cook right behind him.

Hancock has averaged 1½ strikeouts per inning this season and has a low earned-run-average of only 1.20. He is expected to be Friday's starter against the AFA's junior Pete Bracci, who tied with Hancock for most votes in the all-opponent team picked by Colorado State.

Other top individuals for the Sun Devils have been catcher Bill Stadler who paces the team in hitting with a .425 average, Lagunas, Jan Kleinman and Sal Bando who are all among the nation's top 10 in RBIs and speedsters John Ruedy and Jack Handley who are in the country's top three in stolen bases.

Undoubtedly the hottest hitter among the Falcons in the last few games has been junior first baseman Bruce Huneke, who hit a home run in each of the playoff games against Colorado State. Huneke's was one of three round-trippers hit against the Bears on Monday as leadoff hitter Al McArtor parked the first pitch of the game and the next batter, Darryl Bloodworth, duplicated the effort on a 3-2 count.

Bracci is expected to get the call from Coach Connie Sparks for Friday's series opener. The fast-working right hander from Haverhill, Mass., has a 9-1 record for the season and hasn't lost since the opener at New Mexico. Lefty Fred Olmsted, who won a five-hitter against CSC on Monday, should be the Air Force starter (probably against Cook) in Saturday's game.

Should the Falcons upset Arizona State in this series, they have been given the okay to advance to the Omaha College World Series. In the past the conflict between this tournament and June Week graduation hung over the Cadets and it was doubtful that they would be able to play even if qualified. This year that has already been cleared.

Missouri, Bills Tie In Playoff

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Missouri was fortunate to get a 1-1 tie with underdog St. Louis before the rains came Tuesday, sending the NCAA Fifth District baseball playoff into a one-game showdown today.

If today's game is washed out, the entire playoff likely will be re-scheduled late next week, depending upon final examinations.

Missouri Coach Hi Simmons will start either veteran left-hander Jack Stroud or rookie right-hander Dennis Musgraves in the big one. Stroud was released from the MU health clinic Monday after recovering from tonsilitis. If he isn't strong enough, Musgraves will start.

St. Louis will use right-hander Joe Hennessy.

The winner will advance to the NCAA's College World Series at Omaha June 8-12. Missouri is seeking its third straight trip, St. Louis its first.

Missouri's 21-game winning streak appeared doomed Tuesday as the Tigers went into the last of the sixth trailing 1-0 under black clouds. They already had one reprieve. Rain halted play for eight minutes after the fifth but the game was resumed when it let up.

Jim Estes led off the sixth with a single for Missouri, then the rain started falling again. In an apparent stalling move, St. Louis pitcher John Marcum made three straight pickoff throws to first base. The third one was wild, going into the rightfield corner.

As Estes rounded second, relay man John Schoemehl of St. Louis threw wildly past third and Estes scored, for a 1-1 deadlock. After two quick outs, the game was washed out by heavy rain.

Weber Has Amazing Run Mark

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve McGreevy of Kansas leads Big Eight baseball hitters with a .421 average and Keith Weber of Missouri is the top pitcher with an amazing 0.18 earned run average.

McGreevy apparently has clinched the batting crown. Dave Harvey of Missouri is second at .418 and both have finished conference play. The figures include all league games except the closing three-game series between Oklahoma State and Nebraska.

Don Sessions, Colorado sophomore, leads the league in homers with five and runs batted in at 19, one more than Mike Der Manuel of Kansas, although Sessions hit only .222 and Der Manuel's .271 was far down.

Harvey leads in slugging percentage with .687 and his 46 total bases ties him with Stirling Coward of Kansas for first. Colorado's Leon Mavity is second with a .631 slugging mark, leads in doubles at nine and in extra base hits with 13.

Weber permitted just one earned run in 50 innings.

Weber had a 6-0 won-lost record.

Chuck Dobson of Kansas has clinched the league strikeout crown with 73 in 51 1-3 innings.

Nineteen regular batters are above .300 in league play. Missouri leads with five, Colorado, Kansas and Iowa State have four .300 hitters each.

Colorado's four are Mavity at .369, Tom Dutcher .365, Bob Bennett .325 and Ron Brown .310.

Braves Sign Two

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Conrad Noessel, 19, of Houston and Ralph Johnson, of Austin, Tex., have signed contracts with the Milwaukee Braves and been assigned to the Braves' Greenville, S.C., team in the Western Carolina League. Noessel is a pitcher and Johnson a catcher.

Casey Figures Club Owners Will Be After His Players

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Mets did a jig in the dressing room and said he expected other club owners to be knocking at his door in possible player deals.

Casey had reason to be jubilant. After all, his Mets had turned in the greatest effort in their three-year history with a 19-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

"I suppose most of the club owners will be trying to contact me now to get my players," said Stengel. He then winked roguishly at a photographer and said "What brings you down here, young man? We don't see much of you people lately."

Casey had every reason to be merry. His Mets had cracked every one of their existing records since they entered the National League in 1962.

Their 19 runs exceeded their previous high by five. Their 23 hits topped their previous total of 16 which one wag claimed was done "several times in two games."

But that wasn't all. For the first time in Met history a player collected five hits in one game. That was Dick Smith, a first baseman who came into the game with a .224 average resulting from 13 previous hits in 58 times at bat.

And to top it, pitcher Jack Fisher hurled his first complete game in 17 starts. The last time he accomplished the feat was as a member of the San Francisco Giants a year ago May 3. His victims were the Mets.

The Mets, however, were not about to destroy their image. As baseball's clown princes they have been consistent losers. Losing big has been their habit. Winning big as they did against the Cubs remains part of the game.

Their victory over the ninth place Cubs gives every indication of the beginning of a tremendous struggle to see which team finishes last in the National League.

Freeman Knocks Out Caminita

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Steve Freeman of Houston knocked out Henry Caminita in 1:50 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight Tuesday night. Each weighed 128.

Freeman knocked down Caminita, of New Orleans, for the mandatory eight-count early in the second round with a short right to the head. When Caminita arose Freeman staged a flurry of rights to the head and Caminita went to one knee where he was counted out.

Freeman now has a 15-2-1 record, Caminita 19-4.

Roberts Remains Critical But Progress Satisfactory

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Race driver Glenn (Fireball) Roberts remained on the critical list today though doctors said he was conscious, alert and making "satisfactory progress considering the extent of his burns."

The 33-year-old Roberts, of Daytona Beach, Fla., was burned over most of his body Sunday in a fiery, three-car crash during the World 600-mile stock car race. One-third of his body received third degree burns.

A medical bulletin said Roberts' "temperature, pulse, kidney function and all other vital functions are being adequately maintained. He is being fed body fluids intravenously."

The bulletin also said the 15-year racing veteran spoke to members of his family for brief periods Tuesday. They included his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Glenn Roberts Sr., and his brother, Tommy Roberts.

Red Cross officials appealed for blood donations in Roberts' behalf. In the first 48 hours after the wreck, Roberts required 58 pints of blood.

Much of the blood was in the form of units of serum albumen, the protein part of blood plasma. It requires eight pints of blood to make one unit of serum albumen.

Fords driven by Roberts, Ned Jarrett of Camden, S.C., and Junior Johnson of Ronda, N.C., were involved in the crash after Johnson lost control on the backstretch of the 1½-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Jarrett and Roberts collided and hit the retaining wall, their gas tanks exploding into flame. Jarrett and Johnson received minor injuries. Jarrett helped free Roberts from his burning racer.

Youth Tops Rifle Veterans

HOER, Sweden (AP) — Eva Nilsson, 12, puzzled grizzled rifle veterans in this southern township Tuesday.

In a corporation shooting contest, she beat dozens of amateur male competitors in the prone rifle event and was the only one to reach 100 points.

Members of shooting clubs were not allowed. When asked what corporation or club she belonged to, little Eva produced a member's card in the Hoer Wrestler's Club. Officials confirmed her membership.

Fans See Clark Leading at Start

By DALE BURGESS
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Jimmy Clark caravan, which picks up another batch of speed fans every time the Flying Scot races in this country, fully expects him to lead from start to finish in Saturday's 48th 500-mile classic Saturday.

They're asking quite a bit.

The closest anybody ever came to leading all the way was Billy Arnold's performance in 1930 in a Hartz-Miller 8 that outclassed the field. Arnold grabbed the lead on the third lap and never was headed after that.

The great Ralph Depalma led all but four laps of the second 500 in 1912. Like Arnold, he pulled ahead on the third lap but a piston broke on his big white Mercedes with two laps to go. Joe Dawson led the last two—the only time he was ever in front at the Speedway.

The 28-year-old Clark, who must be the most eligible bachelor around Duns, Scotland, rambles around the Speedway munching apples and looking like anybody but the world's most ferocious competitor in a race car. That title is disputed vigorously by admirers of such American chargers as Parnelli Jones, A. J. Foyt and Rodger Ward but the Yanks have yet to show they can compete with Clark on the international Grand Prix circuit.

Clark, a sturdy 5-foot-8 inches of solid bone and muscle, has proved outstanding in both hemispheres.

He started racing only eight years ago, a short period compared with many of the top American drivers. He competed in one race at Crimond, Scotland, that year. He drove in only two the next year.

He started running in earnest in 1958 on the Scottish Border Reivers team of Jaguars. He shifted to the English Lotus team at the start of 1960 and finished eighth in world standings. He moved up to sixth in 1961, second in 1962 and the championship last year.

Clark won an unprecedented seven Grand Prix races last season and added the Netherlands Grand Prix last Sunday. He finished a close second to Parnelli Jones in the 1963 Indianapolis 500, won the Milwaukee 200 in record time and broke the one-lap record at the Trenton 200 before going out with mechanical trouble.

He finished No. 6 in U.S. Auto Club standings against drivers who ran on the USAC circuit all season.

Clark is back at the Speedway in a new Lotus-Ford, with about 50 more horsepower than he had last year and a chassis that reputedly handles much better. He hiked the 10-mile qualifying record to 158.8 m.p.h. in the trials and set a one lap record of 159.4 around the 2½-mile track.

The pale green car, shaped like a ballet slipper, will start Saturday in the No. 1 spot, the infield or left side of the front row.

Driving on the left side is customary where Clark comes from.

Zaremba-Downes Fight Slated Thursday Night

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Ed Zaremba, an American light heavyweight boxer, takes on Britain's Terry Downes, former world middleweight champion, in his most important fight so far Thursday night.

A victory for Zaremba, 31-year-old veteran from Jackson, Mich., could put him in the big time. Downes, ranked ninth by the World Boxing Association, joined the light heavies only last year but is already angling for a title fight with champion Willie Pastrano of Miami Beach, Fla.

"Pastrano's manager has been talking with British promoter Harry Levene about a possible title fight in London in September," Downes said.

"But this could depend on how well I do against Zaremba," the Briton said. "I have trained all out for this one. Zaremba's record shows that he's a hard puncher."

Downes was referring to the fact that of his 17 wins in 18 pro fights, Zaremba has won 13 of them by knockouts. Zaremba, who was out of the ring from 1958 through 1961, is virtually unknown in the U.S.

Three Cheyenne Seniors Contribute To Athletic Program

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

When graduation time rolls around next week, Cheyenne Mountain High School will lose three athletes who have contributed largely to the overall success the Pikes Peak League school enjoyed.

The Class-AA school captured three PPL championships, in football, basketball and baseball, and the Indians went on to win their first state gridiron title.

Three seniors at Cheyenne have participated in all three sports and have been actively engaged in athletics without more than a few days off since last September.

Gary Graham, Joel Folk and Jack O'Brien are the lads in question. They have been regulars on the football, basketball and baseball teams.

Last weekend the three played their last game for Cheyenne in the state finals against Delta on the Western Slope. Even though the Indians lost their bid for a fifth State Class-AA championship, the three Cheyenne seniors have been an integral part of the athletic program.

O'Brien received the school's highest award when he was voted the Athlete of the Year. Labelled by his coaches as an unselfish team player with a fierce desire to win, O'Brien was a team leader in all three sports. His leadership ability was especially noticeable in basketball and football.

* * *

During the last basketball season, the PPL coaches voted O'Brien the Most Valuable Player in the nine-team loop. That same year he was also selected the Most Valuable Player on the Cheyenne grid team.

Coach Don O'Hare, who piloted the Indians to the PPL basketball championship last year, summed up O'Brien attitude and contributions to the team when he stated, "Jack was indeed an important link in our offense and his determination to win was immeasurable."

"But the commendable attitude of this youngster was by far his greatest asset to the team. Jack played in a position where he didn't have the opportunity to score, but this didn't bother him. He was unselfish and put winning ahead of personal recognition," O'Hare concluded.

Graham and Folk were elected to the school's Hall of Fame at ceremonies at the spring banquet. Graham quarterbacked the football team to the state championship last winter in addition to excelling in basketball and baseball.

Graham's honors in athletics read: two letters in football, two in basketball and three in baseball during his four years at Cheyenne.

In addition, he was selected on the All-State football team, PPL All-Conference first team, and the Gazette Telegraph-KRDO All-City offensive first team. His honors in basketball read: All-State second team, and PPL All-District first team. And Graham was voted to the PPL All-Conference baseball team.

Folk was Cheyenne's leading scorer in basketball and earned three letters in that sport. The Indians' first line catcher captioned the baseball team and received three varsity letters. Folk also lettered twice in football.

In football, Folk made the All-State, All-City, and PPL All-Conference second teams. Folk made the PPL All-Conference first team in basketball and baseball.

VERSATILE ATHLETES—Three Cheyenne Mountain seniors pause to reminisce the past sports year in which the Indians won three Pikes Peak League championships in football, basketball and baseball. The three Cheyenne athletes are slated to graduate soon and have been an integral part of the athletic program at the Class-AA school. In addition to winning the PPL titles in the three major sports, the Cheyenne team captured its first State Class-AA football crown last winter. From left: Gary Graham, Joel Folk and Jack O'Brien.

Strike Ultimatum

NL Umpires Want Pension Plan Increase

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Baseball League Umpires Association, having failed to pressure a pension plan increase, has issued a strike ultimatum.

Either the National League meets the association's demands or "appropriate action" will be taken by 3 p.m., July 3, said attorney John J. Reynolds of Chicago, who represents the group, on Tuesday.

The move hit such baseball officials as Warren Giles, president of the National League, and Ford Frick, the game's commissioner, by surprise.

However, the umpires' association has been angling for increased pension benefits for the last six months without receiving league courtesy, said Reynolds.

Eighteen of the league's 20 umpires met with Reynolds in Chicago and drafted a letter demanding increased benefits. Copies of the letter were sent to Giles and every team in the league.

Currently, the pension plan for umpires retiring at 55 calls for $200 a year for each year of service meaning an umpire with 10 years of active service would receive $2,000 a year upon retirement.

The association, however, wants this figure boosted to $300 a year for each year of service. Recent dickering resulted in an offer of $250 by Giles which the National League umpires turned down before issuing their ultimatum.

Reynolds said that he and five directors of the group met with league officials at the major league meetings last December. This group also huddled with the National League Pension Committee.

"We made repeated requests for an opportunity to discuss our demands," said Reynolds "but we heard nothing from the league. Two weeks ago we received a letter from Mr. Giles in which he presented his proposal of $250 a year per man.

"We held our meeting and the umpires voted against acceptance. That is our final decision and I don't think we have told any other meetings."

Asked if the league boosted its offer above $250 but did not meet the $300 demand would he call another meeting, Reynolds said another meeting would have to be called to give the umpires an opportunity to accept.

Giles, reached in Cincinnati, said he had not heard about a strike threat.

"I have no comment," said Giles. "I haven't heard from them directly and I don't want to comment on a news report."

Frick said he didn't know anything about a strike threat and added that "I would have to say at this time that it is a league matter."

Walter O'Malley, the president of the Los Angeles Dodgers, admitted the possibility of a strike could occur. O'Malley added that the umpires' announcement was premature and that he was sure the "matter is coming up at the July meeting of the National League."

Umpires in the American League are not organized such as their National League counterparts. American League umpires had a pension plan calling for $150 a man per year of service until this spring when the figure was boosted to $250.

Bob Friend Says Umps Have Case

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Friend, the National League's player representative, said Tuesday night the league's umpires "must have a case" or they wouldn't be threatening to strike.

Friend made his comments after an announcement in Chicago by the National League Umpires Association that the umpires would strike if their demands for increased pension money were not met by July 3.

"This is something that has never been part of our jurisdiction," said Friend. "However, they must have a case or they wouldn't be doing this. When anything comes up about the umpires it's the league president's business and not the players.

"We're hoping this thing can be worked out," he continued. "I know all along the umpires have felt that their pension has not been adequate."

Asked to comment on the eventuality of a strike, Friend said:

"I don't think this would be very good for baseball. I think both sides have to give a little."

Cadets Host Nation's No.1 Nine

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The most successful college baseball team in the nation and ranked as No. 1 in the National Collegiate Athletic Association will be making a weekend appearance in Colorado Springs when Arizona State University invades Memorial Park this Friday and Saturday in the District 7 finals of the NCAA playoffs against the Air Force Academy.

Arrangements were completed Tuesday for the Sun Devils of Coach Bobby Winkles, a former shortstop with the Sky Sox of the Western League, to come here for the best-of-three series against the Falcons.

The winner of this series will advance on to the College World Series with champions of the eight NCAA districts. The national title will be decided in a double elimination tournament at Omaha, June 9-12.

Games between the Air Force and Arizona State have been set for 2 p.m. on Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday. The Saturday slate will be a possible double header, depending on whether a third contest is necessary.

It will mark the first official return to Memorial Park for Winkles since he used to play there with the Sky Sox. His Sun Devils, however, will not only be favored to win here but will also be one of the top seeded teams in the national tourney because of their tie with Missouri for the top spot in the national poll and an outstanding record of 41-5 which rates them as the winningest club in the country.

The Air Force won the right to meet Arizona State by taking two straight in the series with Rocky Mountain Conference champion Colorado State College last Saturday and Monday. The Falcons nudged the Bears 3-1 in the first game and swept the series with a 7-1 victory on Monday at Greeley.

That brought the AFA's overall record to 22-3 and they defeated CSC three out of four times during the spring. Losses were to New Mexico in the opener, Brigham Young of the Western Athletic Conference at mid-season in a game that snapped a 10-game winning streak, and the loss to Colorado State. Since that last defeat, the Falcons have won 10 straight again going into this weekend's district finals with A-State.

The Sun Devils captured their berth in the district finals by winning the Western Athletic Conference crown in a division-al playoff with Utah last week-ed. Arizona State, southern division winner, beat the northern division's champ Utah with a come-from-behind 7-4 triumph last Friday and polished off the Utes with a 13-5 decision on Saturday.

In the first game, second baseman Luis Lagunas cracked a bases-loaded homer in the bottom of the ninth to pull out the victory after what looked like certain defeat. It was Lagunas' second home run of the game.

That contest saw Arizona's ace pitcher Skip Hancock picked for a reliefer for the first time this season as their second linger Sam Cook came on in the seventh after Utah had gone ahead with two runs. Much like the Air Force, A-State has depended largely on the proformances of two hurlers with Hancock showing one of the best records in the nation and Cook right behind him.

Hancock has averaged 11+ strikeouts per inning this season and has a low earned-run-average of only 1.20. He is expected to be Friday's starter against the AFA's junior Pete Bracci who tied with Hancock for most votes in the all-opponent team picked by Colorado State.

Other top individuals for the Sun Devils have been catcher Bill Stadler who paces the team in hitting with a .425 average. Lagunas, Jan Kleinman and Sal Bando who are all among the nation's top 10 in RBIs and speedsters John Ruedy and Jack Handley who are in the country's top three in stolen bases.

Undoubtedly the hottest hitter among the Falcons in the last few games has been junior first baseman Bruce Hu[illegible] who had a home run in each of the playoff games against [illegible] State. Hu[illegible] was also a three round [illegible] against the Bears on Monday as Hadoff hitter Al McArthur parking the first pitch of the game and the next batter Harry Brown who duplicated the feat for a 2-0 count.

Brown is expected to get the call from Coach Connie Sparks for Friday's series opener. The fast-working right hander from Haverhill, Mass. has a 4-1 record for the season and last out since the opener at New Mex[illegible]. Larry Frost (3-0) was [illegible] against [illegible] State Monday to be the starter [illegible] against [illegible] on Saturday's game.

Should the Falcons upset Arizona State in this series, they have been given the okay to advance to the Omaha College World Series. In the past the conflict between this tournament and June Week graduation hung over the Cadets and it was doubtful that they would be able to play even if qualified. This year that has already been cleared.

Missouri, Bills Tie In Playoff

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Missouri was fortunate to get a 1-1 tie with underdog St. Louis before the rains came Tuesday, sending the NCAA Fifth District baseball playoff into a one-game showdown today.

If today's game is washed out, the entire playoff likely will be re-scheduled late next week, depending upon final examinations.

Missouri Coach Hi Simmons will start either veteran left-hander Jack Stroud or rookie right-hander Dennis Musgraves in the big one. Stroud was released from the MU health clinic Monday after recovering from tonsilitis. If he isn't strong enough, Musgraves will start.

St. Louis will use right-hander Joe Hennessy.

The winner will advance to the NCAA's College World Series at Omaha June 8-12. Missouri is seeking its third straight trip, St. Louis its first.

Missouri's 21-game winning streak appeared doomed Tuesday as the Tigers went into the last of the sixth trailing 1-0 under black clouds. They already had one reprieve. Rain halted play for eight minutes after the fifth but the game was resumed when it let up.

Jim Estes led off the sixth with a single for Missouri, then the rain started falling again. In an apparent stalling move, St. Louis pitcher John Marcum made three straight pickoff throws to first base. The third one was wild, going into the rightfield corner.

As Estes rounded second, relay man John Schoemehl of St. Louis threw wildly past third and Estes scored, for a 1-1 deadlock. After two quick outs, the game was washed out by heavy rain.

Weber Has Amazing Run Mark

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve McGreevy of Kansas leads Big Eight baseball hitters with a .421 average and Keith Weber of Missouri is the top pitcher with an amazing 0.18 earned run average.

McGreevy apparently has clinched the batting crown. Dave Harvey of Missouri is second at .418 and both have finished conference play. The figures include all league games except the closing three-game series between Oklahoma State and Nebraska.

Don Sessions, Colorado sophomore, leads the league in homers with five and runs batted in at 19, one more than Mike Der Manuel of Kansas, although Sessions hit only .222 and Der Manuel's .271 was far down.

Harvey leads in slugging percentage with .687 and his 46 total bases ties him with Stirling Coward of Kansas for first. Colorado's Leon Mavity is second with a .631 slugging mark, leads in doubles at nine and in extra base hits with 13.

Weber permitted just one earned run in 50 innings.

Weber had a 6-0 won-lost record.

Chuck Dobson of Kansas has clinched the league strikeout crown with 73 in 51 1-3 innings.

Nineteen regular batters are above .300 in league play. Missouri leads with five. Colorado, Kansas and Iowa State have four .300 hitters each.

Colorado's four are Mavity at .369, Tom Dutcher .365, Bob Bennett .325 and Ron Brown .310.

Casey Figures Club Owners Will Be After His Players

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Mets did a jig in the dressing room and said he expected other club owners to be knocking at his door in possible player deals.

Casey had reason to be jubilant. After all, his Mets had turned in the greatest effort in their three-year history with a 19-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

"I suppose most of the club owners will be trying to contact me now to get my players," said Stengel. He then winked roguishly at a photographer and said "What brings you down here, young man? We don't see much of you people lately."

Casey had every reason to be merry. His Mets had cracked every one of their existing records since they entered the National League in 1962.

Their 19 runs exceeded their previous high by five. Their 23 hits topped their previous total of 16 which one wag claimed was done "several times in two games."

But that wasn't all. For the first time in Met history a player collected five hits in one game. That was Dick Smith, a first baseman who came into the game with a .224 average resulting from 13 previous hits in 58 times at bat.

And to top it, pitcher Jack Fisher hurled his first complete game in 17 starts. The last time he accomplished the feat was as a member of the San Francisco Giants a year ago May 3. His victims were the Mets.

The Mets, however, were not about to destroy their image. As baseball's clown princes they have been consistent losers. Losing big has been their habit. Winning big as they did against the Cubs remains part of the game.

Their victory over the ninth place Cubs gives every indication of the beginning of a tremendous struggle to see which team finishes last in the National League.

Roberts Remains Critical But Progress Satisfactory

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Race driver Glenn "Fireball" Roberts remained on the critical list today though doctors said he was conscious, alert and making "satisfactory progress considering the extent of his burns."

The 33-year-old Roberts, of Daytona Beach, Fla., was burned over most of his body Sunday in a fiery, three-car crash during the World 600-mile stock car race. One-third of his body received third degree burns.

A medical bulletin said Roberts' "temperature, pulse, kidney function and all other vital functions are being adequately maintained. He is being fed body fluids intravenously."

The bulletin also said the 15-year racing veteran spoke to members of his family for brief periods Tuesday. They included his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Glenn Roberts Sr., and his brother, Tommy Roberts.

Red Cross officials appealed for blood donations in Roberts' behalf. In the first 48 hours after the wreck, Roberts required 50 pints of blood.

Much of the blood was in the form of units of serum albumen, the protein part of blood plasma. It requires eight pints of blood to make one unit of serum albumen.

Fords driven by Roberts, Ned Jarrett of Camden, S.C., and Junior Johnson of Ronda, N.C., were involved in the crash after Johnson lost control on the backstretch of the 1½-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Jarrett and Roberts collided and hit the retaining wall, their gas tanks exploding into flame. Jarrett and Johnson received minor injuries. Jarrett helped free Roberts from his burning racer.

Freeman Knocks Out Caminita

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Steve Freeman of Houston knocked out Henry Caminita in 1:50 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight Tuesday night. Each weighed 128.

Freeman knocked down Caminita, of New Orleans, for the mandatory eight-count early in the second round with a short right to the head. When Caminita arose Freeman staged a flurry of rights to the head and Caminita went to one knee where he was counted out.

Freeman now has a 15-2-1 record, Caminita 19-4.

Youth Tops Rifle Veterans

HOER, Sweden (AP) — Eva Nilsson, 12, puzzled grizzled rifle veterans in this southern township Tuesday.

In a corporation shooting contest, she beat dozens of amateur male competitors in the prone rifle event and was the only one to reach 100 points.

Members of shooting clubs were not allowed. When asked what corporation or club she belonged to, little Eva produced a member's card in the Hoer Wrestler's Club. Officials confirmed her membership.

Fans See Clark Leading at Start

By DALE BURGESS
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Jimmy Clark caravan, which picks up another batch of speed fans every time the Flying Scot races in this country, fully expects him to lead from start to finish in Saturday's 48th 500-mile classic Saturday.

They're asking quite a bit.

The closest anybody ever came to leading all the way was Billy Arnold's performance in 1930 in a Hartz-Miller 8 that outclassed the field. Arnold grabbed the lead on the third lap and never was headed after that.

The great Ralph Depalma led all but four laps of the second 500 in 1912. Like Arnold, he pulled ahead on the third lap but a piston broke on his big white Mercedes with two laps to go. Joe Dawson led the last two—the only time he was ever in front at the Speedway.

The 28-year-old Clark, who must be the most eligible bachelor around Duns Scotland, rambles around the Speedway munching apples and looking like anybody but the world's most ferocious competitor in a race car. That title is disputed vigorously by admirers of such American chargers as Parnelli Jones, A. J. Foyt and Rodger Ward but the Yanks have yet to show they can compete with Clark on the international Grand Prix circuit.

Clark, a sturdy 5-foot-8 inches of solid bone and muscle, has proved outstanding in both hemispheres.

He started racing only eight years ago, a short period compared with many of the top American drivers. He competed in one race at Crimond Scotland that year. He drove in only two the next year.

He started running in earnest in 1958 on the Scottish Border Reivers team of Jaguars. He shifted to the English Lotus team at the start of 1960 and finished eighth in world standings. He moved up to sixth in 1961, second in 1962 and the championship last year.

Clark won an unprecedented seven Grand Prix races last season and added the Netherlands Grand Prix last Sunday. He finished a close second to Parnelli Jones in the 1963 Indianapolis 500 won the Milwaukee 200 in record time and broke the one-lap record at the Trenton 200 before going out with mechanical trouble.

He finished No. 6 in U.S. Auto Club standings against drivers who ran on the USAC circuit all season.

Clark is back at the Speedway in a new Lotus-Ford, with about 50 more horsepower than he had last year and a chassis that reputedly handles much better. He turned the fastest qualifying record to 158.8 mph in the trials and set a one-lap record of 159.4 mph and the 2-mile track.

Zaremba-Downes Fight Slated Thursday Night

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Ed Zaremba, an American light heavyweight boxer, takes on Britain's Terry Downes former world middleweight champion in his most important fight so far Thursday night.

A victory for Zaremba, 31-year-old veteran from Jackson, Mich., could put him in the big time. Downes, ranked ninth by the World Boxing Association, joined the light heavies only last year but is already angling for a title fight with champion Willie Pastrano of Miami Beach, Fla.

Pastrano's manager has been talking with British promoter Harry Levene about a possible title fight in London in September, Downes said.

"But this could depend on how well I do against Zaremba," the Briton said. "I have trained all out for this one. Zaremba's record shows that he's a hard puncher."

Downes was referring to the fact that of his 17 wins in 18 pro fights, Zaremba has won 13 of them by knockouts. Zaremba, who was out of the ring from 1958 through 1961, is virtually unknown in the U.S.

Three Cheyenne Seniors Contribute To Athletic Program

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

When graduation time rolls around next week, Cheyenne Mountain High School will lose three athletes who have contributed largely to the overall success the Pikes Peak League school enjoyed.

The Class-AA school captured three PPL championships, in football, basketball and baseball, and the Indians went on to win their first state gridiron title.

Three seniors at Cheyenne have participated in all three sports and have been actively engaged in athletics without more than a few days off since last September.

Gary Graham, Joel Folk and Jack O'Brien are the lads in question. They have been regulars on the football, basketball and baseball teams.

Last weekend the three played their last game for Cheyenne in the state finals against Delta on the Western Slope. Even though the Indians lost their bid for a fifth State Class-AA championship, the three Cheyenne seniors have been an integral part of the athletic program.

O'Brien received the school's highest award when he was voted the Athlete of the Year. Labelled by his coaches as an unselfish team player with a fierce desire to win, O'Brien was a team leader in all three sports. His leadership ability was especially noticeable in basketball and football.

During the last basketball season, the PPL coaches voted O'Brien the Most Valuable Player in the nine-team loop. That same year he was also selected the Most Valuable Player on the Cheyenne grid team.

Coach Don O'Hare, who piloted the Indians to the PPL basketball championship last year, summed up O'Brien attitude and contributions to the team when he stated, "Jack was indeed an important link in our offense and his determination to win was immeasurable."

"But the commendable attitude of this youngster was by far his greatest asset to the team. Jack played in a position where he didn't have the opportunity to score, but this didn't bother him. He was unselfish and put winning ahead of personal recognition," O'Hare concluded.

Graham and Folk were elected to the school's Hall of Fame at ceremonies at the spring banquet. Graham quarterbacked the football team to the state championship last winter in addition to excelling in basketball and baseball.

Graham's honors in athletics read two letters in football, two in basketball and three in baseball during his four years at Cheyenne.

In addition, he was selected on the All-State football team, PPL All-Conference first team, and the Gazette Telegraph-KRDO All-City offensive first team. His honors in basketball read All-State second team, and PPL All-District first team. And Graham was voted to the PPL All-Conference baseball team.

Folk was Cheyenne's leading scorer in basketball and earned three letters in that sport. The Indians' first line catcher captioned the baseball team and received three varsity letters. Folk also lettered twice in football.

In football, Folk made the All-State, All-City, and PPL All-Conference second teams. Folk made the PPL All-Conference first team in basketball and baseball.

VERSATILE ATHLETES—Three Cheyenne Mountain seniors pause to reminisce the past sports year in which the Indians won three Pikes Peak League championships in football, basketball and baseball. The three Cheyenne athletes are slated to graduate soon and have been an integral part of the athletic program at the Class-AA school. In addition to winning the PPL titles in the three major sports, the Cheyenne team captured its first State Class-AA football crown last winter. From left: Gary Graham, Joel Folk and Jack O'Brien. Strike Ultimatum

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Baseball League Umpires Association, having failed to pressure a pension plan increase, has issued a strike ultimatum.

Finley Plans For Monument In Center Field

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Owner Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics says he's going to erect a center field monument to Connie Mack as the next move in his campaign against the New York Yankees.

"If anybody thinks it (the monument) is going to be any place outside the stadium, they are crazy," the outspoken owner declared Tuesday. "It will be about 400 feet from the plate—10 feet inside the fence."

Finley predicted he would get telegrams from Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and American League President Joe Cronin, similar to those he received after he built his Pennant Porch. The wires ordered him to remove the porch or forfeit all home games.

"You forfeit them, will be the answer," Finley said. "That monument is going to stay there until you move the ones from Yankee Stadium.

"The Yankees have got three huge monuments out there in center field. As far as I know that may be a cemetery out there. Babe Ruth may be buried there."

Finley's porch was a protest against the unscreened 296-foot foul line in right field in Yankee Stadium. He moved the porch back to the rulebook 325-foot line after the wires from Frick and Cronin.

The owner said if baseball doesn't force the Yanks to put up foul line screens in the next two or three years, "I'll get out of baseball."

He spoke at a meeting of the Sertoma Club. The A's have lost 10 of their last 11 games. One questioner asked how far fans should go in supporting a losing club. Finley said "You can't ballyhoo a funeral, that I know."

President Can Enact Sports Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only President Johnson's signature is needed to enact a bill cracking down on interstate schemes aimed at influencing the outcome of college or professional sports events by bribery.

The Senate approved the bill by voice vote Tuesday, accepting changes made by the House and sent the measure to the White House.

The legislation would make it a federal crime to use interstate facilities, such as the telephone or the mails, to participate in a scheme to "fix" the outcome of a game, or affect the point spread in a contest.

Endorsed by the administration, the measure is aimed primarily at gambling syndicates trafficking in large-scale betting operations on sports, and is the outgrowth of college basketball fix scandals of recent years.

It applies to anyone caught in a bribery conspiracy — including players, coaches or referees — as well as suspected gamblers. Stiff penalties of up to $5,000 and 10 years in prison are provided.

General Eisenhower Steals Show From Palmer in Charity Match

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The crowd at Merion Golf Club was apprehensive. Comments included, "Gee, I hope he plays well," to "I hope he doesn't embarrass himself."

The "he" was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the former president not only didn't embarrass himself, but stole the show from his partner, Masters champion Arnold Palmer.

Eisenhower and Palmer teamed in a match Tuesday for the benefit of the Heart Fund against veteran pro Jimmy Demaret and dancer Ray Bolger. The Heart Fund reported it took in $25,000.

On the course made famous by Bobby Jones, when he completed his golf grand slam here in 1930 (winning the British and American Open and amateur tournaments), General Ike played the kind of golf that prompted Palmer to comment:

"I must admit, he carried me all the way. His golf was superb."

This was Ike's first public golf exhibition, and he did himself proud as he and Palmer defeated Demaret and Bolger 3 and 2 over the par 36-34 course in suburban Philadelphia.

Actually, the match was over from a competitive standpoint at the end of the 16th, but at Ike's insistence, the foursome finished the round. When the 16th hole was halved, referee Clarence Benedict, president of the U.S. Golf Association, said to Ike:

"The match is over General. You've won. Do you want to stop or play the last two holes."

Ike consulted with an aide, asking the time, and was advised to call it a day.

"Aw, let's go play," said the suntanned 73-year-old Ike, introduced here as "the dirt farmer from Gettysburg, Pa."

So they played. And on the 17th hole Ike brought the house down. Putting from the edge of the green he dropped in a 50-footer.

As the crowd cheered and applauded, he tipped his white golf cap, grinned from ear to ear and accepted congratulatory whacks on the back from his fellow players.

Asked if that was the longest putt he ever made, Ike said, "I've sunk longer, but they're all miracles as far as I'm concerned."

The only concession Ike and Bolger received from the pros in the match was hitting off the front tees. Palmer and Demaret drove from the back tees.

The general, after a miserable warm-up in which he made every mistake in the game, settled down once the match got underway. He almost collapsed with joy on the first green where he canned a 10-foot putt for a lead he and Palmer never lost.

There were other big moments for the man who as president did for golf what Herbert Hoover did for fishing and Harry Truman for walking. For example, as he walked to the third tee, he said in an aside to a lady:"

"Hide your eyes when, I hit this one," pointing to the green 180-yards away across a deep ravine and on top of a hill. Then he belted the ball onto the green 30 feet from the pin.

His approach on the 367-yard 8th hole was a beauty. Palmer drove short of the green behind a yawning trap on a downhill lie. Looking at it Ike said to Palmer:

"You'll forgive me for what I do here," and in the next moment chipped on three feet short of the pin. Demaret asked "when are you going to join us?"

Informality and jovialty were the order of the day for the event. On the seventh Ike's drive landed in the right rough under a tree. Palmer couldn't play the ball because his club kept hitting a branch. Commented Ike unsympathetically:

"Now you're playing the shot I have to play all year."

Palmer summed up the general's golf by saying:

"He plays very well, very well indeed."

Ike gave the golfer's answer. "Some days I do."

The match was played under the Chapman System. Each player hits a drive and plays his partner's ball on his second shot. Then each team plays one ball the rest of the way, hitting alternate shots.

NBA Modifies Draft Rule; Also Passes Pension Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — With a nod in the direction of its have-not clubs, the National Basketball Association has modified its draft rules.

In the annual meeting of the board of governors Tuesday, the league also voted to provide its players with the controversial pension plan which nearly caused a strike at the NBA All Star gam ein Boston Jan. 14.

The revised draft regulations will give the league's tailend clubs two choices each before any other team is permitted to pick in the annual player selections each spring.

The two cellar clubs will flip a coin before the draft. If the team with the higher percentage wins the toss, it will pick 1-4 and the other basement club will choose 2-3. Should the lower percentage team win the slip, the order of selection will be 1-3 and 2-4.

That means that four players will be spoken for before any of the other clubs makes a pick.

The pension plan adoption resolves an issue which has been under discussion for more than two years. Originally proposed by Fred Zollner, owner of the Detroit Pistons, the plan was thrust into the spotlight by the players at last season's All-Star game.

Disgruntled at what they called stalling tactics by the owners, the players demanded consideration of the plan before last January's game. When the demand was turned down, they threatened not to play the game.

Other moves set the opening and closing dates for the 1965 season—Oct. 16 and March 21—and made some slight revisions in the national television program.

Pietrangeli Stuns Emerson In French Net Tournament

PARIS (AP) —If there's any magic still circulating at the French International Tennis Championships today after Nicola Pietrangeli's amazing straight-set ouster of top-seeded Roy Emerson in the men's singles quarter-finals, Karen Hantze Susman hopes to make it her own.

Pietrangeli, Italy's No. 1 player, swept past defending champion Emerson, of Australia, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 Tuesday before a cheering crowd of 4,000 at Roland Garros Stadium.

Today, diminutive Mrs. Susman, a San Diego, Calif., mother, faces a critical test in her comeback campaign when she plays second-seeded Maria Bueno of Brazil in a women's quarter-final match. Karen, the 1962 Wimbledon queen, is the only American survivor in the tourney.

Her performance against Miss Bueno, winner of the U.S. women's title in 1959 and 1963 and two-time Wimbledon champion, may determine how far she can hope to go at Wimbledon and Forest Hills this year.

Mrs. Susman was idle most of 1963 following the birth of her baby. She was unranked in the United Siates and unseeded here. Back trouble forced her to abandon a Caribbean tour early this spring but she has been slowly approaching her 1962 form in three European tournaments.

Pietrangeli, at the top of his game a month after suffering a mild heart attack during the Italian Championships, forced Emerson away from the net with a strong service and sensational lobs and volleys. He broke through Emerson's service in the eighth game of the third set with a pair of sharp, low drives and the Aussie star never recovered.

Pietrangeli's semifinal opponent Thursday will be Jan-Erik Lundquist of Sweden, who defeated Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1. Second-seeded Pierre Darmon of France and Spain's Manuel Santana are the other semifinalists.

Small Crowd Views Mets Explode for 19 Big Runs

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

National League umpires, who are talking about a strike, must have been out painting picket signs.

How else can you explain the New York Mets scoring 19 runs?

In a week you say? Well, it's true that would be a prolific output for Casey Stengel's runless wonders for seven days and it's more than they scored last week. But we're talking about a single game.

That's right, a single game. And there were 2,503 fans in Chicago's Wrigley Field Tuesday who can testify to the 19-1 victory. In years to come that number is sure to grow. People like to say they were on hand when history was made.

The Mets, whose past performance has made them somewhat modest souls, did most of the damage with a couple of fellows named Smith. They weren't the cough drop boys but Dick and Charley certainly irritated the Cubs as New York sprayed 23 hits against six Chicago hurlers.

Dick Smith became the first Met ever to get five hits in a game with three singles, a double and a triple. Charley Smith belted a three-run homer, the game's only four bagger, and added two singles for five RBI.

Jack Fisher, delighted with the fantastic support, fashioned a four-hitter and went the distance for the first time since May 3, 1963.

And Stengel? The Ol' Perfesser was delighted with the show. "Well, I suppose most of the club owners will be trying to contact me now to get my players," he told newsmen.

Don't expect a mad rush, Case.

While the Mets were wearing out Cub fielders, Pittsburgh gave Philadelphia a similar treatment. The Pirates scored 10 runs in the first two innings and coasted to a 13-4 victory. Houston dropped Milwaukee 4-2 and Cincinnati whipped Los Angeles 6-2. San Francisco and St. Louis were rained out.

The Mets jumped on Cub starter Bob Buhl for four runs in the first and completed the carnage with six runs in the ninth. In between they kept the Cubs chasing base hits all over the field and looked like anything but cellar dwellers.

What can they do for an encore? Well, they have their ace, Al Jackson, scheduled to pitch today. It's the best they can offer.

Manny Mota had a solo homer and Jim Pagliaroni crashed a grand slammer as the Pirates hopped on Chris Short and Dallas Green in the first two innings.

Vern Law won it with a six-hitter fanning seven and walking one. Cookie Rojas and John Callison homered for the Phils.

Dick Farrell became the first seven-game winner in the majors, throttling the Braves on four hits. Al Spangler's leadoff homer got the Colts started and Farrell's 11 strikeout pitching kept them going.

The Braves, who had banged out 43 hits in winning their last three games, made their loudest noise with solo homers by Felipe Alou and Joe Torre. Torre also doubled and walked running his average to .376.

Don Dyrsdale permitted just three hits but Cincinnati bunched them in the second inning and combined with Drysdale's throwing error on an attempted pickoff it led to a 3-0 Reds' lead.

Cincinnati added three in the ninth against Ron Perranoski. Bob Purkey had a four-hit shutout until Tommy Davis singled and Frank Howard cracked his 13th homer in the 9th.

Orioles' Rookie Posts Fifth Straight Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's no battle when Bunker's on the hill.

Wally Bunker, the 19-year-old rookie right-hander creating a sensation with the Baltimore Orioles, marched up on the hill for the fifth time this season Tuesday night and came away with his fifth victory without a loss, 2-1 over the Detroit Tigers.

There was, of course, the usual skirmishing, but Bunker has not been bombed yet. This time he set the first 13 Tigers down in order and allowed only three hits before he was lifted for a pinch hitter when the Orioles scored the winning run in the seventh.

Bunker's professional experience before this season consisted of 14 games with Stockton in 1963, where he posted a 10-1 record, and an 0-1 record with the Orioles after reaching the majors at the tailend of the season.

Bunker appeared to be headed back to the minors for seasoning when the Orioles decided to keep him. Under the first-year rule, he would have to count against the 25-man limit whether he was in the minors or the majors, so he stayed with Baltimore.

When injuries struck, Manager Hank Bauer was forced to send Bunker to the firing line. The teen-age tosser has responded by becoming the Orioles' No. 1 winner, allowing only 22 hits and eight earned runs in 41 innings for an eye-opening 1.76 ERA.

While Bunker was winning his fifth straight, Ken McBride of the Los Angeles Angels continued to add to his total on the debit side of the ledger. McBride allowed only three hits in eight innings but lost to Minnesota 2-1 for his eighth defeat since an opening game triumph.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston edged Washington 3-2 on Ed Bressoud's run-producing single in the ninth and the New York Yankees defeated Cleveland 3-2 on Bobby Richardson's ninth inning single. The Chicago White Sox were rained out at Kansas City.

The Orioles broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh on singles by Jerry Adair, Dick Brown and Bob Johnson, who pinch hit for Bunker. Stu Miller protected the edge, pitching no-hit ball over the final three innings in his 18th relief appearance.

The Tigers had tied it in the fifth against Bunker on a walk, Bill Freehan's single and a sacrifice fly by Don Wert.

McBride, protecting a 1-0 lead lost it in the fourth when he hit Rich Rollins with a pitch and an error and a walk filled the bases. Don Mincher's sacrifice fly got the run home. The Twins moved ahead to stay in the seventh when Mincher singled and eventually scored on an infield hit by winning pitcher Jim Kaat.

Kaat, bringing his record to 5-2, struck out nine and scattered eight hits.

Jim King hit for the cycle for the Senators, smacking a single, double, triple and homer. The homer tied the score 2-2 in the sixth. Tht Red Sox won it in the ninth when winning pitcher Earl Wilson led off with a walk and moved around on singles by Dalton Jones and Eddie Bressoud.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Red Sox and their eighth in nine games.

Richardson, who earlier had belted a pair of two-out triples but was stranded, drove across the tie-breaker for the Yankees following singles by Elston Howard and Phil Linz. The victory went to Pete Mikkelsen, working in relief of Whitey Ford. Boger Maris homered for the Yankees as they scored two runs in the fourth inning.

Whitey's Wedding Ring New Pitching Gimmick

NEW YORK (AP)—Dear Joan Ford:

That must be some wedding ring Whitey wears. Everybody wanted to take a look at it Tuesday night — right in the middle of the game.

It was like this Joan:

Jim Grant, the Cleveland pitcher, told Umpire John Rice that the ball he got after your husband pitched the eighth inning was scuffed.

At the start of the ninth with the score tied 2-2, Rice walked out to the mound to talk to Whitey about it.

That's when the wedding ring began to get as much attention as the beads the Indians—the first ones — got for Manhattan Island.

Whitey said, sure, he had a wedding ring on, covered with tape. No, Joan, he wasn't hiding it. As a matter of fact, George Strickland, the Indians' manager said it probably was his best weapon, because he was rubbing the ball with the abrasive tape.

Then Yogi Berra, Whitey's boss, started getting into the act, and everyone was discussing the ring. That's when Whitey took charge.

He said, "Look, if it will end all the trouble I'll take if off."

So, Joan, he took it off.

You know how it is, Joan, first they accuse him of throwing spitballs, now they've got a new act.

Anyway, Joan, Whitey wasn't too good without the ring, or the tape.

Whitey got the first out, but then John Romano singled and Jerry Kindall singled and Whitey went to take a shower.

Pete Mikkelsen then came on and got the Indians out and the Yankees won the game 3-2 in the bottom of the ninth when singles by Elston Howard, Phil Linz and Bobby Richardson brought in the winning run.

Joan, Whitey didn't even get the victory.

But he got the ring back.

Palmer Elders Whip Seniors In Softball, 9-6

Another lesson was taught to the seniors at Palmer High School this week as the faculty proved that experience can make up for aging and aching muscles.

In the annual Faculty-Seniors softball game, assistant baseball coach Dick Powell spun a neat seven-hitter to whip the students, 9-6. Jim Colbert led the Faculty attack with a first inning home run over the center field fence at Erps Field.

Jerry Golden, regular first basemen on the Terrors baseball team, started for the seniors but he was relieved on the mound by Chuck Reinking, the Tribe's baseball second sacker.

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Candy Robinson hurled Grambling to a 3-0 victory over Florida A&M Tuesday night to give the Tigers the District 5 NAIA baseball championship.

The victories advanced Grambling to the NAIA championship, which gets under way June 8 at St. Joseph, Mo.

During World War II, O'Donnell led the first squadron of B-17's to the Far East and later led the first B-29 attack on Tokyo.

In 1952, he was assigned to Headquarters, USAF, as Director of Personnel, and played a major role in the establishment and opening of the Air Force Academy. O'Donnell served as Commander of PACAF before his retirement from active duty last year.

All Falcon athletes who made up the Air Force squads during the past year will be honored at the banquet with nine special awards to the most outstanding athletes highlighting the program.

Col. Edmund A. Rafalko, Air Force Director of Athletics, will act as master of ceremonies for the program.

Finley Plans For Monument In Center Field

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Owner Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics says he's going to erect a center field monument to Connie Mack as the next move in his campaign against the New York Yankees.

"If anybody thinks it (the monument) is going to be any place outside the stadium, they are crazy," the outspoken owner declared Tuesday. "It will be about 400 feet from the plate—10 feet inside the fence."

Finley predicted he would get telegrams from Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and American League President Joe Cronin similar to those he received after he built his Pennant Porch. The wires ordered him to remove the porch or forfeit all home games.

"You forfeit them, will be the answer," Finley said. "That monument is going to stay there until you move the ones from Yankee Stadium.

"The Yankees have got three huge monuments out there in center field. As far as I know that may be a cemetery out there. Babe Ruth may be buried there."

Finley's porch was a protest against the unscreened 296-foot foul line in right field in Yankee Stadium. He moved the porch back to the rulebook 325-foot line after the wires from Frick and Cronin.

The owner said if baseball doesn't force the Yanks to put up foul line screens in the next two or three years, "I'll get out of baseball."

He spoke at a meeting of the Sertoma Club. The A's have lost 10 of their last 11 games. One questioner asked how far fans should go in supporting a losing club. Finley said "You can't ballyhoo a funeral, that I know."

President Can Enact Sports Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only President Johnson's signature is needed to enact a bill cracking down on interstate schemes aimed at influencing the outcome of college or professional sports events by bribery.

The Senate approved the bill by voice vote Tuesday, accepting changes made by the House and sent the measure to the White House.

The legislation would make it a federal crime to use interstate facilities, such as the telephone or the mails, to participate in a scheme to "fix" the outcome of a game, or affect the point spread in a contest.

Endorsed by the administration, the measure is aimed primarily at gambling syndicates trafficking in large-scale betting operations on sports, and is the outgrowth of college basketball fix scandals of recent years.

It applies to anyone caught in a bribery conspiracy — including players, coaches or referees — as well as suspected gamblers. Stiff penalties of up to $5,000 and 10 years in prison are provided.

General Eisenhower Steals Show From Palmer in Charity Match

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The crowd at Merion Golf Club was apprehensive. Comments included "Gee, I hope he plays well" to "I hope he doesn't embarrass himself."

The "he" was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the former president not only didn't embarrass himself, but stole the show from his partner, Masters champion Arnold Palmer.

Eisenhower and Palmer teamed in a match Tuesday for the benefit of the Heart Fund against veteran pro Jimmy Demaret and dancer Ray Bolger. The Heart Fund reported it took in $25,000.

On the course made famous by Bobby Jones, when he completed his golf grand slam here in 1930 (winning the British and American Open and amateur tournaments), General Ike played the kind of golf that prompted Palmer to comment:

"I must admit, he carried me all the way. His golf was superb."

This was Ike's first public golf exhibition, and he did himself proud as he and Palmer defeated Demaret and Bolger 3 and 2 over the par 36-34 course in suburban Philadelphia.

Actually, the match was over from a competitive standpoint at the end of the 16th, but at Ike's insistence, the foursome finished the round. When the 16th hole was halved, referee Clarence Benedict, president of the U.S. Golf Association, said to Ike:

"The match is over General. You've won. Do you want to stop or play the last two holes."

Ike consulted with an aide, asking the time, and was advised to call it a day.

"Aw, let's go play," said the suntanned 73-year-old Ike, introduced here as "the dirt farmer from Gettysburg, Pa."

Bunker appeared to be headed back to the minors for seasoning when the Orioles decided to keep him. Under the first-year rule, he would have to count against the 25-man limit whether he was in the minors or the majors, so he stayed with Baltimore.

When injuries struck, Manager Hank Bauer was forced to send Bunker to the firing line. The teen-age tosser has responded by becoming the Orioles' No. 1 winner, allowing only 22 hits and eight earned runs in 41 innings for an eye-opening 1.76 ERA.

While Bunker was winning his fifth straight, Ken McBride of the Los Angeles Angels continued to add to his total on the debit side of the ledger. McBride allowed only three hits in eight innings but lost to Minnesota 2-1 for his eighth defeat since an opening game triumph.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston edged Washington 3-2 on Ed Bressoud's run-producing single in the ninth and the New York Yankees defeated Cleveland 3-2 on Bobby Richardson's ninth inning single. The Chicago White Sox were rained out at Kansas City.

The Orioles broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh on singles by Jerry Adair, Dick Brown and Bob Johnson, who pinch hit for Bunker. Stu Miller protected the edge, pitching no-hit ball over the final three innings in his 18th relief appearance.

The Tigers had tied it in the fifth against Bunker on a walk, Bill Freehan's single and a sacrifice fly by Don Wert.

McBride, protecting a 1-0 lead lost it in the fourth when he hit Rich Rollins with a pitch and an error and a walk filled the bases. Don Mincher's sacrifice fly got the run home. The Twins moved ahead to stay in the seventh when Mincher singled and eventually scored on an infield hit by winning pitcher Jim Kaat.

Kaat, bringing his record to 5-2, struck out nine and scattered eight hits.

Jim King hit for the cycle for the Senators, smacking a single, double, triple and homer. The homer tied the score 2-2 in the sixth. The Red Sox won it in the ninth when winning pitcher Earl Wilson led off with a walk and moved around on singles by Dalton Jones and Eddie Bressoud.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Red Sox and their eighth in nine games.

Richardson, who earlier had belted a pair of two-out triples but was stranded, drove across the tie-breaker for the Yankees following singles by Elston Howard and Phil Linz. The victory went to Pete Mikkelsen, working in relief of Whitey Ford. Roger Maris homered for the Yankees as they scored two runs in the fourth inning.

Whitey's Wedding Ring New Pitching Gimmick

NEW YORK (AP)—Dear Joan Ford:

That must be some wedding ring Whitey wears. Everybody wanted to take a look at it Tuesday night — right in the middle of the game.

It was like this Joan:

Jim Grant, the Cleveland pitcher, told Umpire John Rice that the ball he got after your husband pitched the eighth inning was scuffed.

At the start of the ninth with the score tied 2-2, Rice walked out to the mound to talk to Whitey about it.

That's when the wedding ring began to get as much attention as the beads the Indians—the first ones — got for Manhattan Island.

Whitey said, sure, he had a wedding ring on, covered with tape. No, Joan, he wasn't hiding it. As a matter of fact, George Strickland, the Indians' manager said it probably was his best weapon, because he was rubbing the ball with the abrasive tape.

Then Yogi Berra, Whitey's boss, started getting into the act, and everyone was discussing the ring. That's when Whitey took charge.

He said, "Look, if it will end all the trouble I'll take if off."

So, Joan, he took it off.

You know how it is, Joan, first they accuse him of throwing spitballs, now they've got a new act.

Anyway, Joan, Whitey wasn't too good without the ring, or the tape.

Whitey got the first out, but then John Romano singled and Jerry Kindall singled and Whitey went to take a shower.

Pete Mikkelsen then came on and got the Indians out and the Yankees won the game 3-2 in the bottom of the ninth when singles by Elston Howard, Phil Linz and Bobby Richardson brought in the winning run.

Joan, Whitey didn't even get the victory.

But he got the ring back.

Palmer Elders Whip Seniors In Softball, 9-6

Another lesson was taught to the seniors at Palmer High School this week as the faculty proved that experience can make up for aging and aching muscles.

In the annual Faculty-Seniors softball game, assistant baseball coach Dick Powell spun a neat seven-hitter to whip the students, 9-6. Jim Colbert led the Faculty attack with a first inning home run over the center field fence at Erps Field.

Jerry Golden, regular first basemen on the Terrors baseball team, started for the seniors but he was relieved on the mound by Chuck Reinking, the Tribe's baseball second sacker.

Bears Take Eastern Division Lead in PCL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denver jumped two notches to take the lead in the Pacific Coast Leagues Eastern Division Tuesday night, beating Dallas 3-1 while Arkansas lost to Spokane 7-6 and Oklahoma City bowed to Salt Lake City 4-3 in a protested game.

Denver scored two runs in the second inning after Dallas had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. The Rangers were thwarted by two clutch double plays by Denver. A single and a double by Jim Coker scored two of Denver's three runs. Coker doubled again in the sixth for a perfect night.

Arkansas held on for 12 innings at Spokane but was beaten by a blooper to left field by Bart Shirley. Spokane had held the lead most of the game until Arkansas tied it in the ninth with a two-run homer by Wayne Graham.

Salt Lake City led until the sixth at Oklahoma City, when the 89ers went ahead on a two-run homer by Jim Beauchamp. Don Eaddy doubled for Salt Lake in the top of the ninth to power home the winning run.

Oklahoma City Manager Grady Hatton protested the game in the fourth after plate umpire Roy Bolz ruled a grounder fair after the ball had been called foul by third base umpire George Checotah. PCL rules say the base umpire will make such decisions.

Elsewhere, Sam McDowell stretched his pitching record to 8-0 as Portland defeated Hawaii 5-1. Tacoma shaded Indianapolis 7-6 in 10 innings, and Seattle slipped by San Diego 3-2.

McDowell let one Hawaii run across in the first and held the Islanders to three hits throughout the game.

Gil Garrido slammed a single with two out in the 10th to score Dick Dietz from second base and give Tacoma the victory over Indianapolis. Seattle scored two runs in the first and held on for its win over San Diego.

Sectional Qualifying Completed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sometimes indoor golfer from New York City shared local qualifying honors with three New Jersey pros and a former collegiate star Tuesday as 43 hopefuls from New York-New Jersey completed the 428-man sectional field in U.S. Open Tournament elimination play.

There were no major casualties in the 36-hole competition at three sites in the Metropolitan area, but relatively unknown golfers accounted for several surprises.

Jimmy Walker, an unemployed pro who filed his entry from an indoor golf clinic in Harlem, led a 19-man advance in Westchester. He fired a 75-68—143 to head such as Dick Crawford, Buck Worsham and Claude Harmon.

Harmon, one-time Masters champion, barely survived the cut-off, carding a 74-76—150.

Robert Shields, a transplanted Iowan, paced New Jersey qualifiers with a 72-67—139, best score of the three eliminations. Jon Gustin, 141, and Roger Ginsberg, 143, ran 2-3 in the New Jersey competition.

Tom Nieporte, ex-Ohio State standout and winner of the recent Long Island Open, shot a 75-71—146, low score among Long Island players. Pete Bostwick Jr., an amateur, and Dick Stranahan qualified but Mike Krak and Tom Strafaci didn't make the cut.

Sectional play is scheduled for June 8-9 at 13 locations. The sectional survivors will join 21 name players who are automatically eligible in the 150-man Open field at Washington, D.C., June 18-20.

Perez Continues In Batting Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tony Perez of San Diego continued to lead in many batting categories in the Pacific Coast League.

Figures released today by PCL statistician William Wiess showed the Padre slugger leading in total bases with 114 and he was tied with Wayne Graham of Arkansas in hits with 52. Perez topped the circuit with 15 home runs, and 48 runs batted in.

Tony Curry of Portland had the best batting mark, a .377 and Carlos Bernier of Hawaii scored the most runs, 42. Dave Roberts of Oklahoma City led in doubles with 16, three were tied for the triple lead.

Tacoma's Jose Cardenal was the top base stealer with 17.

Edward (Ted) Kakas, 6-foot-4 senior from Southboro, Mass., captains the Syracuse University crew.

Pros Start Festival Open Tourney Over Wet Indianapolis Golf Course

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Under suddenly fickle Hoosier skies, 149 pros and 10 amateurs launched the $70,000 "500" Festival Open Golf Tourney today over a wet 6,467-yard layout that was mastered by most of the veterans in tune-ups Tuesday.

* * *

Although an afternoon deluge abruptly ended Tuesday's celebrity pro-am event, 23 of 27 pros to finish matched or busted the 35-36—71 par. Sam Carmichael, a neighbor to the course who plays out of nearby Martinsville, Ind., drilled a 65—including an eagle 3 on the final hole. He still was four strokes shy of the 18-hole record set last year on the short, flat course.

Back for the fifth annual meet are defending champion Dow Finsterwald, who had a 16-under-par 268 last year; two-time winner Doug Ford, and 1962 champ Billy Casper. This year's tourney is worth $12,000 to the winner.

* * *

In the field today were Jack Nicklaus, the leading money winner on this season's PGA tour, and Mike Souchak, fresh from a victory in last weekend's Memphis Open. They didn't participate in the warm-up round.

Before the rain, the course was swift for the pros. Charley Sifford, George Bayer and Dave Ragan collected 68s while Jim Ferree, Bruce Crampton and Billy Maxwell had 67s.

The storm came up quickly. Gary Player had just popped a tee shot down the fairway on the fifth hole and still had his club in the air when Casper came rushing down a nearby road.

"Better quit waving that lightning rod," Casper called to Player, "don't you see those flashes?"

Player glanced at the dark sky and quipped, "I'm not worried—I never touch those steel ones, this is pure fiber glass."

Lightning cracked twice and a 20-minute cloudburst sent golfers and about 10,000 spectators running for cover. Whipped by high winds, the downpour turned the baked greens into marshes and prompted the first cancellation in the brief celebrity pro-am history.

If the weather holds, the tourney will continue through Friday, with Memorial Day off for the 48th 500-mile race, before the finale on Sunday. The field will be chopped to the low 90 and ties after the second round and to the low 60 and ties for the last round.

The young tourney, fifth richest on the sponsored PGA tour, has attracted all but four of the top 25 money winners. Masters champion Arnold Palmer, Mason Rudolph, Julius Boros and Dave Marr are absent.

"CHI CHI" CAPERS — Puerto Rican golf pro Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez applied a variety of body english to his drive off the first tee in the Pro-Am Tournament at the Speedway Golf course, Tuesday. He fired a par 71 in the one-day tournament which was a warm-up for the $70,000 "500" Festival Open. (AP Wirephoto)

Farrell Leads NL in Pitching

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dick Farrell, the Houston Colts' fireballing right-hander worried by arm trouble less than two months ago, is all smiles as the National League's first seven-game winner.

"The arm is fine and I don't have a worry," the 30-year-old Farrell said Tuesday night after defeating the Milwaukee Braves 4-2 with a four-hit, 11-strikeout performance.

Farrell, a converted relief specialist, developed elbow and shoulder trouble in spring training and was shipped back to Houston for treatment just before the start of the regular season.

"My motion was all fouled up and I hurt the arm," he explained. "I kept throwing, but couldn't pitch the soreness out. The treatments by an orthopedic specialist did the trick and then I began working out with Paul Richards, our general manager. He straightened me out and I only missed one or two turns after the season started."

Farrell became a starting pitcher after he was obtained by the Colts from the Los Angeles Dodgers in the player draft pool in 1961. With a light-hitting club at Houston, he had a 10-20 record with an earned run average of 3.01 in 1962 and a 14-13 mark with a 3.03 ERA last year.

"Despite the early arm trouble this year, I think I'm throwing harder than ever, even when I was a relief pitcher," Farrell said. "My fast ball just takes off now."

Asked if he preferred to start or be a regular reliever, he said:

"My choice is starting. I've always said that relievers have the toughest job in baseball. As a starter, you know what you're going to do. A reliever has to be ready every day."

Farrell's only concern was with a slight left ankle injury, which he suffered while swinging, and missing, a pitch in the ninth inning.

"It's in the small foot," he explained. "I had polio when I was a little kid and the left leg is more than two times as small as the right. Look, I wear a size 11½ spike on the right foot and only 9 on the left. This doesn't appear to be serious, but it bothered me a little pitching in the ninth."

Cards Owners Meet to Discuss Team's Future

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Charles and Bill Bidwill, majority owners of the St. Louis Football Cardinals, planned to meet today with officials of the Civic Center Redevelopment Corporation to discuss the team's future here.

No final decision was expected to be made in the meeting.

Charles said Tuesday, "we are going into this meeting with a completely open mind. In fact, we are just going to continue our talks and not come to any decision."

The Cardinals met last week with Atlanta, Ga., officials to discuss the team's relocation there. T major stumbling block to the Cardinals remaining in St. Louis has been a 30 year lease requested by the stadium officials.

The Bidwills said they had received a "tremendous offer" from Atlanta.

The meeting today was to be held in an undisclosed location.

Tuesday, the Bidwills met with minority stockholder, Joseph Griesedieck in team offices. Griesedieck said he was opposed to having the team moved at any time.

Northern Dancer Has Third Birthday Party

NEW YORK (AP)—Northern Dancer celebrated his third birthday today with a brilliant past behind him and an even brighter future in the offing.

There was a birthday cake that looked very much like carrots for the little package of equine dynamite from Canada at barn 31 in Belmont Park's stable area. And trainer Horatio Luro gave the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner the day off from preparing for the June 6 running of the Belmont Stakes, when he will seek to become the first Triple Crown winner since Citation in 1948 and the ninth in history.

All horses automatically advance a year in age on January 1. But the Canadian-born and owned son of Nearctic-Natalma wasn't foaled until May 27, 1961—late by United States customs.

"Up north where the winters are longer and colder we like late foals," explained Luro.

The dazzling Dancer hasn't done much since winning the Preakness 10 days ago. Luro had him out on the track Tuesday with exercise boy Ramon Cerda in the saddle. The colt breezed a mile in 1:41 and went out the 1⅛ miles in 1:51 3-5.

"This is a relaxation period," said Luro as he watched the Dancer quietly munch the green grass outside his stall. "Next week, however, things will be a little different."

Never did a horse look more relaxed than Northern Dancer.

Luro said he didn't plan to work his ace over the Aqueduct track, where the Belmont Stakes will be raced at 1½ miles.

"He showed me last year he likes the Aqueduct track," said the genial Argentine. "So we'll stay here at Belmont until time for the race."

Northern Dancer scored two of his seven 1963 victories over the Aqueduct course, one of them by two lengths in the Remsen and the other by eight lengths.

Northern Dancer is following the same procedure he did before becoming the youngest horse ever to win the Derby and Preakness. Long gallops, plenty of oats and hay and time to relax between workouts has been the order of the day.

His menu is the same each day—three quarts of oats early in the morning, three more at noon and six at night except on race day when the ration is cut to one quart and plenty of hay. Carrots and a little sweetening in his food are the delicacies.

Northern Dancer goes into the Belmont Stakes with a record of 13 victories, one in a betless race, two seconds and one third in 16 career starts and earnings of $519,072. He has won seven straight since finishing third in his 3-year-old debut.

Baltimore Rookie Tops Bull Pen

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bonus pitcher Wally Bunker, less than a year out of high school, appears to be more teacher than student in the American League.

The 19-year-old rookie sensation has recorded five consecutive victories since he was given a starting assignment three weeks ago because of injuries to veterans Steve Barber and Milt Pappas.

Bunker stopped the Detroit Tigers on three hits through seven innings Tuesday night, winning 2-1 with two innings of relief help from bullpen ace Stu Miller. Bob Johnson batted for Bunker in the seventh and singled off Mickey Lolich to drive in the winning run.

After retiring the first 13 batters, Bunker allowed a run in the fifth on his only walk, a single by Bill Freehan and a sacrifice fly by Don Wert. A single by Gates Brown and a double by Jerry Lumpe—originally scored as an error—were the only other hits.

"Everyone thinks they're going to catch him sooner or later," Oriole Manager Hank Bauer said of his young right-hander. "But they haven't caught him yet. In fact, he was better against Detroit this time than he was before."

Bunker, who allowed the Tigers nine hits in winning 7-1 May 10, changed his pitching pattern Tuesday on the advice of Bauer.

"I threw mostly sinkers and curves — only about 12 fast balls," Bunker said. "Hank said to mix 'em up. The last time against the Tigers, I didn't throw any curves."

Bunker, who hurled a one-hitter against Washington in his first game this year, rated Tuesday's performance his best in the major leagues.

"I had more control, and was getting my curve over the plate," he said. "This was by far the better game."

Bunker has allowed 23 hits and eight earned runs in 41 innings for a 1.76 earned run average. He has completed three games and went seven innings twice.

Bunker was signed by the Orioles last June 15. He compiled a 10-1 record with Stockton in the Class A California League and lost the last game of the season with the Orioles.

Patterson Will Fight Ed Machen

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson will fight Eddie Machen in his "usual style" at Stockholm, Sweden July 5. And if Floyd's "usual style" backfires, as it did twice against Sonny Liston, the former heavyweight champion says he'll quit the ring.

Patterson, who left by plane for Europe Tuesday, said at the airport he hasn't considered losing to Machen. But, he added, should he be knocked out or take a bad beating, he definitely will retire.

The ex-champ said he looks forward to fighting in Sweden, where "Win or lose, I go to the press conference the next day. I have no beard, no moustache, no nothing."

Patterson said he weighs 195 pounds and feels "exceptionally good since I heard that Cassius Clay will fight me if I win."

He plans a series of boxing exhibitions in Israel after the Machen bout.

Bears Take Eastern Division Lead in PCL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denver jumped two notches to take the lead in the Pacific Coast Leagues Eastern Division Tuesday night, beating Dallas 3-1 while Arkansas lost to Spokane 7-6 and Oklahoma City bowed to Salt Lake City 4-3 in a protested game.

Denver scored two runs in the second inning after Dallas had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. The Rangers were thwarted by two clutch double plays by Denver. A single and a double by Jim Coker scored two of Denver's three runs. Coker doubled again in the sixth for a perfect night.

Arkansas held on for 12 innings at Spokane but was beaten by a blooper to left field by Bart Shirley. Spokane had held the lead most of the game until Arkansas tied it in the ninth with a two-run homer by Wayne Graham.

Salt Lake City led until the sixth at Oklahoma City when the 89ers went ahead on a two-run homer by Jim Beauchamp. Don Eaddy doubled for Salt Lake in the top of the ninth to power home the winning run.

Oklahoma City Manager Grady Hatton protested the game in the fourth after plate umpire Roy Bell ruled a ground ball fair after the ball had been called foul by third base umpire George Chechitah. PCL rules say the base umpire will make such decisions.

Elsewhere Sam McDowell stretched his pitching record to 8-0 as Portland defeated Hawaii 5-1. Tacoma shaded Indianapolis 7-6 in 10 innings, and Seattle stopped San Diego 3-2.

McDowell let one Hawaii run across in the first and held the Islanders to three hits throughout the game.

Gil Garrido slammed a single with two out in the 10th to score Dick Dietz from second base and give Tacoma the victory over Indianapolis. Seattle scored two runs in the first and held on for its win over San Diego.

Sectional Qualifying Completed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sometimes indoor golfer from New York is sharing local qualifying honors with three New Jersey pros and a former collegiate star Tuesday as 43 hopefuls from New York, New Jersey completed the 428-man sectional for the U.S. Open Tournament elimination play.

There were no major casualties in the field of competition at three sites in the Metropolitan area, but relatively unknown golfers are listed for several surprises.

Jimmy Walker, an unemployed pro who filled his entry from an indoor golf clinic in Harlem, led a 19-man advance in Westchester. He fired a 75-68—143 to head such as Dick Crawford, Buck Worsham and Claude Harmon.

Harmon, one-time Masters champion, barely survived the cutoff carding a 74-76—150.

Robert Sturdis, a transplanted Iowan, paced New Jersey qualifiers with a 72-67—139, best score of the three eliminations. Jon Gustin, 141, and Roger Ginsberg, 143, ran 2-3 in the New Jersey competition.

Tom Nieporte, ex-Ohio State standout and winner of the recent Long Island Open, shot a 75-71—146, low score among Long Island players. Pete Bostwick Jr., an amateur, and Dick Stranahan qualified but Mike Krak and Tom Strafaci didn't make the cut.

Sectional play is scheduled for June 8-9 at 13 locations. The sectional survivors will join 21 name players who are automatically eligible in the 150-man Open field at Washington, D.C. June 18-20.

Perez Continues In Battling Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tony Perez of San Diego continued to lead in many batting categories in the Pacific Coast League.

Figures released today by PCL statistician William Wiess showed the Padre slugger leading in total bases with 114 and he was tied with Wayne Graham of Arkansas in hits with 52. Perez topped the circuit with 15 home runs, and 48 runs batted in.

Tony Curry of Portland had the best batting mark, a .377 and Carlos Bernier of Hawaii scored the most runs, 42. Dave Roberts of Oklahoma City led in doubles with 16, three were tied for the triple lead.

Tacoma's Jose Cardenal was the top base stealer with 17.

Edward (Ted) Kakas, 6-foot-4 senior from Southboro, Mass., captains the Syracuse University crew.

Pros Start Festival Open Tourney Over Wet Indianapolis Golf Course

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Under suddenly fickle Hoosier skies, 149 pros and 139 amateurs launched the $70,000-"500" Festival Open Golf Tourney today over a wet 6,467-yard layout that was mastered by most of the veterans in tune-ups Tuesday.

Although an afternoon deluge abruptly ended Tuesday's celebrity pro-am event, 23 of 27 pros to finish matched or busted the 35-36—71 par. Sam Carmichael, a neighbor to the course who plays out of nearby Martinsville, Ind., drilled a 65—including an eagle 3 on the final hole. He still was four strokes shy of the 18-hole record set last year on the short, flat course.

Back for the fifth annual meet are defending champion Dow Finsterwald, who had a 16-under-par 268 last year; two-time winner Doug Ford, and 1962 champ Billy Casper. This year's tourney is worth $12,000 to the winner.

In the field today were Jack Nicklaus, the leading money winner on this season's PGA tour, and Mike Souchak, fresh from a victory in last weekend's Memphis Open. They didn't participate in the warm-up round.

Before the rain, the course was swift for the pros. Charley Sifford, George Bayer and Dave Ragan collected 66s while Jim Ferree, Bruce Crampton and Billy Maxwell had 67s.

The storm came up quickly. Gary Player had just popped a tee shot down the fairway on the fifth hole and still had his club in the air when Casper came rushing down a nearby road.

"Better quit waving that lightning rod," Casper called to Player, "don't you see those flashes?"

Player glanced at the dark sky and quipped, "I'm not worried—I never touch those steel ones, this is pure fiber glass."

Lightning cracked twice and a 20-minute cloudburst sent golfers and about 10,000 spectators running for cover. Whipped by high winds, the downpour turned the baked greens into marshes and prompted the first cancellation in the brief celebrity pro-am history.

If the weather holds, the tourney will continue through Friday, with Memorial Day off for the 48th 500-mile race, before the finale on Sunday. The field will be chopped to the low 90 and ties after the second round and to the low 60 and ties for the last round.

The young tourney, fifth richest on the sponsored PGA tour, has attracted all but four of the top 25 money winners. Masters champion Arnold Palmer, Mason Rudolph, Julius Boros and Dave Marr are absent.

"CHI CHI" CAPERS — Puerto Rican golf pro Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez applied a variety of body english to his drive off the first tee in the Pro-Am Tournament at the Speedway Golf course, Tuesday. Farrell Leads NL in Pitching

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dick Farrell, the Houston Colts' fireballing right-hander worried by arm trouble less than two months ago, is all smiles as the National League's first seven-game winner.

"The arm is fine and I don't have a worry," the 30-year-old Farrell said Tuesday night after defeating the Milwaukee Braves 4-2 with a four-hit, 11-strikeout performance.

Farrell, a converted relief specialist, developed elbow and shoulder trouble in spring training and was shipped back to Houston for treatment just before the start of the regular season.

"My motion was all fouled up and I hurt the arm," he explained. "I kept throwing, but couldn't pitch the soreness out. The treatments by an orthopedic specialist did the trick and then I began working out with Paul Richards, our general manager. He straightened me out and I only missed one or two turns after the season started."

Farrell became a starting pitcher after he was obtained by the Colts from the Los Angeles Dodgers in the player draft pool in 1961. With a light-hitting club at Houston, he had a 10-20 record with an earned run average of 3.01 in 1962 and a 14-13 mark with a 3.03 ERA last year.

"Despite the early arm trouble this year, I think I'm throwing harder than ever, even when I was a relief pitcher," Farrell said. "My fast ball just takes off now."

Asked if he preferred to start or be a regular reliever, he said:

"My choice is starting. I've always said that relievers have the toughest job in baseball. As a starter, you know what you're going to do. A reliever has to be ready every day."

Farrell's only concern was with a slight left ankle injury, which he suffered while swinging, and missing, a pitch in the ninth inning.

"It's in the small foot," he explained. "I had polio when I was a little kid and the left leg is more than two times as small as the right. Look, I wear a size 11½ spike on the right foot and only 9 on the left. This doesn't appear to be serious, but it bothered me a little pitching in the ninth."

Cards Owners Meet to Discuss Team's Future

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Charles and Bill Bidwill, majority owners of the St. Louis Football Cardinals, planned to meet today with officials of the Civic Center Redevelopment Corporation to discuss the team's future here.

No final decision was expected to be made in the meeting.

Charles said Tuesday, "we are going into this meeting with a completely open mind. In fact, we are just going to continue our talks and not come to any decision."

The Cardinals met last week with Atlanta, Ga., officials to discuss the team's relocation there. T major stumbling block to the Cardinals remaining in St. Louis has been a 30 year lease requested by the stadium officials.

The Bidwills said they had received a "tremendous offer" from Atlanta.

The meeting today was to be held in an undisclosed location.

Tuesday, the Bidwills met with minority stockholder, Joseph Griesedieck in team offices. Griesedieck said he was opposed to having the team moved at any time.

Northern Dancer Has Third Birthday Party

NEW YORK (AP)—Northern Dancer celebrated his third birthday today with a brilliant past behind him and an even brighter future in the offing.

There was a birthday cake that looked very much like carrots for the little package of equine dynamite from Canada at farm 51 in Belmont Park's stable area. And trainer Horatio Luro gave the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner the day off from preparing for the June 6 running of the Belmont Stakes, when he will seek to become the first Triple Crown winner since Citation won in 1948 and the ninth in history.

All horses automatically advance a year in age on January 1. But the Canadian-born and owned son of Nearctic-Natalma wasn't foaled until May 27, 1961—late by United States customs.

"Up north where the winters are longer and colder we like late foals," explained Luro.

The dazzling Dancer hasn't done much since winning the Preakness 10 days ago. Luro had him out on the track Tuesday with exercise boy Ramon Cerda in the saddle. The colt breezed a mile in 1:41 and went out the 1¼ miles in 1:51 3-5.

"This is a relaxation period," said Luro as he watched the Dancer quietly munch the green grass outside his stall. "Next week, however, things will be a little different."

Never did a horse look more relaxed than Northern Dancer.

Luro said he didn't plan to work his ace over the Aqueduct track, where the Belmont Stakes will be raced at 1½ miles.

"He showed me last year he likes the Aqueduct track," said the genial Argentine. "So we'll stay here at Belmont until time for the race."

Northern Dancer scored two of his seven 1963 victories over the Aqueduct course, one of them by two lengths in the Remsen and the other by eight lengths.

Northern Dancer is following the same procedure he did before becoming the youngest horse ever to win the Derby and Preakness. Long gallops, plenty of oats and hay and time to relax between workouts has been the order of the day.

His menu is the same each day—three quarts of oats early in the morning, three more at noon and six at night except on race day when the ration is cut to one quart and plenty of hay. Carrots and a little sweetening in his food are the delicacies.

Northern Dancer goes into the Belmont Stakes with a record of 13 victories, one in a betless race, two seconds and one third in 16 career starts and earnings of $519,072. He has won seven straight since finishing third in his 3-year-old debut.

Baltimore Rookie Tops Bull Pen

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE AP — Bonus pitcher Wally Bunker, less than a year out of high school, appears to be more teacher than student in the American League.

The 19-year-old rookie sensation has recorded five consecutive victories since he was given a starting assignment three weeks ago because of injuries to veterans Steve Barber and Milt Pappas.

Bunker stopped the Detroit Tigers on three hits through seven innings Tuesday night, winning 2-1 with two innings of relief help from bullpen ace Stu Miller. Bob Johnson batted for Bunker in the seventh and singled off Mickey Lolich to drive in the winning run.

After retiring the first 13 batters, Bunker allowed a run in the fifth on his only walk, a single by Bill Freehan and a sacrifice fly by Don Wert. A single by Gates Brown and a double by Jerry Lumpe—originally scored as an error—were the only other hits.

"Everyone thinks they're going to catch him sooner or later," Oriole Manager Hank Bauer said of his young right-hander. "But they haven't caught him yet. In fact, he was better against Detroit this time than he was before."

Bunker, who allowed the Tigers nine hits in winning 7-1 May 10, changed his pitching pattern Tuesday on the advice of Bauer.

"I threw mostly sinkers and curves — only about 12 fast balls," Bunker said. "Hank said to mix 'em up. The last time against the Tigers, I didn't throw any curves."

Bunker, who hurled a one-hitter against Washington in his first game this year, rated Tuesday's performance his best in the major leagues.

"I had more control, and was getting my curve over the plate," he said. "This was by far the better game."

Bunker has allowed 23 hits and eight earned runs in 41 innings for a 1.76 earned run average. He has completed three games and went seven innings twice.

Bunker was signed by the Orioles last June 15. He compiled a 10-1 record with Stockton in the Class A California League and lost the last game of the season with the Orioles.

Patterson Will Fight Ed Machen

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson will fight Eddie Machen in his "usual style" at Stockholm, Sweden July 5. And if Floyd's "usual style" backfires, as it did twice against Sonny Liston, the former heavyweight champion says he'll quit the ring.

Patterson, who left by plane for Europe Tuesday, said at the airport he hasn't considered losing to Machen. But, he added, should he be knocked out or take a bad beating, he definitely will retire.

The ex-champ said he looks forward to fighting in Sweden, where "Win or lose, I go to the press conference the next day. I have no beard, no moustache, no nothing."

Patterson said he weighs 195 pounds and feels "exceptionally good since I heard that Cassius Clay will fight me if I win."

He plans a series of boxing exhibitions in Israel after the Machen bout.

East Squad Acquires Five More Players

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The East squad has acquired five Southern college football players for the fourth annual All-America football game here June 27.

Halfback Ode Burrell of Mississippi State, ends Bob Lacey of North Carolina and Billy Truax of Louisiana State and guards Bob Soleau of William and Mary and Chuck Walker of Duke were named Tuesday.

Rodriguez, Griffith Bout Set June 12

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Luis Rodriguez, trying to regain the world welterweight crown from Emile Griffith, was to arrive from Miami Beach tonight to begin training for the June 12 match.

His opponent has a two-day headstart, but admitted on arrival Monday that he needed some rough workouts: Griffith weighs 153 pounds, six more than the welterweight limit.

Griffith, who went through a workout Tuesday, planned to have a pre-fight physical examination today, then begin sparring.

The pair have fought three times, all close matches. Gil Clancy, Griffith's trainer and co-manager, has su

Aid to Viet Nam Will Continue, U.S. Experts Say

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is unlikely to admit it, but it seems apparent the plan to wind up the major part of the U.S. military effort in South Viet Nam by the end of 1965 has quietly withered away.

When officials are reminded of that plan, announced last October, they reply: "But there have been two coups in Saigon since then."

What they mean is that the effort against the Communist insurgents has been set back by confusion and disorganization stemming from two changes in the South Vietnamese government. These were the overthrow of the Diem regime by a military junta in November and the overthrow of the junta by another military group in January.

The belief is that the 15,500 U.S. military men in South Viet Nam will not be reduced appreciably, if at all, this year, and perhaps not to any great extent next year.

New plans to double the number of Vietnamese pilots and to boost the Vietnamese ground forces by some 50,000 men will entail increased U.S. training responsibilities that will carry over at least into 1965.

Some U.S. advisers will return home as their tasks are finished—as the Vietnamese get the hang of doing certain things for themselves.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says repeatedly it will be a long, hard struggle before the Communists are overcome in Viet Nam.

The latest indication that the end-of-1965 target date has been shelved came Tuesday after McNamara testified in secret before the Senate Armed Servics Committee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., the committee chairman, said McNamara "was not as optimistic on his timetable as he had been before."

Actually, McNamara for some time has avoided any direct answer to reporters' questions about whether the 1965 objective still holds.

Some officials contend there never was a flat commitment to pull out the bulk of U.S. military men by the end of next year.

They say it was an objective predicated on the ability of the South Vietnamese to stand on their own feet and to control most of their country, and on political stability in Viet Nam.

These officials also note that the statement setting the 1965 target date specified that some U.S. trainers probably would have to stay on beyond that time.

That statement was issued by the White House on Oct. 2 after McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reported to President John F. Kennedy on an on-the-spot check.

McNamara and Taylor had gone to Saigon at that time to assess possible damage to the anti-Communist cause growing out of repression of the Buddhists by the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The White House statement said in part:

"Secretary McNamara and Gen. Taylor reported their judgment that the major part of the United States military task can be completed by the end of 1965 although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of United States training personnel."

At the same time, it was announced that 1,000 American military men would be withdrawn by the end of 1963.

This was done, even though a military junta unhorsed Diem in the meantime, and the Communists capitalized on the turmoil.

President Johnson sent McNamara and Taylor back to Saigon just before Christmas. Returning, the defense secretary said he had reviewed Vietnamese and American plans for operations in 1964. "We have every reason to believe they will be successful," McNamara stated.

But he ignored a question about the 1965 target, and there was speculation the October plan had been ditched.

In January, McNamara appeared before a House committee behind closed doors. A censored version of his testimony put him on record as saying the United States still hopes to withdraw most of its troops from Viet Nam by the end of 1965.

Within a couple of days of McNamara's testimony, a second coup was staged in South Viet Nam. Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh seized power and became the Saigon government's strong man.

Community-Wide Check Made on Health of Aged

SEAL BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Any aches and pains that may occur among the 10,000 senior citizens at Rossmoor Leisure World are being coded by the U.S. Public Health Service.

It has been described as the first study of the aged conducted by a government agency on a community-wide basis.

The $90 million community at tion's largest retirement colony. medical history as part of the Seal Beach is reputedly the nation's largest retirement colony. It was created in 1961 by Ross W. Cortese, a California builder, who recently established the Rossmoor-Cortese Institute for the Study of Retirement at the University of Southern California with a grant of $4 million.

A physical examination is not required before purchase in the Seal Beach community, but upon moving in each resident undergoes one to establish his medical history as part of the community's plan of preventive medicine.

The government agency maintains one doctor and three coding clerks at the community's $710,000 medical center to code and transfer information from the residents' medical file. Every subsequent treatment is confidentially coded and sent to Dr. S. Paul Ehrlich's top floor laboratory in the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital at San Francisco.

At the hospital, the cards are punched and sent to the computer service maintained at the University of California, Berkeley, where Dr. Ruel Stallones is embarked on a study of cardiovascular diseases.

Dr. Ehrlich, who is Chief of the Field and Training Station, Heart Disease Control Program, said:

"We have two objects. The first is to define the factors influencing medical care utilization in the senior adult. This concerns disease factors in the age group; and personal factors, such as age, sex and former occupation, as they tend to influence the needs and form of medical care best to be used in this age group.

"The second is to define the factors which may predispose the patient in the development of new cardiovascular disease. This concerns cerebralvascular disease, or strokes; and coronary heart disease.

"However, our program at Leisure World has the advantage of fathering medical information which is not confined to cardiovascular diseases. Our information will assist as a baseline for study of other chronic diseases."

The U.S. Public Health Service conducts a number of research programs throughout the country. The agency maintains a similar program at Framingham, Mass., under the direction of Dr. T. R. Dawber for the research of diabetes and cardiovascular diseases in a younger age group.

Historic Sabine Pass Still Sparks Heroism

By JOSEPH H. CARTER
United Press International

SABINE PASS, Tex. (UPI)—A salty band of Coast Guardsmen stands vigil on the sea-dashed point where a Texas lieutenant and 47 fighting men repelled 1,200 Yankee invaders a century ago.

Lt. Commander R. C. Hertica leads five officers and 41 coast guardsmen who control the busy ports and patrol the Gulf of Mexico.

Lt. Richard W. (Dick) Dowling Jr. was last century's commander who beat off the invasion by sea. With six cannons firing from behind the mud walls of Ft. Griffin, the Texans whipped six Northern ships during the Civil War.

"There is no parallel in ancient or modern warfare to the victory of Dowling and his men at Sabine Pass," Confederate President Jefferson Davis said at the time, "considering the great odds with which they had to contend."

The Texans, with Dowling manning one gun, sank one ship and captured a pair of gunboats with "13 guns of the heaviest caliber." They took 350 prisoners and wounded or killed 50 invaders.

The battle was fought Sept. 8, 1863. The Union forces had planned to invade the busy port area and strike across Texas. Company F, Texas heavy artillery, Jefferson Davis Guards, was to stop them. That meant Dowling and his 47 men.

Heavy artillery meant two 24-pound smoothbores, two 35-pound howitzers. They had a range of 1½ miles, which adequately covered the mouth of Sabine Pass.

"Our motto was victory or death," Dowling said later. "All my men behaved like heroes. Not a man flinched."

Townspeople brought food and supplies to the battlefield. If Sabine Pass fell, they knew the bay ports of Orange and Port Arthur would tumble quickly. Rails leading to the heart of Texas would be controlled by the Yankees. The Union also would have had a springboard from the west into Louisiana.

It was a critical battle, a century ago.

Still, today, heroism is common at Sabine Pass. Distressed vessels many times have welcomed the 82-foot cruiser the Coast Guard operates from here.

Ens. Charles Newcomb of Tucson, Ariz., said about 300 incidents a year are handled from the Sabine Pass station.

Newcomb, a tall blond officer, could be the modern day personification of Lt. Dowling. His work is less spectacular.

But when a ship at sea is distressed, those aboard believe the Coast Guardsmen are as important as Texans believed Dowling to be a century ago.

III. The Nostalgic Myth of the Prewar Years

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Association, By PHILIP VAN DOREN STERN Illustrated By John Lane

People like to think that life in Europe during the years before the First World War was better than it has ever been since. They talk about gallant officers in colorful uniforms waltzing with beautiful women in satins and laces. They reminisce about the excellent food, the great wines, the soft music, the low cost of living, and the radiance of those long-past days.

What they recall is partly true, of course, but it was true only for a limited number of Europeans. Royalty, the higher military officers, and the very wealthy could enjoy all these things, but the rest of Europe's people were not having such a gay time. The poor were very poor; the middle-classes had few privileges, and the common soldiers were just pawns to be moved around the board and then pushed off the edge. No one but the rich had carriages or new-fangled automobiles. Working hours were long, vacations short, recreation limited. Poor boys got only a rudimentary education; girls were seldom thought worth educating at all.

Things had been like this for centuries and might have gone on for centuries more if something new had not come into the world. This was a desire for freedom, a yearning to improve one's lot, a hope for one's children. But most of Europe's rulers had contempt for the ambitions of ordinary men. They refused to believe that their people might be dissatisfied. Their secret police maintained control by arresting those who protested and sometimes shot or hanged them. In Russia, revolution had been put down by force in 1905. Austria was an absolute monarchy. The troublesome Balkans were ruled with an iron hand. In Turkey, revolution and counter-revolution had swept the country in 1908 and 1909. In Germany, the Kaiser warned Berlin that his guards stood ready to avenge disobedience with bayonets. Even in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Scandinavia, and Italy, where the rulers were more liberal, most of the people were poor and had little to look forward to.

Behind the scenes the men of power jockeyed for more power. Conspiracy was the order of the day; spies were as much a part of the government as postal employes. Waltz music often masked whispered plotting. No one knew whom to trust. Your best friend might be in the pay of the police—and not necessarily your own country's police.

The myth of the happy prewar years began during the war. A hungry man crouched in the mud under shellfire remembers a good meal and a warm bed. A woman reading the casualty list recalls the happiness of her marriage day. A hopeless hospital case knows that anything was better than the suffering he is going through.

The nostalgic myth was preserved by those who had lost much and had little to gain. The bigger the war, the bigger the nostalgia. And the First World War was very big.

Kite Stick Causes Electric Power Failure

Electric service to the eastern part of the city and Peterson Field was disrupted for a half hour Tuesday night by a kite stick.

Utilities Department electric division crews found a broken piece of wood from the frame of a kite lodged into the cutout fuses at the Evergreen substation. They said it apparently had been there for some time.

Tuesday's rain provided sufficient dampness in the wood to cause a short circuit.

Electric Distribution Superintendent Horace Woehler reminded kite flyers that if their kites become tangled in substations or wires they should call the electric service through the Utilities office as soon as possible.

He especially warned kite flyers against flying the toys during rainy weather when moisture on the kite string might be sufficent to carry voltage from wires to the kite flyer, causing injury or possible death.

Man Booked Into Jail On Assault Complaint

Gilbert Schwarz, 37, 45 W. Burgess Rd. was booked into County Jail Tuesday following a signed complaint by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Schwarz, alleging simple assault, the sheriff's office reported.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Stone said the Schwarzs became involved in an argument. Mrs. Schwarz told the officer that her husband then took a belt and started beating her across the back.

Agajanian Gets Auto Hill Climb Sanction

Managing Director J. C. Agajanian announced today that he has received a sanction from the United States Auto Club (the same group that sanctions the Indianapolis "500") to stage the world famous Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb, Saturday morning, July 4, at Colorado Springs.

To insure possible foreign entrants and representatives from other American racing organizations taking part in the 42nd annual "Race to the Clouds," a Federation Internationale d' Automobile (FIA) sanction will be sought, Julian Rawls, president of the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb Association, reported.

Agajanian and two of last year's Hill Climb champions, Bobby Unser and 1963 "500" victor Parnelli Jones, are at Indianapolis preparing for the Memorial Day Classic. Bobby will again be driving an eight-cylinder supercharged Novi on May 30, while Parnelli will be seeking fame and fortune again in his record breaking winning mount of last year, Aggie's conventional front engine Offy roadster.

Unser scored his sixth win last year on the hill as he drove a Chevrolet powered championship car to an all-time record of 12 minutes, 30 and 6-10th seconds or 59.552 MPH, for the 12.42 mile race which starts at the 9,402 foot level of Pikes Peak and finishes on top at 14,110 feet. Bobby lowered his own mark in scoring his sixth victory in seven starts.

Jones dropped the stock car mark to 14 minutes, 17 and 4-10th seconds when he drove a 1963 Mercury up the world's most spectacular race course. The sports car division victor, Ak Miller, does not race at Indianapolis. Miller's winning time last year, 14 minutes 27 and 7-10th seconds or 51.515 MPH, set a big engine class record.

Carson Man Scoutmaster for Three Troops

Spec. 5 Albert C. Milikan of Garrison Headquarters Supply is a leader in his own right. He is scoutmaster of three troops in Pueblo, Cub Scout Den 83 and Boy Scout Troops 83 and 50.

Milikan took over Troop 50 about two years ago; this is a relatively small troop. Larger and more challening are Troops 83 and Den 83.

There is something distinct about Den and Troop 83. They are troops for retarded children. Troop 83 was started recently and contains 30 scouts.

The retarded scouts are separated by mental capabilities, not by age. A special handbook is used by the scouts and teaches them how to use their hands.

Milikan joined the scouting movement in 1941 in Illinois and received the highest rank a scout can obtain, the rank of Eagle.

Recently, he graduated his tenth scout to the rank of Eagle. It was his own son.

Meetings for Troop 50 are held Friday nights and for Den and Troop 83 Saturday mornings. The meetings are held in the Santa Fe freight depot at 3rd and Elizabeth in Pueblo.

Blue Jay, Cardinal Visitors Missing

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Greever of 520 Ninth Street, Canon City, are looking for two birds that have, until recently, perched on the bird bath on the Greever front lawn.

The birds, a Blue Jay and a Cardinal, were always there, in the bird bath, each morning as the Greevers looked out across the lawn.

"I've never seen a pair just like them," Greever said. "Everyone got a kick out of seeing them, and would stop to ask about them. We were disappointed when we found they were gone.

They were discovered missing last Friday morning after the Greevers returned from a trip to Colorado Springs.

Officer Tom Hosman who investigated their disappearance suggested, "Maybe they were eaten by a near - sighted cat."

The two birds were made out of a synthetic material and used as decorations on the lawn bird bath.

Fogg Elected President of Science Group

John K. Fogg was elected president of the Pikes Peak Seminar for Atmospheric Sciences at the organization's meeting Monday. He succeeds Col. Robert R. Osborn.

Lt. Col. Clarence E. Everson was elected vice president and Capt. Eugene S. Harsh, secretary - treasurer.

Organized in 1962, the Seminar is the local chapter of the American Meteorological Society, and like its parent organization is dedicated to the advancement of meteorological knowledge and professional ideals.

At regular meetings during the past year, members heard scholarly presentations by visiting scientists and local members. Last August, Dr. Gerald Barger and Dr. Harold Crutcher of the National Weather Records Center, Asheville, N.C. discussed the operation of NWRC and certain statistical techniques for climatological application.

Dr. Julius London, professor of astrophysics at the University of Colorado, talked on "The Distribution and Effect of Ozone" at the October meeting.

Capt. Donald Barbarick of the 4th Weather Wing and David Johnson of the Black Forest Soaring Club covered two related topics at the December meeting. Capt. Barbarick discussed the atmospheric phenomenon of lee waves which result under certain conditions when the air flows over a range of mountains. Johnson gave an account of local glider flying, including how near - record altitudes have been attained by riding lee waves in the vicinity of Pikes Peak.

In January, Dr. Paul Julian of the High Altitude Observatory at Boulder discussed the mysterious sudden warming that has occurred in the stratosphere over the Arctic several times since it was discovered in 1952.

Dr. E. Eugene Buell of Kaman Nuclear spoke in February on "Meteorology's 'Darkest' Decade," giving a historical account of early - day forecasting in England and the controversies resulting from the new service.

Dr. Elmar Reiter of Colorado State University was guest speaker at the annual social meeting held in March at the Moors. He presented results of a clear air turbulence project conducted in Australia last summer, and followed his talk with a travelog covering the remainder of his tour through southeast Asia, India and Italy.

Members made a field trip to the High Altitude Observatory at Climax in April.

Members have also presented films and talks on meteorological subjects to some 1,000 students in 10 Colorado Springs schools during the past year.

Devils Stirred By Snakes on Desert Strike

As predicted, snakes and scorpions are causing quite a stir among Red Devil soldiers of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) participating in Exercise Desert Strike in the Mohave Desert.

Following wide alarms of several rattlesnake bites, troops soon settled down to the extent of making sport out of killing the dangerous reptiles. This is usually done in the late afternoon when the soldiers have some free time and snakes come out of hiding. Many of the soldiers had never seen such snakes and had only heard of them.

One such Red Devil from New York was casually strolling down a path en route to the mess tent when he suddenly was in the midst of a staring match with a 4-foot rattlesnake.

As the snake began to make the rattling sound for which it is named, the Easterner hastily conceeded the contest, answering the rattle with a running scream. A motor pool mechanic came to the New Yorker's rescue, killing the reptile.

Snakes are not rank-conscious — scorpions are, particularly the smaller variety. M. Sgt. H. C. Vick and S. Sgt. Larry Flood both had close calls with scorpions. Vick discovered his now-dead playmate sharing his sleeping bag one evening. A raised tail on the insect got a rise out of the master sergeant. Seonds later, eight other Public Information Office writers killed the killer.

Only hours before, Food had been cleaning the floor of his tent, reaching for a cigarette butt and a brown object next to it. Suddenly he went into frenzied movements resembling an Indian war dance, smashing a scorpion and the cigarette butt beyond recognition.

Bobby will again be driving an eight-cylinder supercharged Novi on May 30, while Parnelli will be seeking fame and fortune again in his record breaking winning mount of last year. Aggie's conventional front engine Offy roadster.

Unser scored his sixth win last year on the mile, as he drove a Chevrolet powered championship car to an all-time record of 12 minutes 30 and 6-10th seconds or 59.552 MPH, for the 12.42 mile race which starts at the 9,402 foot level of Pikes Peak and finishes at the top at 14,110 feet. Bobby lowered his own mark in scoring his sixth victory in seven starts.

Jones dropped the stock car mark to 14 minutes, 17 and 4-10th seconds when he drove a 1963 Mercury up the world's most spectacular race course. The sports car division victor, Ak Miller, does not race at Indianapolis. Miller's winning time last year, 14 minutes, 27 and 7-10th seconds or 51.515 MPH, set a big engine class record.

Carson Man Scoutmaster for Three Troops

Spec. 5 Albert C. Milikan of Garrison Headquarters Supply is a leader in his own right. He is scoutmaster of three troops in Pueblo, Cub Scout Den 83 and Boy Scout Troops 83 and 50.

Milikan took over Troop 50 about two years ago, this is a relatively small troop. Larger and more challening are Troops 83 and Den 83.

There is something distinct about Den and Troop 83. They are troops for retarded children. Troop 83 was started recently and contains 30 scouts.

The retarded scouts are separated by mental capabilities, not by age. A special handbook is used by the scouts and teaches them how to use their hands.

Milikan joined the scouting movement in 1941 in Illinois and received the highest rank a scout can obtain, the rank of Eagle.

Recently, he graduated his tenth scout to the rank of Eagle. It was his own son.

Meetings for Troop 50 are held Friday nights and for Den and Troop 83 Saturday mornings. The meetings are held in the Santa Fe freight depot at 3rd and Elizabeth in Pueblo.

He also said two cars parked in his driveway had been entered and prowled.

Blue Jay, Cardinal Visitors Missing

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Greever of 520 Ninth Street, Canon City, are looking for two birds that, until recently, perched on the bird bath on the Greever front lawn.

The birds, a Blue Jay and a Cardinal, were always there, in the bird bath each morning as the Greevers looked out across the lawn.

"I've never seen a pair just like them," Greever said. "Everyone got a kick out of seeing them, and would stop to ask about them. We were disappointed when we found they were gone."

They were discovered missing last Friday morning after the Greevers returned from a trip to Colorado Springs.

Officer Tom Hosman who investigated their disappearance suggested, "Maybe they were eaten by a near - sighted cat."

The two birds were made out of a synthetic material and used as decorations on the lawn bird bath.

Fogg Elected President of Science Group

John K. Fogg was elected president of the Pikes Peak Seminar for Atmospheric Sciences at the organization's meeting Monday. He succeeds Col. Robert R. Osborn.

Lt. Col. Clarence E. Everson was elected vice president and Capt. Eugene S. Harsh secretary - treasurer.

Organized in 1962 the Seminar is the local chapter of the American Meteorological Society, and like its parent organization is dedicated to the advancement of meteorological knowledge and professional ideals.

At regular meetings during the past year members heard scholarly presentations by visiting scientists and local members. Last August Dr. Gerald Barker and Dr. Harold Crutcher of the National Weather Records Center, Asheville, N.C. discussed the operation of NWRC and certain statistical techniques for climatological application.

Dr. Julius Londer, professor of astrophysics at the University of Colorado, lectured on The Distribution and Effect of Ozone at the December meeting.

Capt. Donald Barbarick of the 4th Weather Wing and David Johnson of the Black Forest Soaring Club covered two related topics at the December meeting. Capt. Barbarick discussed the atmospheric phenomenon of lee waves which result under certain conditions when the air flows over a range of mountains. Johnson gave an account of local glider flying, including how near record altitudes have been attained by riding lee waves in the vicinity of Pikes Peak.

In January Dr. Paul Julian of the High Altitude Observatory at Boulder discussed the mysterious sudden warming that has occurred in the stratosphere over the Arctic several times since it was discovered in 1952.

Dr. E. Eugene Bal[illegible] of Kaman Nuclear spoke in February on "Meteorology's Darkest Decade," giving a historical account of early day forecasting in England and the controversies resulting from the new service.

Dr. Elmar Reiter of Colorado State University was guest speaker at the annual social meeting held in March at the Moors. He presented results of a clear air turbulence project conducted in Australia last summer and followed his talk with a travelog covering the remainder of his tour through southeast Asia, India and Italy.

Members made a field trip to the High Altitude Observatory at Climax in April.

Members have also presented films and talks on meteorological subjects to some 1,000 students in 10 Colorado Springs schools during the past year.

Devils Stirred By Snakes on Desert Strike

As predicted snakes and scorpions are causing quite a stir among Red Devil soldiers of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) participating in Exercise Desert Strike in the Mohave Desert.

Following wide alarms of several rattlesnake bites, troops soon settled down to the extent of making sport out of killing the dangerous reptiles. This is usually done in the late afternoon when the soldiers have some free time and snakes come out of hiding. Many of the soldiers had never seen such snakes and had only heard of them.

One such Red Devil from New York was casually strolling down a path en route to the mess tent when he suddenly was in the midst of a staring match with a 4-foot rattlesnake.

As the snake began to make the rattling sound for which it is named, the Easterner hastily conceeded the contest, answering the rattle with a running scream. A motor pool mechanic came to the New Yorker's rescue, killing the reptile.

Snakes are not rank-conscious — scorpions are, particularly the smaller variety. M. Sgt. H. C. Vick and S. Sgt. Larry Flood both had close calls with scorpions. Vick discovered his now-dead playmate sharing his sleeping bag one evening. A raised tail on the insect got a rise out of the master sergeant. Seconds later, eight other Public Information Office writers killed the killer.

Only hours before, Food had been cleaning the floor of his tent, reaching for a cigarette butt and a brown object next to it. Suddenly he went into frenzied movements resembling an Indian war dance, smashing a scorpion and the cigarette butt beyond recognition.

MOTORIZED CANOES

SHERMAN, Tex. (UPI)—The canoe has come a long way since Indians built them from birchbark and rawhide in the early days of North America. Latest models, built at a plant near Lake Texoma, can be propelled by outboard motors and sails as well as by paddles.

Bob Drolet, manager of the Grumman Allied Industries plant, said the small craft are found over most of the United States and are becoming more popular in the Southwest. His Texas firm will make 1,400 canoes and boats this year.

The begonia was first introduced into England in 1777 and named after Michel Begon, a French botanist.

Texas Executioner Dies at Age of 78

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—The executioner for the Texas prison system, Capt. Joe Byrd, died Tuesday of a heart attack at the age of 78.

Byrd's role as official executioner was a closely guarded secret until his death. Officials declined to say how many times he had thrown the electric chair switch.

Byrd, a guard for more than 30 years, had suffered a previous heart attack but refused to retire. "He was on duty at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday as usual," said a prison administrator.

Despite his age, Byrd spent several days a week weeding the 22-acre prison cemetery, where about 950 inmates have been buried.

Exhibit of JFK Mementoes Is Inaugurated

By BERNIE GOULD

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy looked over mementos of her late husband and remarked, almost in a whisper, "I suppose the photographs are the hardest to look at."

The pictures showed the late President Kennedy with his family as a boy, playing with his own children, campaigning.

This Friday would have been the 47th birthday of Kennedy, killed by an assassin last Nov. 22. The birthday anniversary will be marked by an international television program, "JFK: May 29, 1964," in which his widow will take part.

Mrs. Kennedy was here Monday to inaugurate a traveling exhibit of his mementos. She made the comment about his photographs after a reporter asked what part of the exhibit impressed her most.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy also attended the preview.

After a nationwide tour, the mementos will be put on display in the library planned at Harvard University to house Kennedy's papers.

The exhibit at the International Business Machines Corp. building will be open to the public today through June 6. It then moves to more than a score of cities. The tour ends Oct. 18 in San Francisco.

In an article in Life magazine this week, Mrs. Kennedy described the difficulty of choosing items for the exhibit.

"There were the obvious items," she wrote, "like his desk. And the rocking chair, that everyone had heard about and would want to see in an exhibit like this.

"But I wanted people to see the rather personal side of the president, so I have parted with some of our greatest treasures, the pictures, objects and books, which we always kept at home."

Stanford Student Blasts Goldwater

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—The Stanford University student newspaper has requested Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona to withdraw from the race for the California Republican presidential nomination.

In a front page editorial in the form of an open letter, The Stanford Daily termed the Arizona conservative "a dangerous man" with "little background for the presidency."

The 1,000-word editorial signed "The Stanford Daily," charged Goldwater with a disregard of the historical causes of war and with "frightening irresponsibility."

"You are, in the most detestable sense of the word, an ignorant warmonger," the editorial said.

Bill Moore, student editor of the daily campus tabloid, said he intends to send a copy of the editorial to Goldwater.

HONOR 'GOOD THIEF'

BOSTON (UPI) — Ordinarily a holiday doesn't mean much to inmates of correctional institutions. But the sheriffs of two Massachusetts counties have taken steps to correct this situation.

Hereafter, Saint Dismas Day will be set aside each year as a "no work" day for the inmates of jails in Worchester and Bristol counties. Religious services will be held in the morning and the men will be permitted extra yard privileges and a ration of free candy and cigarettes. Saint Dismas is known as the "Good Thief".

Cigarette Sales Increase Reported

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A survey of wholesale cigarette outlets here shows sales this month increased over May 1963, and many who quit smoking after the U.S. surgeon general's report in January are at it again.

In addition, the survey showed some persons who switched to pipes and cigars after the report, which linked smoking to lung cancer, are still holding out, indicating some new customers for cigarettes.

"Cigarette smoking is back in full swing, and the surprising part is that many are going to the stronger, unfiltered cigarette," one wholesaler said.

Gradual Change in Navajo Economy Being Predicted

By JOHN McMILLION

FARMINGTON, N.M. (UPI) — A step toward a possible gradual change in the basic economy of the Navajo Indian tribe, the nation's largest, was taken recently with the beginning of the first phase of a massive irrigation project.

Start of the $135 million Navajo Irrigation Project, a subsidiary of the Upper Colorado River Storage Project, marks the realization of a dream for many Navajo leaders and government Indian workers.

And in addition, the folks of the San Juan basin look forward to the 14-odd years of construction as a highly welcome stabilizer for the area's economy.

The project is only the first of many.

Before it is over, there will be a labyrinth of canals which will carry water over 150 square miles of what now is a vast wasteland.

Water will reach the first of the proposed new "farms" in about five years. The first lands to be irrigated will amount to about 2,000 acres, according to Gerald B. Keesee of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Eventually 110,000 acres will be under irrigation from the project.

The irrigation project also will result in a migration of Navajos from eastern Arizona into Western New Mexico. Keesee said by 1980 about 1,100 Navajos will be farming on the high mesa, across the San Juan River south of Farmington, and another 1,100 Indians will be directly supported by the project. In all, 17,000 Navajos are expected to be affected by the project, and to migrate to New Mexico.

Only Indians can utilize waters from the project, Keesee said.

No great amount of truck farming, wheat, or other commodities is expected as the 10,000-odd acres per year come under irrigation between 1970 and 1980.

Instead, Keesee and other BIA officials think, the Navajo will mostly use the irrigation waters to improve pasturage for his cattle and sheep, already his economic mainstay.

Now only a few head can be run on the sandy, brush sprinkled tableland. What does the job entail?

The first contract covers a two - mile tunnel, headworks near the recently completed Navajo Dam, and other initial facilities.

In all, 40 contracts will be let, ranging from a half million dollars to $12-15 million. In December of this year one of the biggest contracts, for a 4.8 mile tunnel, will be let.

The main canal, when completed, will be 160 to 170 miles long and will carry water from Navajo Reservoir over 25 miles of useless land to a high mesa which ranges east and west from Farmington on the south side of the San Juan River.

The project is the largest public works project in the history of New Mexico.

What will this mean to the economy of Farmington, Aztec, and Bloomfield, communities which have gone through a boom and a leveling off period in the past 15 to 20 years?

The annual payroll during peak periods of construction will run about $8 million a year. Much of this money will be pumped into the economy of the San Juan Basin.

Construction alone will amount to $135 million and at least twice that much is expected to result from other facets of the project's operation.

In the future is a training program aimed at teaching the Navajos to broaden their agricultural technology.

"We hope as one generation follows another," Keesee said, "the Navajo economy can develop into a far-flung agricultural endeavor encompassing many crops. I feel nothing can stop them once they learn how to do it. The land is good, there is plenty of sunshine, and all that has been lacking is water. Now we will have the water."

MARRIAGE WITH MUSIC

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The traditional wedding marches were missing when Miss Frances Burke and William Earley were married.

Before the ceremony, guests were treated to a 45-minute full scale concert, then the couple marched down the aisle to the strains of a suite for trumpet, string and organ.

The unusual event was arranged by the bride's father, Robert Burke Jr., a music critic.

Marching Students Dispersed by Police

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)— Riot police used tear gas today to disperse a marching group of 1,500 high school students demanding the release of students and adults arrested in antigovernment demonstrations.

Several students were arrested. There were no reports of injuries.

Students last Wednesday renewed their demonstrations opposing negotiations to normalize relations between South Korea and Japan. Such demonstrations were banned last month, and 46 persons are under arrest.

MY ANSWER
by Billy Graham

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: Will you please explain II Peter 3:10? I don't understand to what it refers to. —J. N.

ANSWER: The text to which you refer says: "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up."

A few years ago this Scripture would have been passed off as a first-century mystical dream. But now, with modern nuclear weapons, it is a distinct possibility. Not only men of religion, but men of science, declare that the destruction of this planet is no longer improbable.

The Scriptures assert that there was a time when this world was not, and there will be a time when it will be cleansed of all evil by the fire of God's judgment.

The Christian's hope is beyond this earth. If you will read on farther in the chapter referred to, you will find these words: "Nevertheless, we according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." If our hope is restricted to this planet, we are hopeless. But if our hope is in God, we need not be overwhelmed by despair.

QUESTION: Preachers talk of the resurrection of the body but I thought that in heaven we would all be spirits. —E.R.

ANSWER: The resurrection is probably the most exciting teaching of the New Testament. It was the fact that Jesus triumphed over the grave that gave the drive and power to His disciples. And when the church loses its belief in the resurrection, it will lose much of its zest and effectiveness.

You say, 'I thought in heaven we would all be spirits." I would remind you that the only clue that we have of what a resurrected body is like is to look at Jesus in resurrected form. After He arose from the grave He walked, talked, ate,' and taught. His disciples recognized Him. They could not have done this had He been but a spirit. Though He was not limited by space (He passed through doors without them being opened), He could be identified. Thomas even saw the prints of the nails in His hands.

This leads us to believe that we will know and recognize those we love on the other side, and that when this "mortal shall put on immortality", then "shall we know, even also as we are known."

QUESTION: Do I have to confess to relatives and friends to make restitution because I talked against them? —R.Y.

ANSWER: Yes! And the sooner the better.

We have drifted away from the Scriptural doctrine of 'restitution'. This I believe, is one of the reasons for the lack of spiritual power among Christians today.

The sins of the 'tongue' are clearly denounced in the Scriptures, and unconfessed sin can short-circuit our spiritual power and influence.

In the Sermon on the Mount Jesus said: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there the gift before the altar . . . first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift."

But 'gossip' doesn't hurt others as much as it does you. It is like a lashed whip that curls back to cut the one who wields it. The only way to release from feelings of guilt is through confession — confession to the one you have wronged, and confession to God.

Florida Will Be Test of Strength For Goldwater

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's strength among Florida Republicans will be tested Tuesday in a primary that highlights this week's political schedule.

However, much of the political interest is on a race that won't be decided until June 2. The Arizona senator's battle with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York for California's 86 Republican convention votes.

Other events this week include Tuesday's runoff primary in Oklahoma and Saturday's primary in North Carolina and a Republican convention in Mississippi, also Saturday.

The Republican National Convention arrangements committee meets here today to go over final plans and choose the three top convention officers.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., and Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon appear to be the likely choices for permanent and temporary chairmen. There is strong support for Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the party's national chairman, to deliver the keynote address.

Either way the senator is assured a good bloc of votes. He also is expected to pick up Mississippi's 13 votes at that state's GOP convention.

At the start of the week, The Associated Press survey of first ballot votes showed this lineup:

Barry Goldwater	304
William W. Scranton	70
Henry Cabot Lodge	44
Nelson W. Rockefeller	40
Margaret Chase Smith	15
Richard M. Nixon	11
Favorite sons	102
Uncommitted	225

The Florida election also includes a Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary between Mayor Haydon Burns of Jacksonville, who led the field in the May 5 primary, and Mayor Robert King High of Miami.

The civil rights bill now before the Senate is an issue. Burns, who clamped down hard on racial demonstrations in Jacksonville earlier this year, opposes the bill. High, a newcomer to statewide politics who surprised most observers with his second-place finish in the first primary, has endorsed the bill with reservations.

Oklahoma's runoff election centers on the battle for the Democratic Senate nomination between two still youthful political veterans—Sen. J. Howard Edmondson, 38, appointed to the Senate early in 1963 to succeed the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, and State Sen. Fred Harris, 33.

The winner will meet the Republican nominee, Bud Wilkinson, former football coach at Oklahoma University, in November.

North Carolina Democrats will choose between six candidates for governor. If none gets a majority, there'll be a runoff election June 27.

The principal candidates are L. Richardson Preyer, Dan K. Moore and I. Beverly Lake.

Preyer, a former U.S. District Court judge, has the backing of many of Gov. Terry Sanford's supporters. Sanford cannot succeed himself.

Moore, a former Superior Court judge, quit as a paper company executive to make the race with the backing of more conservative elements of the party.

Lake, a strong segregationist who lost to Sanford in 1960, has indicated he would not enforce the civil rights bill now before the Senate if it is enacted.

Preyer and Moore, while opposing the bill, have said they would enforce it.

All 11 North Carolina house members seek nominations to new terms and only three—all Democrats—have primary opposition.

KNOWS HER DOLLS

LONDON (AP) —Miss Irene Hickman has acquired a collection of more than 2,000 dolls and is an authority on English dolls. Among her prizes are a 27-inch high original Queen Anne doll, an early English peddler carrying a tray laden with trinkets, and a 75-year-old German bisque doll with real chestnut hair and startling blue, movable eyes—about the size of a child of two.

According to Miss Hickman, before the reign of Queen Victoria dolls in England all had brown eyes. When Victoria came to the throne, dolls were given blue eyes as a compliment to her.

Moral Education Being Urged at Chicago Meeting

By G. K. HODENFIELD

CHICAGO (AP) — If American teen-agers are sexually promiscuous, their parents are to blame. And when the parents worry about adolescent sex, it is for the wrong reason.

Dr. Mary C. Calderone, a New York City specialist in public health, leveled that blunt criticism at U.S. society today.

There have been many surveys on adolescent sexual activity, she said, and "you pay your money and you take your choice. But the facts are that the excellent studies by Christianson of Purdue University show that one out of every five U.S. brides is pregnant on her wedding day."

Dr. Calderone told the national convention of the PTA, "We have done a half-baked job" of sex education. She urged a full, factual program extending from first grade through senior high school.

"The dilemma, of course, is of our own making," she said in her prepared address. "We have in the last 15 years lifted all forms of discipline and control and substituted nothing for them.

"We have given our children the keys and free access to cars, money with which to go to motels, empty houses and apartments, while mother and father are off golfing and playing bridge or what-have-you, and few rules about anything, including sex."

Dr. Calderone said the inference children draw from the books and films to which they have free access is that "while our society wholeheartedly believes in monogamy and sex within marriage, nevertheless sex outside marriage is fun and sophisticated and an 'in' thing."

She told the PTA delegates, "I challenge you to admit that, as a society, our anxiety is not so much about sexual behavior itself as about its results in terms of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and, of course, venereal disease."

Pregnancy and disease, Dr. Calderone said, have little relation to the actual amount of sexual activity by young people.

The goal of adults, Dr. Calderone said, should not be merely the prevention of pregnancy and veneral disease.

"We want to develop individuals who, as they grow up, are being taught that the full exercise of their sexual powers is for when they are mature and responsible people and in a mature and responsible fashion."

To do this, she said, "we must give information, and here I beg and plead as the students themselves are begging and pleading.

"How wickedly dishonest can we be in failing to do this?"

Hey Neighbor!

Those spareribs you're barbequeing sure look good. What's that? How do I fix them? Well, they take a long time to reach their best flavor so I plan to keep adding briquets from time to time. This keeps an even temperature for them. I set some extra briquets at the edge of the firebox and let them warm up about 15 minutes, and then push them into the coals. That way they don't reduce the temperature. Why don't you try it that way—you'll like them.

A Bridge Lazy Susan that's said to teach beginners the game quickly. The 12 - sided polygonal Lazy Susan is slightly smaller than a bridge table top; made of durable, stain-resistant plastic-impregnated paper. It is printed on both sides with instructions for North, South, East and West players, teaching card values, how to open bids, defensive bidding and rebidding and how to respond to a partner's bids. As the bidding changes hands, the Susan is rotated to reflect the changed strategy players must use.

A Li'l Gasser, an easily installed reserve gas tank that holds the extra gallon you need to get off the freeway or to the next gas station. Made of heavy gauge steel, the tank has a teflon valve said to work under all climatic conditions. Made to fit any car, truck or boat, the unit comes with all necessary installation hardware.

(Li'l Gasser Co., 5220 W. 104th St., Los Angeles, Calif.).

A combination car refrigerator-air conditioner, the Vapor-Freeze, requires no heat or freon gas for operation and no compressor, freeing the motor of added service and cutting operating cost. The only moving part is a fan, used when the unit operates as an air conditioner. The unit uses vapor from the car's fuel as a refrigerant, which then powers the engine. The unit, 19 inches wide, 8 inches high and 12 inches deep, is easily installed with simple supporting brackets and a tap to the carburetor.

BAGFUL OF RECORDS — Tracy Barnes, 25, of Minneapolis, Minn., went aloft in his home-built rig, including black bag full of oxygen—and came down with a claimed trophy of seven free-flight records. Barnes says he reached 37,000 feet altitude, breaking the class 3-A record held by a Russian of 23,206 feet—plus six other records, set by larger balloons.

Musical Theater Goes Round Now In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the summer of "My Fair Lady," and one of the liveliest of the Eliza Doolitles will be pert Jane Powell.

The Lerner-Loewe masterpiece has been released for stock this year. Hence, a large number of summer musical theaters will be offering "MFL" to cash in on its immense popularity—and to beat the movie version, due in October.

Come August, Jane Powell will make her debut as Eliza and also inaugurate the latest addition to a growing California industry, the musical theater-in-the round.

It started with last summer's startling success of Melodyland near Disneyland. Now Concerts Inc. is putting on a season of musicals at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium; the Melodyland people are building a theater in San Carlos, south of San Francisco; and the San Fernando Valley will have the Valley Music Theater. Jane will play Eliza in the latter two.

"These theaters and those in the East have become a boon to us performers," she remarked over a club sandwich the other day. "We could work only in the summer and live the rest of the year on the earnings, if we wanted to."

Trouble is, twice-divorced Jane has three growing children to care for, and they grow restive when she's gone, especially in the summer. So she tries to arrange engagements close to home or in places the kids can go along.

The harvest for a week's trilling on the four-sided stage? It can be anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000. Jane holds the gross record at Melodyland and perhaps in summer musicals anywhere: $37,000 a week in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," last year's favorite on the summer circuit.

The musical theaters are not without their hazards.

"The major problem is always the sound," Jane remarks. "Even when the greatest care has gone into a sound system, something can go wrong."

With audiences on all sides, the actors have to keep moving constantly. They must carry the microphones on their persons to get the best amplification.

"The microphone goes here," she explained, indicating her bosom. "So that is no problem for us girls. But some of the mikes require batteries, and that can be a problem.

"In 'Molly' I had the battery strapped under my skirt. Sometimes when I ran down the aisle to get onstage, it would come loose and almost trip me. I had to signal the orchestra to keep playing until I could get it fixed."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A kick that missed its target brought a 21-year-old woman into Ohio State University Hospital, police said.

She was treated for a severe foot laceration, they reported, and explained that, in trying to kick her husband, her foot went wide of the mark and through a storm door.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE—Lt. Gen. Prem Singh Gyani, of India, commander of the U.N. peacekeeping force on Cyprus, meets with Turkish Cypriot women who say their men are held as hostages by Greek Cypriots. Gyani is the head—another fellow—in the picture, not to be confused with Greek Cypriots in attempts to keep a semblance of peace.

Thailand May Be Under New Red Pressure

By KARSTEN PRAGER

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Thailand heartland of Southeast Asia and one of the West's best friends in the area, is under new pressure in the Laotian Communists gain much more power.

The Thais are preparing to meet the threat backed by a firm defense commitment from the United States.

For 600 miles Laos adjoins Thailand, touching some of its most underdeveloped regions.

With the border areas of Laos were controlled by a pro-Communist regime, they formed a sprawling buffer for Thailand against Communist China to the north, Communist North Viet Nam to the northeast. Now, with Communists Laos militant Communists infiltration has been defended in Thailand's road of fire, and about 4,000 Communist guerrillas have started a clash with the Thai army on the northern and northeastern frontiers and extend south of Communists.

Military men in the Thais lean heavily on the U.S. commitment to defend them and also—but with less confidence—on the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Two years ago, when the Pathet Lao was making another land-grab in northeast U.S. troops were rushed to northern Thailand and the Laotians Reds withdrew.

Also, 500 American advisers are attached to Thailand's 120,000-man armed forces. Small U.S. Air Force units are periodically stationed there. An American engineering battalion is building a highway to the Laotian border. The least Heavy weapons and equipment brought during the 1962 influx of American troops, are stored here, ready for use. The 7th Fleet aircraft and landing units are never far away.

In case of major Communist invasion, Thailand's four army divisions would try to contain them until reinforcements from the United States or other SEATO partners could be brought in.

Although Thailand has not fought a major war in years, Western military observers view the American-equipped army of 200,000 with confidence.

Counter - insurgency exercises have been held regularly. Training is for guerrilla rather than conventional warfare.

Thailand's air force is small but considered efficient. It is equipped with F86 jets, T28 fighter-bombers, medium transports and helicopters, and maintains a number of all-weather strips in easy striking range of the border.

CONSCIENCE SPOKE UP

COLUBUS, Ohio (AP)—Noting a broken vent window in his parked car, Dr. Sygmund Telerski investigated. He found his medical bag's contents on the floor and papers from the glove compartment scattered.

But nothing seemed to be missing. Then he found a note: "Sorry, changed my mind. I could never feel right again. There is nothing gone."

Cuban Refugee May Be American Citizen

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Is Barbara Benita Mojias, born in an open boat in which her parents fled Cuba, an American or Cuban citizen?

The decision may depend on the log of the British frigate Tartar, which plucked the refugees from the boat April 30.

Immigration officer Joseph Minton said Monday that Cmdr. B. C. G. Hutchings has been asked to report the longitude and latitude of the pickup.

If Barbara was born within three miles of the U.S. coast, she's American.

Barbara's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andres Mejias, are hoping she'll be an American.

Religious Rallies Are Held in Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Buddhists in Saigon and Hue poined in massive but orderly religious rallies today to commemorate Buddha's birthday and the fiery Buddhist suicides that helped topple President Ngo Dinh Diem last year.

U.S. military authorities imposed a n 8p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew for American servicemen in Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon. A bloody riot there during the birthday celebration last year set off the Buddhist crisis for the Diem government.

Musical Theater Goes Round Now In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the summer of "My Fair Lady" and one of the liveliest of the Eliza Doolittles will be pert Jane Powell.

The Lerner-Loewe masterpiece has been released for stock this year. Hence, a large number of summer musical theaters will be offering "MFL" to cash in on its immense popularity—and to beat the movie version, due in October.

Come August, Jane Powell will make her debut as Eliza and also inaugurate the latest addition to a growing California industry: the musical theater-in-the round.

It started with last summer's startling success of Melodyland near Disneyland. Now Concerts Inc. is putting on a season of musicals at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. The Melodyland people are building a theater in San Carlos, south of San Francisco; and the San Fernando Valley will have the Valley Music Theater. Jane will play Eliza in the latter two.

"These theaters and those in the East have become a boon to us performers," she remarked over a club sandwich the other day. "We could work only in the summer and live the rest of the year on the earnings, if we wanted to."

Trouble is, twice-divorced Jane has three growing children to care for, and they grow restive when she's gone, especially in the summer. So she tries to arrange engagements close to home or in places the kids can go along.

The harvest for a week's trilling on the four-sided stage? It can be anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000. Jane holds the gross record at Melodyland and perhaps in summer musicals anywhere: $37,000 a week in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," last year's favorite on the summer circuit.

The musical theaters are not without their hazards.

"The major problem is always the sound," Jane remarks. "Even when the greatest care has gone into a sound system, something can go wrong."

With audiences on all sides, the actors have to keep moving constantly. They must carry the microphones on their persons to get the best amplification.

"The microphone goes here," she explained, indicating her bosom. "So that is no problem for us girls. But some of the mikes require batteries, and that can be a problem.

"In 'Molly' I had the battery strapped under my skirt. Sometimes when I ran down the aisle to get onstage, it would come loose and almost trip me. I had to signal the orchestra to keep playing until I could get it fixed."

TEMPER, TEMPER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A kick that missed its target brought a 21-year-old woman into Ohio State University Hospital, police said.

She was treated for a severe foot laceration, they reported, and explained that, in trying to kick her husband, her foot went wide of the mark and through a storm door.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Big Money Through Private Sources

The Wall Street Journal has reported on a rapidly growing trend in community-wide industrial financing that ought to be of interest to those of us who see Colorado as a site for more and more of the better industries.

We are not talking about community development corporations which have proliferated during the past decade or so, but which rely for their money on the sale of government bonds. We are talking about a completely free market lending corporation, usually established at state level and not at community level, that exists to make profits and that is in the lending business with plenty of elan vital.

To illustrate just what is happening the Journal describes the plight of a corporation called "Germfree Products, Inc." This outfit wanted to locate in St. Petersburg, Florida and applied for financing at each of the three local banks. It was turned down all the way around.

The reasons for the turn down were legitimate banking reasons. Although Germfree's potential looked good on paper there was a general concern expressed about the lack of a successful operating history. Also, collateral for the loan would consist primarily of specially designed equipment for which no known market existed. No one bank could assume the risks involved. And the firm wanted to erect a $150,000 plant.

But Germfree was able to go ahead, anyhow. It obtained a loan form the Industrial Development Corporation of Florida, a free market agency which gets its funds through support of 97 of Florida's banks, from 31 savings and loan associations and from 10 insurance companies. The risk for any of these institutions is very small. By pooling their resources they could make the loan and did so at a high interest rate.

According to the Journal, there are now some 18 of these state-wide agencies in operation in various parts of the country. The idea was first launched in New England, where canny Yanks felt the necessity to offer certain inducements to firms which were being lured out of the territory by promises of tax-free land, a non-unionized labor market and so on.

The big thing about these industrial development groups is that they ask few if any favors from the taxpayers and they expect to make money from their lending activities and they do. Actually, most of them plow back into further development all the profits they make.

So often we are told that only government can manage to provide the big money. Only government can come up with the largeness of view necessary to do the big things. But here is striking evidence that the claim so often made just isn't so. Considered as a group, these Business Development Corporations (BDC) have lent more than $100 million to nearly 1,100 business borrowers within the last few years. At the beginning of 1954 these BDC's had about $50 million in loans on their books and are looking for more borrowers.

As things stand, the BDC's usually make what could be called the "last ditch" kind of loan. Since their approval most always calls for a higher interest payment than usual, businessmen stay away from them until other avenues of lending fail. But the businessman who wants to be independent and has learned, either from the examples set by others or through solid study of the problem, that government intrusion into business, even for financing, is a highly risky and unwise procedure, is beginning to turn to the BDC's for his financing.

It can be said that many a businessman who has gone to the government for financial aid, goes there only when it can be demonstrated that he can't get financial help any other way. But now the BDC's are getting into the picture to compete with such things as the Small Business Administration and the REA, both of which have been getting into the lending business.

This is a heartening event and bears examination. Possibly something of this sort would be useful and profitable in Colorado. It helps to establish that voluntary joint ventures, regardless of size, can exist, even in a world dominated by involuntary ventures under the power of the state.

We are grateful to the Wall Street Journal for running the story and for letting us know of this new development.

Stupidity

All men are ignorant. In many areas each of us has yet to be informed. But some men are stupid. And stupidity begins at the point where it is assumed that ignorance has vanished.

A Tax-Exempt Mission

There is a Christian mission established in Oaxaca, Mexico which carries the audacious and somewhat unlikely name: "Air Mail from God." We have recently received a printed recital from their office concerning their long and finally successful duel with the Internal Revenue Service of this country.

The mission is headed by Gerald and Deane Dugan, who founded the organization in San Antonio, Texas, in 1954. It has taken them ten years to obtain the tax-exemption status that is ordinarily granted to churches and other religious orders. They have also gone through a period in which the IRS agents confiscated some of their office equipment and harassed them with complicated and conflicting orders and directives.

As we understand it, although the federal government has finally seen fit to smile wanly upon the mission with a belated tax-exemption certificate (retroactive to 1954), the local Texas agent is still hounding them, and doing what he can to discourage support and contributions to the missionary endeavor.

Whether or not we agree with the missionary zeal shown by the couple and their co-workers, we can certainly commend them for their courage in standing up to the powerful forces of the greatest collection agency on earth. Perhaps they will be heartened to know that only recently the IRS officially laid down a rule to its employees that they were to stop insulting taxpayers and to endeavor to work with them and leave them in a relatively happy frame of mind.

Just how anyone is supposed to retain a happy and jubilant frame of mind after he has been systematically looted remains a problem, but at least, assuming the instructions were given without tongue-in-cheek, there could conceivably be a little less of the truculent attitude which so often has marred what at best is an intolerable relationship anyway.

A listing of some of the grievances itemized by the mission may be instructive and even encouraging to others who may find themselves in a somewhat parallel situation.

1. IRS compelled the mission to re-file all its tax forms for nine years. The reason given was that in spite of the fact that the organization was a non-profit corporation, that it had operated for profit. The charge was false.

2. The IRS denied the mission the customary 90-day extension in which to obtain its files, and file a rebuttal to all charges made.

3. The fact that the mission had actually operated at a loss was not considered by the IRS. Instead, it seized personal property owned by the mission in an effort to collect back taxes which were not due.

4. The IRS denied the mission its right to legal counsel and defense by seizing its properties two days after it was learned that the organization's legal counsel had been hospitalized.

5. IRS officials followed up their seizure of property by calling at the mission and telephoning the officials at odd hours both day and night to make conversation or to ask questions having little bearing on the matter at hand.

However, the program of harassment finally terminated on April 16 of this year when the IRS ruled officially that the mission was tax exempt and, indeed, had been tax exempt since 1954.

It is a difficult thing for people to face up to their government and tell it to stop in its tracks. So deeply ingrained in our mores is respect and devotion to the state that even overt acts of injustice perpetrated by men in power are likely to induce fear and acquiescence. We are always encouraged when we find people who have the nerve to see through threats and intimidations and to demand that their rights be respected and preserved.

Of course there will be those who will contend that no agency of any kind should be tax exempt. We are inclined to the opposite view, that no agency of any kind should be taxed.

We may have our doubts as to the efficacy of a mission with a name so imposing as the one taken by the good people in Oaxaca. But we have no doubts at all concerning the right of people to be free from the pressures and exactions imposed upon them by a merciless and powerful state.

Evidences of Weakness

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine and supine submission to Communist aggression in the Caribbean, long-term piecemeal surrender of valid treaty rights in the Panama Canal Zone, concession after concession in the disarmament negotiations without counter concession or adequate inspection, refusal to help freedom fighters anywhere, opposition to Western colonialism while keeping silent regarding the far worse Communist colonialism, weakness and submission with reference to the war in Korea, championing of neutralism in Laos and Cambodia, refusal to assist the French when Communist aggression in Viet Nam could have been stopped, promoting the expansion of the pro-Communist Sukarno in Southeast Asian regions, the forcible suppression of Western leadership in Katanga and the Congo while championing the Communist factions in that area, and joining with the Russian Communists against our allies the British and the French to enable Nasser to illegally seize the Suez Canal — all these and many more evidences of weakness and Communist appeasement in Washington have convinced our friends and our enemies alike that our country is devoid of strength and intelligence in its foreign policy and that our enemies may continue to spit in our faces and exploit us with impunity.

As a result, we evacuate our personnel from one country after another as we cringe before Communist aggression, submit to insults to our flag in Panama and Ghana where rioting mobs attack our embassies while Red China openly charges that we are collaborating with Communist Russia. Unfortunately, the charge is true. For a generation the main outlines of our foreign policy have been directed toward appeasement and collaboration of Russian communism. We have fought her enemies and subsidized her friends. We have toppled right-wing rulers who opposed communism and aided left-wing dictators who favored it. This has long been standard policy in our conduct of foreign affairs.

Instead of allowing the twin evils, Hitlerism and Stalinism, to destroy each other, we backed the stronger of these two antagonists to preserve and strengthen the Kremlin tyrants. Now it appears that we are repeating this error as the break looms between Red China and Red Russia. Both regimes are led by atheists, both are totalitarian slave regimes and we have nothing in common with them.

Let us profit by our previous mistake and let these two twin tyrannies exhaust one another while we preserve our strength for the defense of the free world. Let us have done with appeasement and all collaboration and defense of Russian communism while we resolutely renew our determination to uphold the ideals of our Founding Fathers and free self-government throughout the world.

CALLING OFF THE DOG

The Local Scene

Mountains of Memories

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Sometimes I think I'm double, Miss,
Not one man, it seems, but two.
For as I sit here writing this
I'm walking in the hills with you.

While my hand traces letters meek
My heart and soul are roaming free
Across a windswept mountain peak
And you are strolling there with me.

The crest is high and we are far
Above the line where timber grows.
Up where the brightest flowers are,
Excuse me while I write of those.

The blossoms blooming brave and bold
In moss that nothing ever mars—
We do not mind a little cold
For we are wading in the stars.

And while I know it can't be true,
It gladdens still my lonely heart
To haunt our well loved hills with you,
Though we are half a world apart.

A MONKEY TALE

A friend read my appeal for help in taming and training a monkey a while back. She is the only one I've heard from to date and her advice was negative, to say the least. She told me what NOT to do.

It seems that a friend of hers had a parrot that was a wise old bird and a very fine talker and had been her pride and joy for years — still is, I guess. But somebody presented her with a monkey which soon became a household pet and had the run of the mansion.

This lady was also a chicken raiser and often killed a fryer for dinner. The monkey, being free and also curious and quick to learn, had watched her pluck many a fowl. And that was the cause of the foul play.

She was away from home for a few hours one day and when she returned she found the living room knee-deep in feathers, and the parrot, stark naked, was repeating, over and over, "We've had a h—of a time."

The monkey had figured out how to open the parrot cage and proceeded to pluck the parrot, as it had seen his mistress pluck a chicken.

Well, we have a mynah bird and so my friend said, "You'd better not let this monkey watch you pick any chickens." This is a tale with a moral if I ever saw one.

A FAREWELL BREAKFAST

You often hear of somebody giving somebody else a farewell breakfast or dinner, but ours was for a building. A couple of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Passmore, were here from California on vacation and to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bush, who recently celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary.

Since both the Passmores were raised in the Springs, they are very fond of the Antlers Hotel and they don't think they will be back this way before the famous old landmark is razed to make way, we hope, for an even finer building. So they proposed that we all have breakfast at the Antlers as a sort of farewell gesture, for them at least. And an excellent breakfast it was, too.

We all agreed that it would take a bit of doing to build something on the spot that would be more handsome than the one to be torn down. But then, they are creating miracles in buildings nowadays and we all hoped for the best.

And so, with a few pictures snapped in front of the historic building, we drove back up the pass in time for me to make it to work and our friends headed back for California. When they return, as they do yearly, we may get some pictures of whatever fills the spot where once the Antlers stood. It had better be good.

GRAVE MAINTENANCE

To the Editor:

The Printers Home has 1,137 graves in Evergreen Cemetery. They have paid $368 per year. They donated land for the road at Union and Airport Road for which the city received about one-half acre. The Printers Home paid the city $1000 to maintain the 1,137 graves from now on.

The Park Department estimates the cost to maintain a grave at $2.50 per grave. So Mr. Taxpayer, you are paying the difference between $368 and $2,842 to maintain the graves for the Printers Home in Evergreen Cemetery. The Printers Home do not pay any taxes—only on the new office building recently constructed.

The Catholic church has 2,300 graves in Evergreen Cemetery on which they pay $250 per year. The estimated cost to maintain these graves is $2.50 per year per grave. This is $5,750. So, Mr. Taxpayer, you are paying approximately $8,500 per year to maintain the graves for these two organizations. The church paid $5,000 to settle this matter.

If the Park Department has so much time to oppose the roads at Prospect Lake that 3,500 other people think we need, they must be overstaffed in their office for they have spent a lot of time opposing this road before different organizations and the public hearing that was held.

RAY CURTIS
622 Prospect Lake Dr.

Editor's note: The Printers Home has more graves than 1,137 in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Curtis has overlooked another 1,111 graves in Evergreen belonging to the ITU.

The Park Department estimates the cost of maintaining a grave at $2.25 per year, rather than $2.50.

The Printers Home no longer pays $368 a year since they gave the half acre of land and a $1,000 endowment to the city.

The figure of $2,842 is meaningless for it derives from the incorrect grave count and an incorrect figure as to the cost of maintaining a grave. Actually, the figure is much higher. Some of the graves belonging to the Printers Home have special and private endowments, however.

The Catholic church has 708 graves in Evergreen rather than 2,300, and some of the 708 are privately endowed.

The figure of $5,750 is in error.

The figure of $8,500 is also in error for the same reasons.

The above information was provided by Malcolm Anderson, Helen Anderson and Stu Richter, all employes of the city of Evergreen Cemetery.

FOOTPRINTER OF YEAR

To the Editor:

When Hal Cook, FBI, presented the award to Mrs. I. B. Bruce the other night, there were many tearful but fond memories in the crowd. As for myself, a great big lump in my throat, for I too was one of the fortunate ones that he "adopted." He was a "father" to many; stern, strict, kind, understanding and most of all he was a very patient man. A man that even those that did not like him, his methods, his authority, they did respect him deeply, almost reverently.

Many persons today would be criminals and alcoholic if it were not for his "stern" assistance.

Chapter 37 is the only chapter in Footprinter named after a man, alive or dead, and as a proud member, I believe that Ben Langella, the new president, although he did not know Dad, would welcome applications from those who wish to help commemorate his memory.

"Father Bruce's Individuals," why not stand up and be counted?

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 507: "In class at college, we had occasion to discuss private versus public education systems. Unanimously agree competition is essential among educators. Also agree private facilities needed. Two unanswered questions perplex us. How is child from poor circumstances but with capable mind given opportunity to obtain formal education? How about same capably minded child springing from parents unwilling to send to school? Number of potential converts to private way awaiting authoritative answers."

Answer: The questions asked above have been asked time and time again as to how the child from poor circumstances but with capable mind would be given an opportunity to obtain a formal education. And also about the same capably minded child springing from parents unwilling to send to school. In the first place they use the word "public education systems," evidently meaning tax-supported or government schools. Real public schools are private schools where those who support the schools have control of the schools and have the choice of not paying. The state should have nothing to do with education any more than the state should have anything to do with organized religion.

The fact of the matter is that you cannot stop a child who has the will to learn from getting an education or training. Most people get training and think it is an education. Training or instruction is entirely different from education.

The reason the state or the government can't educate as to what is moral is because it does not set a good example. It can't teach the difference between right and wrong. It cannot define stealing other than making it legal. The state can make stealing legal, but can't make it moral or beneficial. The youth are not stimulated to learn by example. When the heads of the tax-supported schools will not answer questions on moral-ethical questions without making long speeches and cannot answer questions in a minute's time, they are not setting a good example of the will to learn. The instructors in tax-supported colleges and schools do not themselves have the will to learn or they would be willing to answer questions briefly, reducing them to moral principles and thus be an example for the youth of the land to be always examining beliefs to find whether there are any exceptions to what he believes is a principle.

The capably minded child certainly could read the great thinkers of the ages without going to school or college. Did not Lincoln and Booker T. Washington get a good education by reading the Bible and the great books of the ages?

One of the best ways for a capable child to get an education without going to college is to ask a man who has convictions as to what stealing is, what books he has read and if he can answer questions about his convictions without evasion or contradiction, then follow his advice and read the books he suggests. THAT would not be too difficult to start with.

Why will not the superintendents of the schools in any county in which Freedom Newspapers are published, answer a few questions, each question in a minute's time, for $500? Those who believe in private schools — that is, public schools where the parents or those who support the schools have control of them rather than the politicians — are willing to answer questions in a minute's time for nothing. They always want their ideas examined. They admit they are fallible and subject to error, but those who refuse to answer questions for the love of truth or for money are so well satisfied with their certificates to teach from a state institution, that they have stopped learning. They have no further will to learn and to find out whether they are doing great harm or doing what they undoubtedly think they are doing—being beneficial to those they come in contact with.

We hope we have made ourselves clear.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the being of all mankind on this well-being of all mankind on this earth.

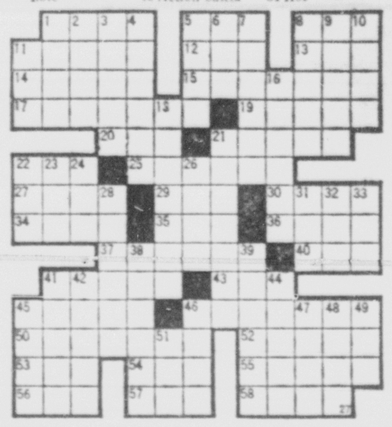
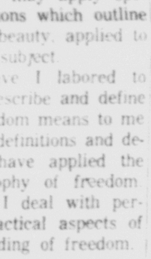
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Philosophy

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The word philosophy may be defined as a love of knowledge and wisdom, basically, but many of my correspondents use the word in a manner which leads me to believe their definitions may cover a variety of sins which have no connection with the word unless they wish to study the sins from a philosophic point of view.



Philosophy may also be a study of human morals, character and behavior, including aesthetics, ethics, logic, metaphysics, psychology, natural law or laws of the universe, just to mention a few suitable subjects.

All of these subjects may be studied from an abstract point of view or from a personal or practical point of view; for instance, beauty is an abstract word in itself but I may study the beauty of a woman or painting or animal from my own point of view, which is not abstract, and I may apply specific descriptions which outline my ideas of beauty, applied to any specific subject.

So, too, have I labored to specifically describe and define what my freedom means to me and to these definitions and descriptions I have applied the words philosophy of freedom. Here, again, I deal with personal and practical aspects of my understanding of freedom.

At this point you may recognize the fact that my continuing study of individualism creates a disinclination to consider freedom or beauty or human behavior from an abstract point of view, or in abstract form. On the other hand, a scholar may prefer to study nothing through a microscope in order to consider nothing in the abstract. As one acquaintance of mine explained it, "At what degree of magnification will nothing be resolved as something after all?"

Philosophy, then, is not a dirty word, an affectation or the private property of those studying ways and means to further such causes as communism, socialism, fascism or Keynesian economics. It is interesting to notice with what frequency the subject of freedom has created fear in the minds of professional scholars, studying for the sake of studying, while others engrossed with the practical aspects of the subject find themselves becoming less inclined to be fearful in the abstract and more comfortable with their contemplation of freedom.

Certain schools of philosophy have been concerned with studies of the abstract for excellent practical reasons. Depending upon government for support, they have confined themselves to subjects which do not lend themselves to conclusions, decisions, judgments and statements which might seem incompatible to tyrants and rulers. In some cases they have called themselves free or liberal thinkers while cautiously restricting themselves in subject matter.

On the other hand, a man like Mr. Goff — J. M. Goff who lives in Harlingen, Texas — is a philosopher who does not limit his thinking and his continuing contemplation of the activities of human beings. With a limited amount of formal schooling, he has acquired great wisdom and his thinking encompasses poetry and art forms, language barriers and the enlargement of his own vocabulary, mathematics, ethical conduct of human relations, the art of simplification, and on and on and there is no end.

And yet there are human beings who exist unhappily because they "have nothing to do."

In a vacuum of intellectual sterility, they pass up happiness, enjoyment, the pleasures of accomplishments, ignoring their own abilities, creative and otherwise, and spend their energy clinging to the backs of others, hoping to get something for nothing.

And in the fashion of parasites, they detest their hosts!

I believe it is not enough to proclaim that human beings are irrational and evil since there is ample evidence to disprove this beatnik mood. As you study this evidence and search for a road you may take to freedom, you too will become a philosopher.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Cuban Refugee May Be American Citizen

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Is Barbara Benita Mojias, born in an open boat in which her parents fled Cuba, an American or Cuban citizen?

The decision may depend on the log of the British frigate Tartar, which plucked the refugees from the boat April 30.

Immigration officer Joseph Minton said Monday that Cmdr B. C. G Hutchings has been asked to report the longitude and latitude of the pickup.

If Barbara was born within three miles of the U.S. coast, she's American.

Barbara's parents Mr. and Mrs. Andres Mejias, are hoping she'll be an American.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Big Money Through Private Sources

The Wall Street Journal has reported on a rapidly growing trend in community-wide industrial financing that ought to be of interest to those of us who see Colorado as a site for more and more of the better industries.

We are not talking about community development corporations which have proliferated during the past decade or so but which rely for their money on the sale of government bonds. We are talking about a completely free market lending corporation, usually established at state level and not at community level that exists to make profits and is run in the lending business with plenty of elan vital.

To illustrate just what is happening the Journal describes the plight of a corporation called "Germfree Products Inc." This outfit wanted to locate in St Petersburg Florida and applied for financing at each of the three local banks. It was turned down all the way around.

The reasons for the turn down were legitimate banking reasons. Although Germfree's potential looked good on paper there was a general concern expressed about the lack of a successful operating history. As so, collateral for the loan would consist primarily of specially designed equipment for which no known market existed. No one bank could assume the risks involved. And the firm wanted to erect a $150,000 plant.

But Germfree was able to go ahead, anyhow. It obtained a loan form the Industrial Development Corporation of Florida a free market agency which gets its funds through support of 97 of Florida's banks from 31 savings and loan associations and from 10 insurance companies. The risk for any of these institutions is very small. By pooling their resources they could make the loan and did so at a high interest rate.

According to the Journal, there are now some 13 of these state-wide agencies in operation in various parts of the country. The idea was first launched in New England where canny Yanks felt the necessity to offer certain inducements to firms which were being lured out of the territory by promises of tax-free land, a non-unionized labor market and so on.

The big thing about these industrial development groups is that they ask few if any favors from the taxpayers and they expect to make money from their lending activities and they do. Actually, most of them plow back into further development all the profits they make.

So often we are told that only government can manage to provide the big money. Only government can come up with the largeness of view necessary to do the big things. But here is striking evidence that the claim so often made just isn't so. Considered as a group these Business Development Corporations (BDC) have lent more than $100 million to nearly 1,100 business borrowers within the last few years. At the beginning of 1964 these BDC's had about $50 million in loans on their books and are leasing it to borrowers.

As things stand, the BDC's usually make what could be called the "last ditch" kind of loan. Since their approval most always calls for a higher interest payment than usual, businessmen stay away from them until other avenues of lending fail. But the businessman who wants to be independent and has earned either from the experience of others or through his own study of the problem that government intrusion into business, even for financing, is a risky and unwise procedure is beginning to turn to the BDC's for his financing.

It can be said that many a businessman who has gone to the government for financial aid, goes there only when it can be demonstrated that he can't get financial help any other way. But now the BDC's are getting into the picture to compete with such things as the Small Business Administration and the REA, both of which have been getting into the lending business.

This is a heartening event and bears examination. Possibly something of this sort would be useful and profitable in Colorado. It helps to establish that voluntary joint ventures, regardless of size, can exist, even in a world dominated by involuntary ventures under the power of the state.

We are grateful to the Wall Street Journal for running the story and for letting us know of this new development.

Stupidity

All men are ignorant. In many areas each of us has yet to be informed. But some men are stupid. And stupidity begins at the point where it is assumed that ignorance has vanished.

A Tax-Exempt Mission

There is a Christian mission established in Oaxaca, Mexico which carries the audacious and somewhat unlikely name "Air Mail from God." We have recently received a printed recital from their office concerning their long and finally successful duel with the Internal Revenue Service of this country.

The mission is headed by Gerald and Deane Dugan, who founded the organization in San Antonio, Texas, in 1954. It has taken them ten years to obtain the tax-exemption status that is ordinarily granted to churches and other religious orders. They have also gone through a period in which the IRS agents confiscated some of their office equipment and harassed them with complicated and conflicting orders and directives.

As we understand it, although the federal government has finally seen fit to smile wanly upon the mission with a belated tax-exemption certificate (retroactive to 1954), the local Texas agent is still hounding them, and doing what he can to discourage support and contributions to the missionary endeavor.

Whether or not we agree with the missionary zeal shown by the couple and their co-workers, we can certainly commend them for their courage in standing up to the powerful forces of the greatest collection agency on earth. Perhaps they will be heartened to know that only recently the IRS officially laid down a rule to its employees that they were to stop insulting taxpayers and to endeavor to work with them and leave them in a relatively happy frame of mind.

Just how anyone is supposed to retain a happy and jubilant frame of mind after he has been systematically looted remains a problem, but at least, assuming the instructions were given without tongue-in-cheek, there could conceivably be a little less of the truculent attitude which so often has marred what at best is an intolerable relationship anyway.

A listing of some of the grievances itemized by the mission may be instructive and even encouraging to others who may find themselves in a somewhat parallel situation.

1. IRS compelled the mission to re-file all its tax forms for nine years. The reason given was that in spite of the fact that the organization was a non-profit corporation, that it had operated for profit. The charge was false.

2. The IRS denied the mission the customary 90-day extension in which to obtain its files, and file a rebuttal to all charges made.

3. The fact that the mission had actually operated at a loss was not considered by the IRS. Instead, it seized personal property owned by the mission in an effort to collect back taxes which were not due.

4. The IRS denied the mission its right to legal counsel and defense by seizing its properties two days after it was learned that the organization's legal counsel had been hospitalized.

5. IRS officials followed up their seizure of property by calling at the mission and telephoning the officials at odd hours both day and night to make conversation or to ask questions having little bearing on the matter at hand.

However, the program of harassment finally terminated on April 16 of this year when the IRS ruled officially that the mission was tax exempt and, indeed, had been tax exempt since 1954.

It is a difficult thing for people to face up to their government and tell it to stop in its tracks. So deeply ingrained in our mores is respect and devotion to the state that even overt acts of injustice perpetrated by men in power are likely to induce fear and acquiescence. We are always encouraged when we find people who have the nerve to see through threats and intimidations and to demand that their rights be respected and preserved.

Of course there will be those who will contend that no agency of any kind should be tax exempt. We are inclined to the opposite view, that no agency of any kind should be taxed.

We may have our doubts as to the efficacy of a mission with a name so imposing as the one taken by the good people in Oaxaca. But we have no doubts at all concerning the right of people to be free from the pressures and exactions imposed upon them by a merciless and powerful state.

It's Up to You

Evidences of Weakness

By H. E. KERSHNER, LL.D.

Abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine and supine submission to Communist aggression in the Caribbean, long-term piecemeal surrender of valid treaty rights in the Panama Canal Zone, concession after concession in the disarmament negotiations without counter concession or adequate inspection, refusal to help freedom fighters anywhere, opposition to Western colonialism while keeping silent regarding the far worse Communist colonialism, weakness and submission with reference to the war in Korea, championing of neutralism in Laos and Cambodia, refusal to assist the French when Communist aggression in Viet Nam could have been stopped, promoting the expansion of the pro-Communist Sukarno in Southeast Asian regions, the forcible suppression of Western leadership in Katanga and the Congo while championing the Communist factions in that area and joining with the Russian Communists against our allies the British and the French to enable Nasser to illegally seize the Suez Canal — all these and many more evidences of weakness and Communist appeasement in Washington have convinced our friends and our enemies alike that our country is devoid of strength and intelligence in its foreign policy and that our enemies may continue to spit in our faces and exploit us with impunity.

As a result, we evacuate our personnel from one country after another as we cringe before Communist aggression, submit to insults to our flag in Panama and Ghana where rioting mobs attack our embassies while Red China openly charges that we are collaborating with Communist Russia. Unfortunately the charge is true. For a generation the main outlines of our foreign policy have been directed toward appeasement and collaboration of Russian colonialism. We have fought her enemies and subsidized her friends. We have toppled right-wing rulers who opposed communism and aided left-wing dictators who favored it. This has long been standard policy in our conduct of foreign affairs.

Instead of allowing the twin evils Hitlerism and Stalinism to destroy each other, we backed the stronger of these two antagonists to preserve and strengthen the Kremlin tyrants. Now it appears that we are repeating this error as the break looms between Red China and Red Russia. Both regimes are led by atheists, both are totalitarian slave regimes and we have nothing in common with them.

Let us profit by our previous mistake and let these two twin tyrannies exhaust one another while we preserve our strength for the defense of the free world. Let us have done with appeasement and all collaboration and defense of Russian communism while we resolutely renew our determination to uphold the ideals of our Founding Fathers and free self-government throughout the world.

Mountains of Memories

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Sometimes I think I'm double, Miss.

Not exactly, it seems but two
For as I sit here writing this
I'm walking in the hills with you.

While my hand traces letters thus
My heart and soul are roaming free
Across a windswept mountain peak
And you are strolling there with me.

The crest is high and we are far
Up where the brightest flowers are.

Excuse me while I write of those
The blossoms blooming brave and bold
In moss that nothing ever mars—

We do not mind a little cold
For we are wading in the stars.

And while I know it can't be true,
It gladdens still my lonely heart
To haunt our well loved hills with you.
Though we are half a world apart.

A MONKEY TALE

A friend read my appeal for help in taming and training a monkey a while back. She is the only one I've heard from to date and her advice was negative, to say the least. She told me what NOT to do.

It seems that a friend of hers had a parrot that was a wise old bird and a very fine talker and had been her pride and joy for years — still is, I guess. But somebody presented her with a monkey which soon became a household pet and had the run of the mansion.

This lady was also a chicken raiser and often killed a fryer for dinner. The monkey, being free and also curious and quick to learn, had watched her pluck many a fowl. And that was the cause of the foul play.

She was away from home for a few hours one day and when she returned she found the living room knee-deep in feathers, and the parrot, stark naked, was repeating, over and over, "We've had a h—of a time."

The monkey had figured out how to open the parrot cage and proceeded to pluck the parrot, as it had seen his mistress pluck a chicken.

Well, we have a mynah bird and so my friend said, "You'd better not let this monkey watch you pick any chickens." This is a tale with a moral if I ever saw one.

A FAREWELL BREAKFAST

You often hear of somebody giving somebody else a farewell breakfast or dinner, but ours was for a building. A couple of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Passmore, were here from California on vacation and visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bush, who recently celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary.

Since both the Passmores were raised in the Springs, they are very fond of the Antlers Hotel and they don't think they will be back this way before the famous old landmark is razed to make way. We hope for an even finer building. So they proposed that we all have breakfast at the Antlers as a sort of farewell gesture for the good

To the Editor:

The Printers Home has 1,137 graves in Evergreen Cemetery. They have paid $368 per year. They donated land for the road at Union and Airport Road for which the city received about one-half acre. The Printers Home paid the city $1000 to maintain the 1,137 graves from now on.

The Park Department estimates the cost to maintain a grave at $2.50 per grave. So Mr. Taxpayer, you are paying the difference between $368 and $2,842 to maintain the graves for the Printers Home in Evergreen Cemetery. The Printers Home do not pay any taxes—only on the new office building recently constructed.

The Catholic church has 2,300 graves in Evergreen Cemetery on which they pay $250 per year. The estimated cost to maintain these graves is $2.50 per year per grave. This is $5,750. So Mr. Taxpayer, you are paying approximately $8,500 per year to maintain the graves for these two organizations. The church paid $5,000 to settle this matter.

If the Park Department has so much time to oppose the roads at Prospect Lake that 3,500 other people think we need, they must be overstaffed in their office for they have spent a lot of time opposing this road before different organizations and the public hearing that was held.

RAY CURTIS
622 Prospect Lake Dr.

Editor's note: The Printers Home has more graves than 1,137 in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Curtis has overlooked another 1,111 graves in Evergreen belonging to the ITC.

The Park Department estimates the cost of maintaining a grave at $2.25 per year, rather than $2.50.

The Printers Home no longer pays $368 a year since they gave the half acre of land and a $1,000 endowment to the city.

The figure of $2,842 is meaningless for it derives from the incorrect grave count and an incorrect figure as to the cost of maintaining a grave. Actually, the figure is much higher. Some of the graves belonging to the Printers Home have special and private endowments, however.

The Catholic church has 708 graves in Evergreen rather than 2,300 and some of the 708 are privately endowed.

The figure of $5,750 is in error.

The figure of $8,500 is also in error for the same reasons.

The above information was provided by Malcolm Anderson, Helen Anderson and Stu Richter, all employes of the city of Evergreen Cemetery.

FOOTPRINTER OF YEAR

To the Editor:

When Hal Cook, FBI personnel, read the award to Mrs. J. B. Bruce the other night, there were many tearful but fond memories in the crowd. As for myself, a great big lump in my throat, for I, too, was one of the fortunate ones that he "adopted." He was a "father" to many stern, strict, kind understanding and most of all he was a very patient man. A man that even those that did not like him, his methods, his authority, they did respect him deeply, almost reverently.

Many persons today would be criminals and alcoholic if it were not for his "stern" assistance.

Chapter 37 is the only chapter in Footprinter named after a man, alive or dead, and as a proud member, I believe that Ben Langella, the new president, although he did not know Dad, would welcome applications from those who wish to help commemorate his memory.

Father Bruce's Individuals, why not stand up and be counted?

Question No. 507: "In class at college we had occasion to discuss private versus public education systems. Unanimously agree competition is essential among educators.
